Iowa State Daily (January 11, 2017)

Follow this and additional works at: https://lib.dr.iastate.edu/iowastatedaily_2017-01
President Obama: ‘I am asking you to believe’
POLICE BLOTTER

Jan. 6
Officers assisted another agency with a criminal in vestigation at 1213 Welsh Avenue at 12:55 a.m.

Jan. 7
Carolyn Andrew, 22, of 115 Wilmoth Avenue at 9:31 p.m.

Jan. 8
Emma Georgoff, 19, of 2070 Hawthorne Court Drive at 12:48 a.m.

Jan. 9
Mason Smith, 21, of 284-5688

Jan. 10
Dan Stange at 12:50 a.m.

Jan. 11
Carolyn Andrew, 22, of 212 Beyer Court, Apt. 2218 – Ames, Iowa, was arrested and charged of possession of drug paraphernalia, failure to apear in court, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

POLICE BLOTTER

Weather provided by the National Weather Service

CALANDER

Jan. 11
Reception: 2017 Women Impacting ISU Calendar: The Iowa State Daily will host the Women Impacting ISU calendar for 2017 in the Sun Room of the Memorial Union.

Jan. 12
Exhibit Opening: Red: The Color of Difference is celebrating the opening of Red, an exhibit that explores the cultural and aesthetic diversity of this vibrant hue from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Christian Petersen Art Museum at 1017 Mor- eil Hall.

Jan. 13
Public hearing: Regents’ agenda; Public hearing; individuals have an opportunity to provide early

content

The Iowa State Daily is published Monday through Friday by the Iowa State Daily Publication Board and free copies of the daily are distributed on a daily basis.

All those accused of violating the law are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law as provided by federal and state constitutional protections, and all due process provided by federal and state law shall be afforded.

In accordance with the U.S. Code, Section 1738d, no person shall be held to answer for a capital, punitive or other crime, unless on presentment or indictment of a petit jury, except in cases arising in the military service, and then only after trial by officers of military law.

The Iowa State Daily does not publish names of individuals, damages or numerical figures in police blotter.

All crime, accidents and suspicious or unexplained occurrences are subject to verification and validation before publication in the police blotter.

CALANDER

Jan. 11
Reception: 2017 Women Impacting ISU Calendar: The Iowa State Daily will host the Women Impacting ISU calendar for 2017 in the Sun Room of the Memorial Union.

Jan. 12
Exhibit Opening: Red: The Color of Difference is celebrating the opening of Red, an exhibit that explores the cultural and aesthetic diversity of this vibrant hue from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Christian Petersen Art Museum at 1017 Mor- eil Hall.

Jan. 13
Public hearing: Regents’ agenda; Public hearing; individuals have an opportunity to provide early

content

The Iowa State Daily is published Monday through Friday by the Iowa State Daily Publication Board and free copies of the daily are distributed on a daily basis.

All those accused of violating the law are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law as provided by federal and state constitutional protections, and all due process provided by federal and state law shall be afforded.

In accordance with the U.S. Code, Section 1738d, no person shall be held to answer for a capital, punitive or other crime, unless on presentment or indictment of a petit jury, except in cases arising in the military service, and then only after trial by officers of military law.

The Iowa State Daily does not publish names of individuals, damages or numerical figures in police blotter.

All crime, accidents and suspicious or unexplained occurrences are subject to verification and validation before publication in the police blotter.

CALANDER

Jan. 11
Reception: 2017 Women Impacting ISU Calendar: The Iowa State Daily will host the Women Impacting ISU calendar for 2017 in the Sun Room of the Memorial Union.

Jan. 12
Exhibit Opening: Red: The Color of Difference is celebrating the opening of Red, an exhibit that explores the cultural and aesthetic diversity of this vibrant hue from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Christian Petersen Art Museum at 1017 Mor- eil Hall.

Jan. 13
Public hearing: Regents’ agenda; Public hearing; individuals have an opportunity to provide early

content

The Iowa State Daily is published Monday through Friday by the Iowa State Daily Publication Board and free copies of the daily are distributed on a daily basis.

All those accused of violating the law are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law as provided by federal and state constitutional protections, and all due process provided by federal and state law shall be afforded.

In accordance with the U.S. Code, Section 1738d, no person shall be held to answer for a capital, punitive or other crime, unless on presentment or indictment of a petit jury, except in cases arising in the military service, and then only after trial by officers of military law.

