Iowa State names new director of dining

By Mohamed Ali, the new director of dining at Iowa State University, there is a lot of excitement on campus about the new leadership. Ali, who hails from Ohio, has been in the food service industry for over a decade and is looking forward to his new position.

“I am very excited to be here at Iowa State,” Ali said. “The people are great, and the campus is beautiful.”

Ali’s main goals for the department are to improve customer service, expand the variety of food options available, and create a more inclusive environment.

“Customers are the most important aspect of this business,” Ali said. “I want to make sure that we are providing the best experience possible for everyone who visits our dining halls.”

Ali also plans on addressing the overcrowding problem many students face when eating at the dining centers on campus.

“Overcrowding is a huge issue on campus,” Ali said. “I want to work with local farmers.

IOWA SENATE continues 99-county tour

By Michaela Ramm

IOWADAILY.COM

U.S. Sen. Joni Ernst, R-Iowa, speaks to Iowa media Friday at the Ames Chamber of Commerce in Ames. The senator in the Ames stop is one of a dozen states Ernst has campaigned in so far this year. She is hoping to beat Sen. Chuck Grassley on his tour of states.

“Today is the sixth stop on my 99-county tour of Iowa,” Ernst said. “I am excited to be here in Ames tonight and talk to Iowa media about the president’s agenda and all the good things he is doing for Iowa.”

Ernst called it a downtown event, adding it is an opportunity to meet with constituents and to discuss the issues they don’t agree on.

“I am excited to be in Ames tonight and hear the concerns people have in the Ames area,” Ernst said. “I am excited to talk about the president’s agenda and all the good things he is doing for Iowa.”

Ernst first heard her first “yes” answer to retirement question on the floor. This included her response to President Barack Obama’s State of the Union address. While she is a senator and her response is a bipartisan collaboration of the Senate, she is something that is personally important to her.

“I am very excited about this,” Ernst said. She shared her experiences forming a partnership with California’s Democrat Sen. Barbara Boxer. She added that support for Republicans in the Senate that is looking to be a “no” answer.

Ernst also offered her support to the Board of Supervisors.

“Today is the beginning of the 2016 legislative session at the Iowa State Capitol,” Ernst said. “As a member of the Iowa House of Representatives, I have always been proud of the work we have done to improve the lives of Iowans.”

McCarroll also added that after speaking with the university legal counsel, they noted it would be a violation of the Student Disciplinary Regulations for someone to use another student’s university ID in an effort to mislead university officials or access university services.

Weinsteinalso mentioned the university would use the incident as a learning opportunity that may help prevent any similar incident in the future.

“The risk is very low, but that doesn’t mean we don’t have a responsibility to those who are affected,” Fragnito said.

“We’re deterred that it got attached. The person was relieved that it got so much attention. This made it easier. It was human error.”

Any students who ran into security issues can contact the university or visit the IT solution center.

The Violence Research Foundation states that ‘most domestic abusers ultimately relapse back into their abusive ways after their children are returned to them from foster care.’ This is just one reason why children taken from abusive homes should remain in a safe home care environment despite claims by parents of “change.”

At West High School, a serious music snob. While I used to go to see heavy metal concerts and rock festivals, I now only listen to music that is not ‘dangerous.’

When I was younger, I was a serious music snob. While the other girls were listening to Taylor Swift, I was perfectly normal child who only listened to the band, “A Place to Call Home.”

The student body succeeded in its student affairs goals created in the fall. A new year and a new semester is the perfect opportunity to start fresh. This could mean setting objectives for personal growth in long-term team roles, or rekindling goals that were left on the sidelines.

On this campus, I observed the same effect on the listener with each other. If we learn how to do that mentality.

After Iowa State’s 84-80 loss at home by Baylor on Saturday, the Cyclones will look to improve behind the rest of the season.

Iowa State has two conference losses in the first three games, and has lost a game on home court. With the Big 12 as strong as it is this season, and six teams either ranked in the top-25 or receiving votes, the Cyclones have to play their best to defend the home court.

And with the Cyclones seemingly in an early hole, D1 coach Larry Prohm made one thing clear after the game Saturday night: “We don’t paint.” Prohm said. “You stay the course. You figure it out from the film and get back to work. We will. We will figure it out next week or the week after that so we will. We will figure it out before nationals.”

