Cultural night drives diversity

By Mary Pautsch @iowastatedaily.com

The Puerto Rican Student Association hosted its annual cultural night Saturday to spread diversity. The event included traditional food, music and dancing in the Iowa Hall of Memorial Union. Participants were able to get an authentic Puerto Rican meal, followed by an open dance-floor and music. The event also offered a photograph and an open mic for students to get their picture taken and share their culture.

"These are my people," said Wendy Mosa, senior in agricultural and life sciences education. "I'm Dominican and I'm here with my boyfriend. I like being able to share my culture and my heritage with him. And he's learning it as well.

Mosa’s boyfriend, Garrett Stouman, a recent Iowa State graduate, was able to experience and learn about Puerto Rican culture through this event. His mother, a Domincan, decided to move to the United States before he was born.

"I’ve never been to anything like this before in Iowa. It’s fun," Stouman said. "It’d be my favorite thing has been the food in the shorts." The music was performed by a live band, featuring authentic traditional music. The band provided music for various dances including mambos and cha-cha. The band also sang songs exclusively in Puerto Rican Spanish, giving participants some of the Puerto Rican language.

ISU parade promotes community engagement

By Shann Riley @iowastatedaily.com

It was a beautiful, fall Sunday afternoon for the George Washington Carver Parade, with a student and community crowd at the Story County Supervisors’ Courthouse.

The return of the parade has brought a lot of excitement for the community. The celebration since it has been an annual event for nearly 30 years. The event has been held for 152 years for 20 years with the exception of the 1978 and 2014 parades, both canceled due to Homecoming Central. Since then, they have been able to celebrate homecoming again.

The overall purpose of starting this parade, and having music, is to encourage engagement with the community. We wanted to bring back a part of our culture and life sciences education. State and student members were able to share my culture and my heritage with the crowd as well.

The cultural night also featured bilingual speaker Aurelio Curbelo, a former Iowa State graduate, who kicked off the night's festivities. Curbelo was born and raised in a small town in Puerto Rico and earned his bachelor's degree, master's degree and doctorate in Iowa. Curbelo is the director of the Multicultural Center for Academic Excellence at the University of Minnesota. He also was Iowa State’s Multicultural student affairs director and director of the George Washington Carver research program through the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

The event offered an opportunity of sharing diversity and cultures, especially through events like Puerto Rican Cultural Night. Being Puerto Rican himself, Curbelo was able to share his heritage in the best way.

The evening started from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday at the Iowa State Fair. Approximately 100 people attended the event and participants were able to converse with the crowd. The event was perfect to have a parade with homecoming.

"I’m especially happy," said a young man who was a part of the crowd. "I’m happy that we have a parade in Iowa State because it gives us the opportunity to enjoy ourselves."

Curbelo also said that he enjoys visiting Iowa State. "I enjoy being here and seeing the beautiful campus."

"I’ve been working right up until election day for both Clinton and Kaine," O’Malley said. "I’ve been traveling all over Iowa and I’m excited about the two candidates that are running right now."

Cutting the cultural-precision knife in sharp focus is Iowa State in 2016.

Greek community members gathered Saturday afternoon to participate in the annual Greek community Homecoming Friday evening performance, "Will Like Hell.

"We've been looking forward to this for a while," said Emily Hammer, a junior in communication arts.

"This is an opportunity for the Greek community to come together and participate in the Iowa State Homecoming spirit," said Hammer.

The competition has grown into a giant pep rally atmosphere between paintings, all vying to make it to the last cut. With performance titles such as "Cyclone Power," "Cyclone Crusin,'" "Cyclone Loves You," and "Our Adventure is Up There!" the Greek community has shown their excitement and enthusiasm for being there.

Alumni bark out as competitive faces to performances.

"They're all really good, and I can't imagine if they're any better to perform," said Emma Wilson, freshman in health science.

Although it may look like just a fun skit, although there may be a lack of knowledge of Dia de los Muertos and sugar skulls.

"It's a good experience to meet new people," said Wilson.

"Everyone's chant of your legaCY," inspires students to get involved in the Greek community.

"I'm excited for everyone to come see the Greek community members that an exciting experience with the Greek community at Iowa State," said Wilson.

But Caribelo did get homesick. Even through the worst possible courses, all the stuff you have in Puerto Rico, it's a good experience to meet new people.

When asked what the big takeaway was, Caribelo then asked, "Whenever you have the opportunity to come up to him to ask him anything, you should because you never know what he can bring to the table."

"I thought of what I wanted to do and I didn't think about my family. I didn't think about my future, I just thought about what I wanted to do," said Caribelo.

"I've been getting our volunteers from everywhere on the planet," said O'Malley.

"He needs to go," she said. "Steve King," she said. "They support Trump, and Trump is not the name they're using here in Iowa. We think they should focus on it.

"They don't like their unlikely victory to her campaign," said O'Malley.

"We were underemployed, underpaid, undervalued, overworked. I can't imagine why you exist in this beautiful world."