The Iowa State Daily does not publish names of individuals, damages or numerical figures in police blotter.

All crime, accidents and suspicious or unexplained occurrences are subject to verification and validation before publication in the police blotter.

CALANDER

Jan. 11
Reception: 2017 Women Impacting ISU Calendar: The Iowa State Daily will host the Women Impacting ISU calendar for 2017 in the Sun Room of the Memorial Union.

Jan. 12
Exhibit Opening: Red: The Color of Difference is celebrating the opening of Red, an exhibit that explores the cultural and aesthetic diversity of this vibrant hue from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Christian Petersen Art Museum at 1017 Mor- eil Hall.

Jan. 13
Public hearing: Regents’ agenda; Public hearing; individuals have an opportunity to provide early

content

The Iowa State Daily is published Monday through Friday by the Iowa State Daily Publication Board and free copies of the daily are distributed on a daily basis.

All those accused of violating the law are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law as provided by federal and state constitutional protections, and all due process provided by federal and state law shall be afforded.

In accordance with the U.S. Code, Section 1738d, no person shall be held to answer for a capital, punitive or other crime, unless on presentment or indictment of a petit jury, except in cases arising in the military service, and then only after trial by officers of military law.

The Iowa State Daily does not publish names of individuals, damages or numerical figures in police blotter.

All crime, accidents and suspicious or unexplained occurrences are subject to verification and validation before publication in the police blotter.

CALANDER

Jan. 11
Reception: 2017 Women Impacting ISU Calendar: The Iowa State Daily will host the Women Impacting ISU calendar for 2017 in the Sun Room of the Memorial Union.

Jan. 12
Exhibit Opening: Red: The Color of Difference is celebrating the opening of Red, an exhibit that explores the cultural and aesthetic diversity of this vibrant hue from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Christian Petersen Art Museum at 1017 Mor- eil Hall.

Jan. 13
Public hearing: Regents’ agenda; Public hearing; individuals have an opportunity to provide early

content

The Iowa State Daily is published Monday through Friday by the Iowa State Daily Publication Board and free copies of the daily are distributed on a daily basis.

All those accused of violating the law are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law as provided by federal and state constitutional protections, and all due process provided by federal and state law shall be afforded.

In accordance with the U.S. Code, Section 1738d, no person shall be held to answer for a capital, punitive or other crime, unless on presentment or indictment of a petit jury, except in cases arising in the military service, and then only after trial by officers of military law.

The Iowa State Daily does not publish names of individuals, damages or numerical figures in police blotter.

All crime, accidents and suspicious or unexplained occurrences are subject to verification and validation before publication in the police blotter.
Capitol in call for equality
One Iowa to join at State
By Alison.Boysen
the legislators. The press conference will with legislators at 2 p.m.
itorium, followed by the rally in the Iowa ed its mission to advancing and preserving ruled gay marriage legal, One Iowa expand-
After the 2015 Supreme Court decision state, One Iowa, will convene at the Iowa
The day will start at noon with citizen
Community of state legislators and loclude a panel of state legislators and lolitical discussion on the role of the the first recognized LGBTQ+ ment, led by legislators, Rep.
people who spoke Tuesday night were in favor of ownership-only housing, the council decided to pass a motion that in the types of proposals that the city could consider.
Sixty and more years, Hamerlinck with the audience. Hamerlinck of the area was the council's preference intent of creating affordable housing Hamerlinck introduced and you can apply it to viders should be treated the Hamerlinck spoke
it's harder to smile after Hamerlinck also clude and you can use it to the type of work you do, behavior, instead of it, as
He said.
the former retail man-
He said.
Hamerlinck spoke
about how co-workers
Hamerlinck spoke
about how co-workers
about how co-workers
Students address heated gun debate

By Daniellie Gehr
@iwatodailynews

Six days into the new year, five people lost their lives at a derelict airport.

Every mass shooting occurs because of a complete ban on gun ownership, according to recent statistics.

Checks. Iowa State gun owners offered their perspective.

The recent shooting in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, that killed five people has reopened the debate on whether to establish stricter background checks. The state needs better resources for gun control.

The argument is that when saying that mental health is leading to gun violence, it makes more sense that it is a mental health problem. Someone is saying as dangerous in any way.

One country that is held as an example when discussing gun reforms on gun control is Australia. After a mass shooting in 1996 that led to the deaths of 35 people, the citizens called for stricter reforms.

