Nader, Jameel McKay and Georges Niang — and the question of how healthy Mitrou-Long is after suffering from hip surgery still hangs in the air with remaining basketball potential.

"We have no facilities," Mitrou-Long said of the team's facilities on Oct. 21. "And when people look at you, they think we're small. We lost a lot of scoring, and a guy like myself who is old and injured. What can we do? I like that I love that it makes people play with a chip on their shoulder..."

Enduring Vietnam

With the celebration and re-rememberance that is being talked about leading up to Veterans Day, many people have been talking about the Vietnam War, which has been in the history books for more than 50 years.

Musician and former president of Dartmouth College and a Marine veteran James Wright gives a lecture on Thursday as part of the National Lutheran Church and Their War and Those Who Served," to an audience of about 300 people at the Memorial Lutheran Church at Iowa State.

He shared stories about the young troops felt when they had to make that climb. He also climbed Hamburger Hill in 1969. He shared a story about a young Minnesota man who was injured on Hamburger Hill and sang "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" as he was carried to the bottom of the hill to get medical aid. That young man died before he got to the bottom and had a hard time climbing it.

"We often ask if the young people who have theers to visit the tourist spots, but instead the areas where many had died. The young men who patrolled the canals found them to be scary," Wright said.

"I could truly understand why the young men who paraded the canals found them to be scary," Wright said.

Trump meets Obama, starts to prepare for move

By Alex Hansen

IOWA STATE DAILY

President-elect Donald Trump met with President Barack Obama on Thursday morning for the first time, as he began his 70-day transition to the presidency of the United States.

Trump and Obama met at the White House at 8 a.m. before Obama is expected to leave Washington, D.C. on Friday.

During their Thursday meeting, Trump and Obama discussed how to peacefully transfer power to the incoming administration, and the importance of maintaining the political process in the best interest of the nation.

Trump thanked Obama for service to the country and outlined the administration's plans to continue the transition to a peaceful and prosperous future.

President-elect Donald Trump meets with President Barack Obama on Thursday morning for the first time, as he begins his 70-day transition to the presidency of the United States.

On the annual Jingle Jog run, students, teachers, and Des Moines community members alike walked and ran around the Iowa State campus to support the anti-Trump movement and protest the upcoming presidential administration.

The crowd of students, teachers, and Des Moines community members reached hundreds of people, with some estimates putting the number as high as 1,500.

Inter-Residence Hall Association members convene at meeting in October.

Brittany Rutherford, program director for the residence halls, also shared her experience with the event.

"This is an opportunity for us to come together and say this is we want for the future," she said.

"This makes me so proud of our community," Ludovico said.

"I told my mom, 'Mom, I don't want to cry,'" said Deni Baird, a high school senior from Des Moines. "I'm not like a community and to get to know each other."

"I'm just afraid of what's going to happen," Ludovico said.

"Coming out was honestly one of the best things I did for me," she said.

"Our goal with this is to have everyone bringing signs- please put them in one location of the new residence halls," Ludovico said.

"There is just so much hate going on," Ludovico said.

"We have things in there like executive orders," she said.

"We are going to be against Donald Trump," she added.

"We are going to fight back," she said.

"This is an opportunity for everyone to say this is what we want," she said.

"Together we can make change. We're not going to let this happen," she added.

The sacrifices made by the men and women who serve our country are unspeakable. No number of words can ever make up for the missed opportunities, awakening nightmares or the empty chairs at dinner tables. I can wholeheartedly say I support our troops. The willingness to give up their time and lives for our freedom is something for which I am incapable of being thankful enough. That even though I have no family or friends who have been deployed, I have a job and a roof over my head and a full belly, I have to thank those who have given so much for me.

I am not alone in my feelings either. Ray Kuntz, an Iraq war vet, told the Huffington Post, “It seems contradictory, but I say you — you can be against the war and still support the troops.”

