Iowa State President Steven Leath's use of the university's planes revealed Tuesday cost the university tens of thousands of dollars in private donations, according to the Associated Press reporting that Leath also used the university's larger King Star plane.

The new revelations from the AP this week follow criticism from a hard-lining in 2013 to 2015 that resulted in nearly $12,000 in damages to another university-owned plane that Leath was able to pilot himself.

Leath, who is certified to pilot some of the planes, said in a statement the university was careful with its use of university-owned aircraft. New questions have now been raised following Tuesday’s reporting that Leath also used the university’s larger King Star planes.

“I think the fact that under this past administration of which Hillary Clinton was very proudly known as ‘the master of the art of spin,’ Pence said ‘I’m not’ in very proud of the fact that I come from a state that works. I added that in the state of Indiana, ‘We care, we’ve made record investments in education and infrastructure. I still believe that the federal government…’”

Cecile Richards, president of Planned Parenthood, speaks Tuesday to a small group at Stomping Grounds about why Planned Parenthood is the best pro-choice candidate in the upcoming election.

She urged voters to hit the polls early for Clinton and make sure everyone gets out and votes.

"Donald Trump doesn’t believe in women. He doesn’t believe in people of color. He doesn’t believe in people with disabilities; however, they actually became a part of the student’s lives. Sometimes I forget that having a dog with me is such a big deal," said Lauren Berglund, sophomore in child, adult and family services.

"The application process included an extensive medical report to show that I was physically able to work with people who have disabilities. But to also match the potential owner with a service animal is something," said Berglund.

Not only did the chapter receive the highest scholarship improvement for holding ourselves to a higher standard and pursuing excellence in academics, but the chapter was also one of the 13 chapters to receive the Owen Cup for the one who does best in all categories of scholarship, service, and involvement in the community.

"If you get below a 2.67 GPA you’re out of the club, and the scholarship advisors, said Colby Woodvine, the current chapter president. "We take pride in the culture of the house changed along with the scholarship program being applied. He said the house sort of turned into a large loving community to help each brother attain academic success."

Middle blocker Grace Lazard warms up before the Iowa State volleyball game against Iowa on Sept. 9 at Hilton Coliseum. The Cyclones are 8-6 on the season and will play Kansas on Wednesday.

"I have to kind of be an all-around player," said middle blocker Grace Lazard. "I've got mobility that I've never had before. I've got some restrictions on playing time, but I've got a better chance to get kills because of that."
Every morning seems to be a struggle to find something to wear for the day. During the morning, there is a cool breeze, no humidity and 60 degrees — perfect weather. By the time noon rolls around, humidity levels soar to extreme percentages and sweating through a long sleeve and jeans is inevitable. Then the next week you’re battling between a cold 40 degrees and midday humidity.

How can this problem be fixed? It’s simple: Layers, layers and more layers.

Here are easy ways to make an outfit fashionable without stressing and regretting it later on in the day.

4 ways to dress for fall

Top Layer

A COZY FLANNEL

In the morning, a flannel allows you to dress up your outfit and stay warm. In the example above, pairing the flannel with a cute jean skirt and a tank top will help you stay cool and ready to conquer the day.

When the weather starts to heat up a bit, the flannel can be wrapped around your waist as a cute accent piece. A flannel can be added to any style for a cute, fall season feel.

LOSING THE TOP LAYER: JEAN SKIRT

If class starts later in the day when the humidity starts kicking in, you can lose the top layer completely. A great layer-less piece is a simple jean skirt. It’s a fashionable look that pairs well with anything and will keep you comfortable throughout the day.

DISTRESSED BOYFRIEND JEANS

Boyfriend jeans are 100 percent in this fall season. The baggy feel makes wearing jeans comfortable when going to class, which isn’t as common in most other jean styles. Add the distressed look and ripped up holes to help air circulation flow — staying cool is made easier with these pants.

In the morning, the boyfriend jeans can be rolled down to keep warm, then rolled up as the heat climbs. A simple T-shirt over a tank top with Birkenstocks make the outfit a casual yet cute one for the day ahead. Swap a sweater for the T-shirt on colder days.

DIFFERENT LOOKS: BOYFRIEND JEANS WITH A FLANNEL

It’s time to roll up those jeans. Wearing a tank underneath your T-shirt will make it easy to change and store the shirt in your backpack, without taking up hardly any room.

Bottom Layer

A T-SHIRT DRESS WITH A FLANNEL

A flannel and a T-shirt dress put together is a simple style that doesn’t require much effort or changing. The T-shirt will help you stay cool and comfortable throughout the day and still look fashion-forward. The flannel functions as a layer and an accent piece.

Layering Hairstyles

TWO-SIDED BRAIDS

Braids are always a go-to in order to stay cool, yet still look cute for the day. This season, two-sided braids are coming back in style, making it appropriate to wear them out on the weekends or during the work week. The look can be paired with a classic Dutch Braid, although Fish-Tail, French and more will work for this look. Get creative!

HALF-UP, HALF-DOWN

The half-bun was a major Do last fall season, whereas the simple half-up, half-down Party-Pony look is dominating fall 2016. The look is the perfect way to get the hair out of your face, stay cool and change your usual hairstyle in a cute and fashionable way.

TOP BUN

This is by far the easiest and cutest look that anyone can pull off. This look definitely keeps hair out of your face, is the best way to stay cool and in a classic look that can never go wrong. It’s professional, fashionable and gives your hair a little extra volume. If your hair is thick, you should have no problem putting it up in little to no time. For thin-haired women, that does not seem to be the case.

A hair bun piece makes it incredibly easy for your hair to have a full, thick look and helps your hair stay in place all day long.

ON RELIGION

Hillary Clinton, a devout Christian, said last January, “I take very seriously my faith and my religion.” She believes that “faith makes you a more compassionate person and a more humble person.”

Donald Trump, on the other hand, said last January, “I don’t believe in religion.” He said he was “agnostic” about the afterlife and “I don’t know what I believe.”