The blame for the current situation is on gun control is Australia. After a mass shooting in 1996 that led to the deaths of 35 people, the citizens called for stricter reforms.

The_argument_is_that_when_saying_that_mental_health_is_leading_to_gun_violence,_it_makes_more_sense_that_it_is_a_mental_health_problem._Someone_is_saying_as_dangerous_in_any_way.

One_country_that_is_held_as_an_example_when_discussing_gun_reforms_on_gun_control_is_Australia._After_a_mass_shooting_in_1996_that_led_to_the_deaths_of_35_people,_the_citizens_called_for_stricter_reforms.

Students address heated gun debate

Six days into the new year, five people lost their lives at a derelict airport.

By Daniellie Gehr
@iwatodailynews

Six days into the new year, five people lost their lives at a derelict airport. Every mass shooting occurs because of a complete ban on gun ownership, according to recent statistics.

Checks. Iowa State gun owners offered their perspective.

The recent shooting in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, that killed five people has reopened the debate on whether to establish stricter background checks. The state needs better resources for gun control.

The argument is that when saying that mental health is leading to gun violence, it makes more sense that it is a mental health problem. Someone is saying as dangerous in any way.

One country that is held as an example when discussing gun reforms on gun control is Australia. After a mass shooting in 1996 that led to the deaths of 35 people, the citizens called for stricter reforms.

The blame for the current situation is on gun control is Australia. After a mass shooting in 1996 that led to the deaths of 35 people, the citizens called for stricter reforms.

The argument is that when saying that mental health is leading to gun violence, it makes more sense that it is a mental health problem. Someone is saying as dangerous in any way.

One country that is held as an example when discussing gun reforms on gun control is Australia. After a mass shooting in 1996 that led to the deaths of 35 people, the citizens called for stricter reforms.

The blame for the current situation is on gun control is Australia. After a mass shooting in 1996 that led to the deaths of 35 people, the citizens called for stricter reforms.
Sexual harassment is defined as unwanted sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical contact of a sexual nature. The workplace is a common setting for such harassment. In most of the cases, he has been doing nothing. All things should be accompanied by an emphasis on not tolerating any sort of harassment, and an explanation that the employee will be punished if they break that rule — getting fired or forced to take a leave of absence.

The workplace managers who hire and manage workers have an overall responsibility to create a harassment-free environment. It is a communication issue, because in order to stop any sort of harassment toward women in the workplace, the employees need to be educated on what it means to harass someone and the consequences.

This is a very influential week in American politics due to the U.S. Senate's confirmation hearings on the incoming administration's nominees. The committee has the power to approve or deny candidates who will execute the laws of the land at will, to be a bargaining chip to use or discard, and to be a sign of things to come. But this week, there is no certainty that any of these rules will follow if the rules are broken.

The second and most worrisome part of the process is how the candidates will be vetted. In recent weeks, he's called to have eliminated when he picked for various agencies, do some research, and see what you agree with and what you don't agree with. Then, contact your senators for actions.

President-elect Donald J. Trump has rolled out a significant portion of the incoming Trump administration. Trump's general response has included by making themselves more attractive to the workplace. The new president-elect has proposed significant tariffs and made many public remarks and past statements. Some are well-known, have made many public remarks and have expressed over how it will bring 5,000 jobs back to the States. Trump's general response has been expressed over how the candidates will be vetted. In recent weeks, he's called to have eliminated when he picked for various agencies, do some research, and see what you agree with and what you don't agree with. Then, contact your senators for actions.

The rules have all of the information possible but for the ones that will determine, and how your senators vote. Vetted, but also how the process works in the American politics. The U.S. Senate will try to rush the confirmation hearing in the same way. It appears that Republican leaders see that more control is allowed, and some of the candidates won't be approved because they won't be what you want and are inclined to rush this process. Trying to avoid the confirmation hearing has been one of the same ways that Trump's general response has included by making themselves more attractive to the workplace. The new president-elect has proposed significant tariffs and made many public remarks and past statements. Some are well-known, have made many public remarks and have expressed over how it will bring 5,000 jobs back to the States. Trump's general response has been expressed over how the candidates will be vetted. In recent weeks, he's called to have eliminated when he picked for various agencies, do some research, and see what you agree with and what you don't agree with. Then, contact your senators for actions.
Iowa State sophomore Meredith Burkhall has the basketball poked out of her hands as she goes up for a layup against Kansas on Sunday at Hilton Coliseum. The Cyclones defeated the Jayhawks 87-58 to earn their first Big 12 winless record in conference.

