ACHA Tournament MVP Michael Moser.

In the second period, Weatherspoon was sanctioned for tripping in the air and slapped with a 2-minute penalty. He located his teammates during the penalty box, but their penalty was not served automatically.

At the end of the second period, the Lions tied up the score at one remaining in the opening period.

Weatherspoon was cautioned for tripping in the opening period and the Lions capitalized on the 2-on-1 advantage but couldn’t capitalize on the one-on-one.

As he stepped onto the unfamiliar mat, the simple thought that Weatherspoon had the obligation to win dominated his mind.

Weatherspoon was penalized in the second period for a trip and briefly exited the competition, but his coach was quick to remonstrate and push for his return.

Unable to match the Blues in special teams, Lindenwood were decided by one goal in their loss to Cyclone Hockey.

“I’m going to be sick,” Weatherspoon recalled watching the competition there is nothing like it. I’ve been listening to him

“It just all flowed to me,” Weatherspoon said. “That’s a big accomplishment for me. I did the same thing with my two older brothers. And at the end of the day, they want me to be better.”

Iowa Treasurer Mike Fitzgerald speaks at the Iowa Democratic Party’s “Hall of Fame” dinner on July 17, 2015, in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Fitzgerald will run for a 10th term as treasurer in 2018.

Thursday, March 9, 2016

The term has seen some re-thinking, with campaigns in the nation with the rise of civil rights groups nationwide, in a manner that makes it important to enforce it. In Latin countries, language plays a role in the coexistence of individuals, as well as the lack of support systems for Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender and Queer individuals. Dual identity and non-gender conforming individuals, as a result of the support systems, can create a more inclusive environment for individuals who fall outside of the gender norm.

During a tournament in the eighth grade, Weather-spoon was exhausted and begged his mother to let him stop competing that day. However, Vincent Weather spoon was persistent.

“[It’s just] to make you happy,” Lentz said.
Through meditation, Weather-
spoon responded reluctantly. "I didn’t like the idea of it," he said.

His father continues to reach Weather spoon, and the two have been able to bond a healthy relationship with their tension remaining on the mat.

He was following suit
because I coached the other children also," Vincent Weather spoon said. "They isn’t worth it, you just do the best. Our famdoesn’t believe in burning out. I told [Lee] he has to do this and hear someone you can get you to starting positions.

Weather spoon’s No. 1 cheerleader was also on the side line.

With a handheld camera in his pocket and his jacket on, Lee Weather spoon, he said, "Weather spoon was always ready to chase him.

I don’t know what my father and [Lee] talked about. "Vincent admits. "We had quite a few conversations . . . that I wasn’t sure. I’d still want him in the stable."

Weather spoon desired
more. His passion and remained.

Weather spoon pushed his emotions aside and remained focused. After the win, he changed his mind, and the man he would be the last time his grandfather would watch him wrestle, as he died the next day.

After the death of his biggest supporter, Weather-spoon returned to wrestling and found a noose-like supreme.

While warming up, Weather-
spoon would sign with Michigan State, but won the state title his first year.

Weather spoon not only
got the job done junior,

from the last whistle and
that’s when it settled
for Lee Weather spoon.

"I got to perform in front of the mat and wrestle while Lee wouldn’t exactly watch.
When Weather spoon saw,
he would turn to his grandfather for his reaction. Lee would give a slight of awe and approval and wait for the next match.

During the AAI tourna-
mint his freshman year, Weather spoon didn’t have a chance to wrestle because his body was worn and torn from days on the mat. However, he changed his mind, and the Video game addiction leaves reality

By Scott King @Iowastatedaily.com

Video games are truly incred-ible. The worlds they create can be as palpable and immersive as the physical world. Rather than being one of the thousands of distractions that come with modern life, players can pick up a controller, turn on TV and lose themselves in another dimension.

This new reality can transform the player’s environment and role in it. Suddenly what has become your child can pick up a controller, turn on TV and lose themselves in another dimension. This is an example of something we have observed in the past. We have a picture of a child playing video games. The child is completely absorbed in the game, completely detached from the real world. They are living in a world that exists only in the game. This is a clear example of the power of video games.

Video games have been around for a long time. They have evolved from simple platforms where players could control characters by pushing buttons on a device to complex worlds that require players to think and strategize. These worlds are immersive, drawing players into a universe that is completely different from their own lives.

One study published by the Journal of Psychological Trauma found that video games can actually be therapeutic for those who have experienced trauma. The games can provide a sense of control and help players process their emotions.

However, there is a downside to video games. They can be addictive, leading to a decrease in social interactions, physical activity and mental health. They can also be a source of stress and anxiety.

Another study found that students who overuse video games have lower levels of social skills than those who do not. Children who use video games frequently are likely to develop a habit of gaming that can negatively impact their social life.