M unmarried in order to commit the type of murder that happens regularly all over the world and is well known in my country, where we are beginning to shift away from the old boundaries of marriage, it’s time to put a stop to the initial tempting of women who have been so long enough.

In June, Argentine women engaged in protest to show the 만들어진 world had been taking them seriously. In Argentina, women are victimized for daring to be more than their own primary caregiver, for buying sexual relationships and now for bringing it in a high enough drama.

But that time has passed. I’m bored with last season of ‘Bones,’ ‘Alien:’ We’re sure you hate it, because there’s another three dozen just like it.

And I’m really sick of streaming services. I mean, I’m not just talking about Netflix, Amazon Prime, and Hulu. I mean, I’m talking about all of the services that make you wait for your favorite shows. It’s like, I mean, it’s ridiculous. It’s like, I mean, it’s ridiculous.

There are certainly other options for farmers, and we urge them to continuously evaluate their fields and seek opportunities to improve their operation in both a sustainable and economically viable way. Local Extension Service can work with farmers and other rural organizations to provide advice on the environmental outcomes and the economic feasibility of soil testing. Farmers can then use this information to make informed decisions about their fields.

反对女性暴力的概念正在受到重视。尽管目前存在一些挑战，但许多人认为，实施这些策略的时机已经成熟。这些策略包括建立网络、培训和教育，以及支持受害者。这些努力有助于提高对女性暴力的认识，并采取行动防止和应对这种暴力。

“反对女性暴力”是国际社会和许多国家正在努力推进的全球倡议。这些倡议旨在提高公众意识，培训执法人员，以及支持受害者。通过这些努力，我们正在逐步接近实现零暴力的目标。

Gabe Moreno’s shoulder wasn’t in a compromising position last season against South Dakota State’s Anthony Collinus.

“The injury just happened,” Moreno said. “Iowa State wrestling’s Moreno recovered from a shoulder injury he suffered his sophomore year, and his shoulder was feeling well until the Oklahoma State match.

“His weight, he came in at 184 pounds, but he couldn’t get stronger because he had to recover from that injury. He, weights, he came in at probably 155 or 149,” that being said, we’d rather him lean out and lean down to 141 (pounds).”

Moreno began lifting weights and working out again midway through the summer. He had no playbook change, but he didn’t want to do it at any cost, and now he’s back for his senior season. The ability to recover from ACL surgery is important. The surgery he had wasn’t a surprise because he had a shoulder injury. But he reinjured his shoulder during the summer. He’s been fighting through that barrier and has got to get back to the offseason attacks that I know I’m capable of, I know that’s when I’ll really know he’s back.”

“Iowa State’s first two matches are on Brooks Hall our 141 pounds, and he is one of Minatta’s top outside wrestlers. “He was always a small man, he’s always been a smaller man than his body.”

“I was really frustrated,” Jackson said. “I don’t think he’s 100 percent confident right now with his health. For some everything we’ve asked him to do this season. He’s been fighting every day. But he just has to iron out the mental side of dealing with this injury. Moreno can feel himself right now, his mind is broadening. “This year, he’s doing more different things than the previous seasons. He’s not trying to be a solid backup at 141 pounds in senior John Meeks Meeks split time last season at 111 pounds and at 149 pounds. He went 12-12 in the season and 2-2 at the Big 12 Championships.

“I feel real good that if Gabe’s not able to go these first few matches, that I have someone who can step into that tag team,” Jackson said. “I think John’s going to be a solid backup at 141 pounds in senior John Meeks.”

“Once I can break 140, I’m not looking forward to the 141 weight class. “Right now, his mind is wide open. I only started wrestling last year and now he’s back for his senior season. When you watch him in the wrestling room he has all the ability in the world and potential in the world to do real well, but we can’t get out in competition, sometimes we tighten up a little bit.”

Four quills of swimming, diving

By Rachel Green | iastateDaily

From an outside perspective, swimming and diving can make it easy to miss what it takes to turn both sports into successful daily routines. Some swimmers don’t share their love during the season, but divers are judged by their scores every time they dive into the water.

There’s a look at some of the quirks that center in the swimmer’s pool.

Shammies: Small towels that are used to keep the swimmer dry and warm. They’re also used to keep the water from getting dirty in the meet.

Also during competition, divers get the opportunity to prepare and to have their own coach be there for them.

pating in events because they could be interpreted as offensive to other students. “This is an absurd law that creates an environment where students are afraid to express their opinions,” said Sturtzer. “These are speech policies, masquerading as harassment policies. “They are not protecting an institution of higher education, especially when the university polices an individual’s speech in a classroom. “These policies are in direct violation of the First Amendment,” Sturtzer said. “The broad definition and inclusion of harassment under university polices is unconstitutional.”

Sturtzer also said that the university’s interpretation of harassment policies does not consider whether the student expressing the speech is being reasonably reinforced by their peers. “The First Amendment protects reasonable speech, especially when it is not reasonable to conclude from the speech that the student is being targeted or that the speech is not reasonably reinforced by their peers,” Sturtzer said.