Iowa State hopes to feed off momentum for the majority of last season’s winning ways Wednesday when it takes on the Oklahoma State Cowboys. Oklahoma, ranked No. 12 in the Big 12, hopes to continue its winning ways after beating the Jayhawks 87-58 last week.

Iowa State (10-5, 1-3 Big 12) will have to hold off on its momentum for the upcoming games is huge," Missouri head coach Mike Neighbors said. "If we can do that, we can go in the conference as big as any games — it's a big stretch and one that can show through their confidence and ability to win games so far in conference play.

"Jadda, Bridget and Seanna have had outstanding performances from these three in recent years, winning three-game stretches with a victory against No. 2 Kansas.

The Cyclones enter the showdown with a large home crowd of fans expected to attend the game ranked No. 4 in the Big 12. Although solid performances from these three are essential to the success of the team, the Cyclones also have some X-factors off the bench.

"When she comes in, she's looking to shoot and she's knocking down her shots," Buckley said. "That's something we need throughout conference play.”

Another player to keep an eye on is junior guard Emily Durr. Durr will enter the game ranked No. 6 in the conference in 3-point percentage (42.1), and she has had a huge impact on the bench, but has been dealing with a nagging injury.

"When we do that, we're good team," Fennelly said. "We've got a victory against No. 2 Kansas. "They'll be back to Ames later this week to start a three-game stretch over six days.

"It was good to see the ball go in the hoop and get my confidence up," Fennelly said. "That, especially with Oklahoma coming up. "Iowa State has found success at Gallagher-Iba Arena in Stillwater, winning three of the last seven games.

"Iba Arena in Stillwater, Oklahoma, is a tough place to play No. 2 Kansas on ESPN's Big Monday at 8 p.m. Wednesday. To stay off the floor, Iowa State will play No. 2 Kansas on ESPN's Big Monday at Hilton Coliseum.

"I just thought that wouldn't be a shot," coach Steve Prohm said. "I was where I used to be (Murray) on the floor. I'm a guard in a game like this. The Oklahoma State's sophomore forward, will have to hold off on its momentum for the upcoming games is huge," Missouri head coach Mike Neighbors said.

"If we can do that, we can win any road games in conference play. We just got back to the bench," Buckley said. "That's something we need throughout conference play."
IOWA STATE DAILY

Leaving a Legacy

By Halee Olson

@iowastatedaily.com

Wednesday, January 11, 2017

The fashion industry is never stagnant. It is constantly undergoing change and development. Every year it seems like there are new trends, new ideas, new ideas. Recently, there has been a significant shift in the “face” factor. Fashion industry insiders, such as Donna Karan and Grace Coddington, have stepped down from long-held and prestigious positions. If the industry is constantly changing, why is losing a few names such a big deal?

For these women, their legacies are leaving huge impacts on the fashion industry and their own careers. Karan stepped down as head designer of her brand, Donna Karan New York. Coddington’s career started when she was 14 years old. After she dropped out of school to work at a boutique, she was later accepted into Parsons School of Design in New York City, which is a highly respected fashion school. Karan launched her own brand, Donna Karan New York. She played a key role in the development of American fashion design alongside the likes of Ralph Lauren, Oscar de la Renta and Calvin Klein. She is one of the few designers who is a woman creating for women. She designed with the needs and aesthetics of women in mind, and a huge female fan base. Karan has won multiple awards throughout her career, including an award for lifetime achievement at Glamour’s Woman of the Year in 2007. Karan decided to step down to focus more on philanthropic work.

Coddington recently left her 30-year position as American Vogue’s creative director. Coddington was first picked up as a model at British Vogue at age 26. When Coddington was 30, her career was cut short after a car crash. From there, she was offered a job as British Vogue’s fashion editor. She performed well in that position and worked her way up to the position of senior fashion editor in 1975. In 1986, Anna Wintour, editor of Vogue from London, learned to respect and appreciate American design. Coddington’s work for Vogue was iconic, no doubt about it. Every magazine spread, advertisements and billboard were thoughtful, bold and stylish. Anna Wintour offered the position of creative director to Coddington.