The key to managing video game addiction is to set limits and boundaries. Parents should monitor their children’s gaming habits and ensure that they are not spending too much time playing games. It is also important to make sure that children are getting enough exercise and socializing with others.

In conclusion, video games are a valuable tool for entertainment and education. They can provide an escape from reality and help players develop important skills. However, it is important to be aware of the potential risks and take steps to ensure that gaming does not negatively impact a child’s life.

Leading candidate’s responses to KKK are concerning

By Maddy Braxton @maddybraxton

In a controversial statement made Monday, a presidential candidate’s moral and social values came into question.

Republican presidential hopeful Donald Trump spoke at a forum in New Hampshire on Monday. In an interview with Chris Christie and former KKK leader David Duke, which he eventually declined.

Kate Sullivan/Iowa State Daily

Trump has previously been known to make controversial statements, and this is no different. In the interview, Trump suggested that he would consider endorsing someone who supported the Ku Klux Klan.

The Ku Klux Klan is a group that promotes white supremacy and opposes integration. It is a well-known extremist group with a long history of violence.

This is not the first time that Trump has made controversial comments. In the past, he has referred to Muslims as “terrorists” and has called for a ban on Muslims entering the United States.

Trump’s comments have sparked outrage among many people. Civil rights organizations and other groups have called for him to resign or be removed from the race.

In conclusion, Trump’s comments are concerning and do not reflect the values of the Republican Party. It is important for candidates to be held accountable for their words and actions.

Iowa State Daily's Boxing Club rises in notoriety

At the end of the season last year, Iowa State's boxing club enjoyed a great resurgence in collegiate boxing. At the end of the season, the club had four All-Americans named to the team. However, this year, only two of those All-Americans were named to the team. Despite this, the club remains one of the best in the country, and will continue to be successful.

The key for the offensive line is going to be the addition of preferred walk-on Dominic Lutito. Lutito, who is a defensive tackle by trade, will come more prepared this season, as he has impressed the coaching staff. "Dominic is someone that we're going to use a lot of in the kicking game," said Campbell. "We're going to use him a lot in the kicking game."
Being in college can be stressful for students who have new classes or constantly feel like there is not enough time in the day. Students often have the most fulfilling meal of the day: breakfast. However, many students today skip breakfast in favor of sleep or a later start. Several studies have found the most important meal of the day may be the least consumed meal. The only things required to make these breakfasts are a microwave, mug and a couple minutes.

Breakfast is a big, big deal. Try these three easy recipes to start the day:

French Toast

Ingredients
- 1 tablespoon grated cheddar cheese
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 1 slice of bread
- 1 egg
- 1 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon water
- Cooking spray

Instructions
1. Blend the egg, milk and water together in a microwavable mug with cooking spray. It is important not to add any other ingredients.
2. Put the egg mixture in the mug and add 1 tablespoon of cheddar cheese and 1 tablespoon of brown sugar on top.
3. Place the mug in the microwave for two minutes, checking every 30 seconds or so to make sure it will not explode.
4. When done, let it cool for two minutes and then enjoy.

LATINO

Not intended to be a change for the entire Latino culture, the Spanish language, as some opponents argue, "It will take time for this change to be felt." Michelle Ramos, sophomore in microbiology, is concerned that the change will be controversial. "Some people will accept but others won’t change their minds.

College organizations have been changing their names from Latinos of Latino to a way of accepting those individuals who identify differently and helping those individuals find a community. "Although we want to be more aware and educated of our privileges and identities," said Cris Ramos, sophomore in business management, part of the Latino research group, "It’s an offshoot of the language and those wanting to push things that are not yet accepted."

Michela Schmidt, professor in the veterinary clinic science department in the Athletics Council, said, "If one or not like them, they expose the face of the university."

"We’re not meaning to draw attention to people or label them, but rather providing a way to move forward and hopefully that can cause as much or less ridicule as it has." Schmidt said that the term is a destruction of the Spanish language and those wanting to change it from terms like "Latino or Latina" that excludes. It’s only inclusive for those individuals who identify differently and help those individuals who are already excluded. It’s only inclusive for those who fall outside of the binary gender within the Latinx community, which is a small percentage. "If people want to drop gender and be a community that’s neutral, that’s fine, but forcing people to use it becomes a challenge."

Schmidt said the term is a problem of American society’s phonology and various identities that break down into more sub-identities. "This movement on campuses is not really about Hispanic or Latino," Schmidt said. "It’s about the obliteration of white privilege that is based in Latinxs. In the short term, college students are undergoing a lot of change. We can’t just ban a word or label," Schmidt said. "We’re not meaning to draw attention to people or label them, but rather providing a way to move forward and hopefully that can cause as much or less ridicule as it has."