Iowa State, Kansas to square off in matchup of last-place Big 12 teams

Iowa State (1-8, 0-6 Big 12) will face Kansas (1-8, 0-6 Big 12) on Saturday in a matchup of two 1-8 teams. Both teams will be looking for their first conference win of the season.

Iowa State cornerback Jomal Wiltz tackles Kansas wide receiver Tre’ Parmalee Oct. 3, 2015, at Jack Trice Stadium. The Cyclones will play at Kansas on Saturday in a matchup of two 1-8 teams. Both teams will be looking for their first conference win of the season.

Iowa State nearly knocked off Oklahoma State before slipping in the final quarter. And, last Thursday, the Cyclones nearly came back against Texas. Iowa State played in front of a sellout, but a late touchdown sealed the loss.

Overall, Iowa State's average margin of defeat in the Big 12 this season is 21 points, and Kansas has lost those three games by a combined 39 points. In fact, the Jayhawks have averaged a 30-point loss to conference foes this season. But regardless of how Kansas has done so far this season, Campbell said he still sees a lot of talent on the field. He said, "They are a lot better than 1-4. They are really good football team this week. They are the best 1-4 team in the country, maybe one of the best 1-4 teams you ever have seen."

When looking at the numbers, Beatty isn't wrong. Iowa State has had several close calls with Big 12 opponents this season, losing to Kansas State (1-8, 0-6 Big 12) in the fourth quarter back in October. The next week, the Cyclones were nearly knocked off by Oklahoma State before slipping in the final quarter. And, last Thursday, the Cyclones nearly came back against Texas. Iowa State played in front of a sellout, but a late touchdown sealed the loss.

In fact, the Jayhawks have averaged a 30-point loss to conference foes this season. But regardless of how Kansas has done so far this season, Campbell said he still sees a lot of talent on the field. He said, "They are a lot better than 1-4. They are really good football team this week. They are the best 1-4 team in the country, maybe one of the best 1-4 teams y..."

Prohm attributed the youth and inexperience on the roster. "We've got to get better," coach Steve Prohm said. "I think this schedule is going to be good for this team because we do have some youth and inexperience in some areas." The Cyclones (0-0, 0-0 Big 12) will come in a couple of weeks when they travel to Florida for the Advocare Invitational to potentially take on the Gators in the potential face-off. "We've just got to get better," Prohm said. "If they can continue that kind of leadership and we can continue to stress being good defensively and continue to convert quickly from defense to offense, we can get up the floor quickly and make defenses pay." In his first season as head coach, Prohm has been a focus of his teams. "The emphasis. It's no secret. Lot of weapons, but defense is the main key; we just want to continue growing." The Iowa State Daily will publish a photo page to show the great work in the area. To submit photos use the hashtag #ISU and have your work published.

"I think our seniors have been terrific," Prohm said. "If they can continue that kind of leadership and we can continue to stress being good defensively and continue to convert quickly from defense to offense, we can get up the floor quickly and make defenses pay."

But in order for the Cyclones to outperform those national expectations, it’s going to come down to the seniors continuing to step up, performing on the court and helping others improve on defense and overall. "The seniors are the identity of the offens. My seniors said, ‘We have a lot of weapons, but defense is our identity. We’ve been putting it out there, coach Prohm has put it on us as long as time. That’s the reason why, we just want us to continue growing."

Prohm has been incorporating those newcomers gain experience rather than the team’s pre-season tours. "I think we’ve got a good team," coach Steve Prohm said. "I think the schedule is great for this team because we do have some youth and inexperience in some areas." The fast style of play has been a focus of his teams. "I think they have a terrific," said John Eden, sophomore in mechanical engineering. "It’s really familiar," said John Eden, sophomore in mechanical engineering. "I think it’s a step up from last year. We’ve been defense oriented. We’ve been putting it out there, coach Prohm has put it on us as long as time. That’s the reason why, we just want us to continue growing."

Another issue for the Cyclones to potentially take advantage of is the new players incorporated through the preseason. "He also has been getting more comfortable in the fast style of play," Prohm said. "I think the schedule is great for this team because we do have some youth and inexperience in some areas."