Even though Coddington originated from London, she learned to respect and appreciate American design. Coddington’s work for Vogue was iconic, no doubt about it. Every magazine spread, advertisement and billboard were thoughtful, bold and stylish. Anna Wintour offered the position of creative director to Coddington. At 54 years old, Coddington said that she will not be living a life of retirement. Instead, she will be working on personal projects and will continue to occasionally do work for Vogue.

5 tips to get organized this syllabus week

By Lena Winkle

@iwomudaily.com

It’s already that time of year again. Spring week. During spring week last semester, you may have made some goals for succeeding this spring semester. Because syllabus week doesn’t usually come until much later, take the week to start getting organized.

TIP 1: Create a binder with a tab for each class. If possible, give your syllabi for each class and stick it with its corresponding tab. As the semester continues, put anything important for each class in the binder, allowing you to keep everything in one spot.

TIP 2: Create a folder for each class on your desktop. Storing all your class materials later in the semester will help you feel relaxed when you begin to feel overwhelmed.

TIP 3: Possibly the best way to organize yourself as a college student is to use an online planner. If you do not have one, you should seriously consider getting one. Even though Coddington stepped down as American Vogue’s fashion editor, her work has formed well in that position and was named one of the 100 most influential people in the fashion industry. For these women, they leave behind huge impacts on the fashion industry and their own careers. Karan stepped down as head designer of her brand, Donna Karan New York. Coddington’s career started when she was 14 years old. After she dropped out of school to work at a boutique, she was later accepted into Parsons School of Design in New York City, which is a highly respected fashion school. Karan launched her own brand, Donna Karan New York. She played a key role in the development of American fashion design alongside the likes of Ralph Lauren, Oscar de la Renta and Calvin Klein. She is one of the few designers who is a woman creating for women. She designed with the needs and aesthetics of women in mind, and a huge female fan base. Karan has won multiple awards throughout her career, including an award for lifetime achievement at Glamour’s Woman of the Year in 2007. Karan decided to step down to focus more on philanthropic work.

Coddington recently left her 30-year position as American Vogue’s creative director. Coddington was first picked up as a model at British Vogue at age 26. When Coddington was 30, her career was cut short after a car crash. From there, she was offered a job as British Vogue’s fashion editor. She performed well in that position and worked her way up to the position of senior fashion editor in 1975. In 1986, Anna Wintour, editor of Vogue from London, learned to respect and appreciate American design. Coddington’s work for Vogue was iconic, no doubt about it. Every magazine spread, advertisement and billboard were thoughtful, bold and stylish. Anna Wintour offered the position of creative director to Coddington. Even though Coddington originated from London, she learned to respect and appreciate American design. Coddington’s work for Vogue was iconic, no doubt about it. Every magazine spread, advertisement and billboard were thoughtful, bold and stylish. Anna Wintour offered the position of creative director to Coddington. At 54 years old, Coddington said that she will not be living a life of retirement. Instead, she will be working on personal projects and will continue to occasionally do work for Vogue.

Putting your best foot forward

By Reagan Clay

@iwomudaily.com

Putting your best foot forward

Students and staff can take the day off on Martin Luther King Jr. Day to make shoes from recycled denim at Sole Hope on Saturday in the Wellness Center.

The Martin Luther King Jr. Day of Service is an event that takes place on the first Monday of February. This event is meant to be an opportunity to "serving HOPE, healthy lives, and freedom from foot-related diseases through education, jobs and medical relief," according to its website. Sole Hope encourages donations for each pair of shoes that will be made, but they are not required when you attend. Donations in advance are also welcome and can be dropped off at The Workspace. The event does not require a registration and is open to all students and faculty, although registration is recommended by ankles. The Workspace is located at 2229 Lincoln Way on the Iowa State campus.

Find more information at www.workspace. iastate.edu or www.solehope.org.
The woman left, her husband warranty, but the woman refused.

Harmon said his worst customer story: A others.

Harmon said the new student health and wellness program is a more proactive approach to student health.

“It’s looking at how we can pre- vent students from needing to go to counseling,” Harmon said. “It’s looking at things like sleep deprivation and stress management. We’re looking at the signs [of health risks] ahead of time.”

"I WAS WELL PREPARED, BY MY PREDECESSOR, TO TAKE ON THE ROLE, "

The former Target store manager knew the Iowa State University Diversity and Inclusion and the ISU Police Department, and in his climate response team, a team charged with capturing incidents of racism and hate on campus.

“If students feel an incident has the response team,” Harmon said.

"Our staff is very burnt out due to the response,” Harmon said.

Describing the next step would be to develop an upper tool that will capture racism.

