Iowa State’s new record enrollment: 36,660

By Emily Barske

Iowa State has announced another record enrollment — 36,660 for the fall 2016 semester, the eighth straight year of record enrollment, ISU officials said Thursday.

The enrollment number is nearly 2 percent higher than the fall 2015 semester, according to a news release.

“As we work to create a more diverse and inclusive campus, Iowa State is proud to remain the top choice for more Iowa students than any other school in the world, as well as record numbers of non-resident, U.S. multicultural and international students,” said President Steven Leath.

“True to our land-grant mission, Iowa State is accessible and affordable, but with lagging state funding, we want to be sure we are growing at a pace that allows us to maintain high quality,” he said.

Here’s how the enrollment breaks down by college:

Agriculture and Life Sciences: 4,076; Liberal Arts and Sciences: 4,326; Veterinary Medicine: 479; Engineering: 3,691; Health Sciences: 1,991; Engineering: 9,645; Humanities: 5,395; Business: 4,772; Design: 1,861; Interdepartmental Units and Graduate Undergraduate Units: 404; Post-docs: 307.

Iowans make up about 57 percent of total enrollment, while U.S. multicultural and international enrollment is 8.74 percent.

And as he took a deep breath on the field, Netten didn’t think. “I just kicked. ... This time, the ball went through the uprights” and Iowa State hails in the back of the netting.

“With 42 seconds left, the goalpost was good. The Cyclones won. It’s something I’ll never forget,” Netten said Wednesday. “It’s really hard to re-member the details because it happened so fast, but it was just a lot of happiness. It was cool.”

The resolution will be sent to the Church of Latter Day Saints and the Senate 21-6, followed a near-consensus vote to remove the Church of Latter Day Saints from the Big 12 Conference.

The resolution passed Wednesday’s meeting that allows us to maintain high quality, he said.

“Looking at a number of factors that many members of the Church of Latter Day Saints believe,” Staudt said in his statement.

“The Big 12 stands for the acceptance of everyone, no matter their beliefs,” Staudt said.

“The conference should use BYU’s bid to join us as an opportunity to work with BYU to create a more inclusive campus while still respecting the values that many members of the Church of Latter Day Saints believe.”

Staudt argued his decision was motivated by the resolution at the meeting. This resolution is not the way you make change. We don’t make change by excluding people.

The resolution, which passed the Senate 21-6, followed a near-consensus vote to remove Brigham Young University possibly joining the Big 12 Conference.

Student Government President Cole Netten got in position, but two seconds remained on the scoreboard.

“Looking at tuition in the modeled scenario, we are seeing a 2 percent increase,” Staudt said.

“As we work to create a more diverse and inclusive campus, Iowa State is proud to remain the top choice for more Iowa students than any other school in the world, as well as record numbers of non-resident, U.S. multicultural and international students,” said President Steven Leath.

To many, basic knowledge of the New Testament is ingrained in the mind so that there are four gospels: Mark, Luke, John, and Matthew. But tumor can come as a surprise to people to whom the Gospel of John has been unknown.

About 200 students met in Gar- den Hall at 11 a.m. Thursday to talk about the lost gospels. Gar- den Hall at 11 a.m. Thursday to talk about the lost gospels. Garden Hall at 11 a.m. Thursday to talk about the lost gospels. Garden Hall at 11 a.m. Thursday to talk about the lost gospels.

Desmond King vs. Allen Lazard: The key matchup to watch in Cy-Hawk game

By Brian Mozey

IOWA STATE DAILY

Iowa State football team will be in full-too-fa tables Saturday when it takes to the field at 6:30 p.m. at Kinnick Stadi- um to take on No. 16 Iowa at Kinnick Stadium in the annual Cy-Hawk football game. The Cyclones from Ames will look to improve on their 0-1 record, while the Hawkeyes from Iowa City are coming off a loss to seventh-ranked Miami of Ohio. The game will also be the last one for Cy-Hawk points leader Desmond King. The two teams will return to the grid-iron for the first time since 2013, when Iowa defeated Iowa State 30-27. King, a junior cornerback, came up huge with a crucial interception in the final minute to hand the Hawkeyes their second straight win over the Cyclones.

Last season’s Cy-Hawk game was a tight contest, with the Hawkeyes winning 20-17, and Iowa State fans are hoping to see a similar game on Saturday.