Iowa State not panicking after Baylor loss

By Ryan Young
#Iowastatedaily.com

Chase Norah dives to the ball during the game against Baylor on Saturday at Hilton Coliseum. The Cyclones lost the game 94-80, marking their first home loss of the season.

“If we’re playing a good game, we will have nothing to lose,” Prohm said. “I think we had nothing to lose [Saturday’s game] with 84-80. We weren’t where we should be as a team because we weren’t taking care of the small details. That was something we were going to have to work on through the week. They told us, ‘You know, it’s not the worst thing we have to figure out next week or the week after that so we will. We will figure it out before nationals.’

The pressure that was lifted off the players’ shoulders led to an increased intensity to details. Prohm noted that was something that put smiles and laughter into his teammates.

Just 24 hours before, there were no Cyclone Hockey players-doubled as reporters. The team was feeling the pressure after starting the new year with a 7-3 loss to Minot State.

The difference between these two games was marked by a shift in an intensity of the game. The Cyclones’ Saturday night victory before the Minot State gave the team the arena back, and where the puck popped against the boards, the team was leaning harder against the boards than the night before.

Chase Norah scored 30 points and seven rebounds, said the Cyclones need to bounce back against Oklahoma with getting back-to-back road wins this week—something he thinks they can do.

The Cyclones head to Austin to take on Texas on Tuesday, and then to Manhattan, Kan., to play Kansas State on Saturday. And while fans may sigh there is no way to beat others, Thomas certainly agree.

“The energy and things of that nature that I saw on the bench, I feel like if we do that the rest of the season,” Prohm said.

GAME PUCK

Cyclone Hockey coach Jason Fairman took a souvenier away from Saturday night’s game in the form of a game puck to honor his first win over a No. 1 ranked team as a member of the Cyclones.

Forgetting other pucks he first signed things like that, so I keep them all together,” Fairman said. “They’re in my office. I don’t make a big deal out of them. It’s kind of fun to look at them every now and then and then remind you of a game like that. That’s a special game for them to beat a team that’s undefeated.”

Fairman was lifted off of the play Saturday, and when the puck dropped around 10 p.m. Friday night the team left the arena for Kramer's post-game ranting the crowd.

The only thing that was surprising about the audience for Kramer’s post-game interview was that there were no Cyclone fans holding their phones up to record the Cyclone Hockey.org on their teammates.

“With all the way we’ve done, I don’t know if that can be said for Fairman’s next statement. ‘We know what we’re capable of,’ Fairman said. ‘I’ve gotten other pucks for my first win and things like that, so I keep them all together with the season.’

“I feel like we do that the rest of the season.”

Cyclones pull out win despite ‘disinterested’ playing

By Luke Manderfeld
@iowastatedaily.com

The ISU women’s basketball team left Saturday night’s game against Kansas with a 65-49 victory, but the team, or at least ISU coach Bill Fennelly, didn’t leave Hilton Coliseum with pleasant feelings. Despite the double-digit margin of victory, Fennelly wasn’t happy with his team’s performance. After a rough 21-point loss to Texas on Wednesday, Fennelly expected his team to come out with some extra fire against Kansas.

“The biggest message is you can’t just decide what night you want to show up,” Fennelly said. “I don’t know that they weren’t happy with the way they played. I wasn’t happy with the way they played.”

Fennelly’s displeasure didn’t pop out on the stat sheet. Iowa State shot 43.6 percent from the field and 6-of-14 from 3-point range. They also edged out the Jayhawks on the boards, 40-31. The Cyclones won in almost every facet of the game.

But, for Fennelly, it didn’t come down to statistics. It came down to how much effort his team put forth over the first 40 minutes.

“We were disinterested for a lot of the time — nothing against Kansas,” Fennelly said. “We’ve got to be more engaged from start to finish. That’s the kind of team that we need to be. We weren’t that tonight. You could tell that tonight. We went out and tried to do things we could to get that out of them.”

After the game, Fennelly’s disapproval didn’t subside. He joked with reporters about Iowa State’s effort. “We were disinterested for a long time. Nothing against Kansas,” Fennelly said. “I don’t know that they weren’t happy with the way they played. I wasn’t happy with the way they played.”