Harmon said the next step would be to develop an upper tool that will capture racism.

Harmon returned to Hamelinck and his deep cleaning market and threw the vacuum cleaner across the desk, and the employee’s co-worker was shocked, but Hamelinck told the employee to calm down and that he was going to call the police. Hamelinck then turned around and walked back to his desk, and the employee apologized for what he had done.

Hamelinck referred to the manufacturer to seek into the breach of warranty, but the woman refused. After the woman left, her husband was responsible for the launching of three major programs for the division of student affairs: student health, wellness, assessment and research and student affairs fundraising.

Matthew Porter, Lit. Michel and Mark Rose-Beau were named the directors of the new student health and wellness programs, respectively.

“Harmon said the new student health and wellness program is a more proactive approach to student health.

“...the way so responders can be more pro- active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating,” Harmon said.

We don’t have a place to show our response to things that are hap- pening,” Harmon said. “It would be more effective to have our own tool that will capture racism.

Harmon will also look to close achievement gaps surfaced by Iowa State's institutional research. The average four-year graduation rate for African American students was 20 percent in 2009, 2010 and 2011 entering enrollment, is another issue that Harmon will try to solve.

Harmon said that notable state developments and university students face a similar average passage.

A lack of space, due to increased enrollment, is another issue that Harmon will try to solve.

“On staff, we’re very burnt out due to the response,” Harmon said. “...we just look to prevent things from happening.”

Harmon added that the response team is not only responsible, but the campus is also active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating.

Harmon will also look to close achievement gaps surfaced by Iowa State’s institutional research. The average four-year graduation rate for African American students was 20 percent in 2009, 2010 and 2011 entering class, which sits at about 31 percent. Harmon noted that while more students and university students face a similar average passage.

Harmon said that notable state developments and university students face a similar average passage.

A lack of space, due to increased enrollment, is another issue that Harmon will try to solve.

"Our staff is very burnt out due to the response,” Harmon said.

Describing the next step would be to develop an upper tool that will capture racism.

Harmon said the next step would be to develop an upper tool that will capture racism.

Harmon returned to Hamelinck and his deep cleaning market and threw the vacuum cleaner across the desk, and the employee’s co-worker was shocked, but Hamelinck told the employee to calm down and that he was going to call the police. Hamelinck then turned around and walked back to his desk, and the employee apologized for what he had done.

Hamelinck referred to the manufacturer to seek into the breach of warranty, but the woman refused. After the woman left, her husband was responsible for the launching of three major programs for the division of student affairs: student health, wellness, assessment and research and student affairs fundraising.

Matthew Porter, Lit. Michel and Mark Rose-Beau were named the directors of the new student health and wellness programs, respectively.

“Harmon said the new student health and wellness program is a more proactive approach to student health.

“...the way so responders can be more pro- active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating,” Harmon said.

We don’t have a place to show our response to things that are hap- pening,” Harmon said. “It would be more effective to have our own tool that will capture racism.

Harmon will also look to close achievement gaps surfaced by Iowa State's institutional research. The average four-year graduation rate for African American students was 20 percent in 2009, 2010 and 2011 entering class, which sits at about 31 percent. Harmon noted that while more students and university students face a similar average passage.

A lack of space, due to increased enrollment, is another issue that Harmon will try to solve.

“On staff, we’re very burnt out due to the response,” Harmon said. “...we just look to prevent things from happening.”

Harmon added that the response team is not only responsible, but the campus is also active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating.

Hamelinck referred to the manufacturer to seek into the breach of warranty, but the woman refused. After the woman left, her husband was responsible for the launching of three major programs for the division of student affairs: student health, wellness, assessment and research and student affairs fundraising.

Matthew Porter, Lit. Michel and Mark Rose-Beau were named the directors of the new student health and wellness programs, respectively.

“Harmon said the new student health and wellness program is a more proactive approach to student health.

“...the way so responders can be more pro- active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating,” Harmon said.

We don’t have a place to show our response to things that are hap- pening,” Harmon said. “It would be more effective to have our own tool that will capture racism.

Harmon will also look to close achievement gaps surfaced by Iowa State's institutional research. The average four-year graduation rate for African American students was 20 percent in 2009, 2010 and 2011 entering class, which sits at about 31 percent. Harmon noted that while more students and university students face a similar average passage.

A lack of space, due to increased enrollment, is another issue that Harmon will try to solve.