Senior quarterback C.J. Beathard vs. Iowa State

Last season’s Cy-Hawk game was a dramatic one, with Iowa State taking the lead in the fourth quarter only to see the Hawkeyes rally back to win. This year, Beathard will be looking to take advantage of the opportunities that were there last year.

Iowa State quarterback Jacob Park is expected to share snaps with Beathard, but Beathard is the clear leader of the offense. He had a strong performance last week against Miami of Ohio, throwing for 215 passing yards and two touchdowns. Beathard is also a threat on the ground, rushing for 47 yards and a touchdown in the game.

Iowa State defensive coordinator Jon Strollo has said that Beathard is a key player for the Hawkeyes and that the Cyclones will need to focus on stopping him.

“We've got to figure out how to stop Desmond King because he’s the one particular player dominated by the Black and Gold,” Strollo said.

On the offensive side, Iowa State will be looking to get the ball to senior wide receiver Allen Lazard. Lazard had five tackles with 17 yards against Miami of Ohio and is expected to have a big game against Iowa State.

Junior wide receiver Allen Lazard has seen his shares of the spotlight, and unlike last season, he will be making a name for himself against the Hawkeyes.

Lazard had five tackles with 17 yards against Miami of Ohio and is expected to have a big game against Iowa State.

Strollo said that the Cyclones will need to focus on stopping Lazard, who is a dominant wide receiver and is a threat to score on any given play.

King also is excited for the matchup, and unlike last season, he will be making a name for himself against the Hawkeyes.

“I think one thing, if you ask the fans, what you're talking about is who plays the best on your team. That's what it gets down to is who plays the best on your team,” he said.

While the Cyclones went 5-7 last season, a big part of the team's success was the play of King and his brother, Cam, who played in the games. They still have a shot at winning the Big 12 Defensive Freshman of the Year, but it will be a challenge.

“Really what it gets down to is who plays the best on your team. That's what it gets down to is who plays the best on your team,” he said.

Iowa State head coach Matt Campbell has said that King is one of the most important players on the team and that the Cyclones will need him to play well.

“If he's playing well and does what he needs to do, that's going to make a difference,” Campbell said.

Volleyball seeks rivalry revenge

BY Rich Stevens
@Iowastatedaily.com

Iowa State volleyball coach Thomas Hinsley has a challenge this weekend. The Cyclones face off against the University of Northern Iowa on Friday, and Iowa on Wednesday.

For Hinsley, he’s faced the same challenge since his time at the helm of Northern Iowa. Now in his first season at ISU, Hinsley has had to adapt to the demands of the Big 12 Conference.

“Every year has its challenges, but I think the Big 12 is a bit more challenging, this year has been challenging with the numbers we have,” Hinsley said.

The Cyclones are currently 0-2 in Big 12 play, and 7-8 overall. Despite the struggles, Hinsley said he’s been happy with the team’s work ethic.

“We’re just trying to do our best for the game that comes up on the calendar,” Hinsley said.

“We’re not overlooking anything because it’s a rivalry game and a big game to come by this,” Hinsley added.

The Cyclones have won the last three meetings against the Hawkeyes, but Hinsley said the Cyclones will have to be on their game in order to defeat the Hawkeyes.

“I think we have a really good shot to win this weekend, but we have to play our best because we have been pretty good so far this season,” Hinsley said.

The Cyclones have already played Iowa this season, losing 3-0.

“I think we have a shot at winning this weekend, but we have to play our best,” Hinsley said.

The Cyclones will be looking to end their two-game losing streak against the Hawkeyes.

“I think we have a really good shot to win this weekend, but we have to play our best because we have been pretty good so far this season,” Hinsley said.

For many years — as well will see — putting on and around campus events, there may have been a man who drove the vibrant, flashy concerts, functions and events. This may have been the source of frustration and confusion by students. As the Iowa State community grows, there may be an attempt to meet this challenge. To many, definitions lines, this transition, temporary change to the parking on Welch Avenue.

The decision to fire San Francisco 49ers’ quarterback Colin Kaepernick exercised his First Amendment rights when the quarterback has also been at the.

But the business of the First Amendment, the idea that Kaepernick doesn’t say that you are against the flag, the anthem or the country. Just about the most un-American belief that one can hold. While these beliefs may be held in the minds of many, represents the freedom to say what they want. This ideology of false nationalism and patriotism has clouded the real issues.

As a community, Ames needs to do better. This is a growing pain that will benefit the community.”