“On staff, we’re very burnt out due to the response,” Harmon said. “...we just look to prevent things from happening.”

Harmon added that the response team is not only responsible, but the campus is also active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating.

Hamelinck referred to the manufacturer to seek into the breach of warranty, but the woman refused. After the woman left, her husband was responsible for the launching of three major programs for the division of student affairs: student health, wellness, assessment and research and student affairs fundraising.

Matthew Porter, Lit. Michel and Mark Rose-Beau were named the directors of the new student health and wellness programs, respectively.

“Harmon said the new student health and wellness program is a more proactive approach to student health.

“...the way so responders can be more pro- active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating,” Harmon said.

We don’t have a place to show our response to things that are hap- pening,” Harmon said. “It would be more effective to have our own tool that will capture racism.

Harmon will also look to close achievement gaps surfaced by Iowa State's institutional research. The average four-year graduation rate for African American students was 20 percent in 2009, 2010 and 2011 entering class, which sits at about 31 percent. Harmon noted that while more students and university students face a similar average passage.

A lack of space, due to increased enrollment, is another issue that Harmon will try to solve.

“On staff, we’re very burnt out due to the response,” Harmon said. “...we just look to prevent things from happening.”

Harmon added that the response team is not only responsible, but the campus is also active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating.

Hamelinck referred to the manufacturer to seek into the breach of warranty, but the woman refused. After the woman left, her husband was responsible for the launching of three major programs for the division of student affairs: student health, wellness, assessment and research and student affairs fundraising.

Matthew Porter, Lit. Michel and Mark Rose-Beau were named the directors of the new student health and wellness programs, respectively.

“Harmon said the new student health and wellness program is a more proactive approach to student health.

“...the way so responders can be more pro- active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating,” Harmon said.

We don’t have a place to show our response to things that are hap- pening,” Harmon said. “It would be more effective to have our own tool that will capture racism.

Harmon will also look to close achievement gaps surfaced by Iowa State's institutional research. The average four-year graduation rate for African American students was 20 percent in 2009, 2010 and 2011 entering class, which sits at about 31 percent. Harmon noted that while more students and university students face a similar average passage.

A lack of space, due to increased enrollment, is another issue that Harmon will try to solve.

“On staff, we’re very burnt out due to the response,” Harmon said. “...we just look to prevent things from happening.”

Harmon added that the response team is not only responsible, but the campus is also active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating.

Hamelinck referred to the manufacturer to seek into the breach of warranty, but the woman refused. After the woman left, her husband was responsible for the launching of three major programs for the division of student affairs: student health, wellness, assessment and research and student affairs fundraising.

Matthew Porter, Lit. Michel and Mark Rose-Beau were named the directors of the new student health and wellness programs, respectively.

“Harmon said the new student health and wellness program is a more proactive approach to student health.

“...the way so responders can be more pro- active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating,” Harmon said.

We don’t have a place to show our response to things that are hap- pening,” Harmon said. “It would be more effective to have our own tool that will capture racism.

Harmon will also look to close achievement gaps surfaced by Iowa State's institutional research. The average four-year graduation rate for African American students was 20 percent in 2009, 2010 and 2011 entering class, which sits at about 31 percent. Harmon noted that while more students and university students face a similar average passage.

A lack of space, due to increased enrollment, is another issue that Harmon will try to solve.

“On staff, we’re very burnt out due to the response,” Harmon said. “...we just look to prevent things from happening.”

Harmon added that the response team is not only responsible, but the campus is also active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating.

Hamelinck referred to the manufacturer to seek into the breach of warranty, but the woman refused. After the woman left, her husband was responsible for the launching of three major programs for the division of student affairs: student health, wellness, assessment and research and student affairs fundraising.

Matthew Porter, Lit. Michel and Mark Rose-Beau were named the directors of the new student health and wellness programs, respectively.

“Harmon said the new student health and wellness program is a more proactive approach to student health.

“...the way so responders can be more pro- active in preventing incidents from happening and escalating,” Harmon said.

We don’t have a place to show our response to things that are hap- pening,” Harmon said. “It would be more effective to have our own tool that will capture racism.

Harmon will also look to close achievement gaps surfaced by Iowa State's institutional research. The average four-year graduation rate for African American students was 20 percent in 2009, 2010 and 2011 entering class, which sits at about 31 percent. Harmon noted that while more students and university students face a similar average passage.