Candidates clash on debate stage for the first time

By Alex Connor @iowastatedaily.com

Donald Trump and Hillary Clinton squared off Monday night in the first presidential debate, aiming to boost their respective campaigns. The debate was held at Hofstra University in New York, and was moderated by NBC Nightly News Anchor Lester Holt.

The debate was the first of three scheduled to happen before the Nov. 8 election. The second debate will be Oct. 9, and the final debate will be Oct. 19.

Hard-fought battle

The debate was hard fought, with each candidate trying to get their message across as quickly as possible.

Trump

Trump said he would drain the swamp and that he would be a strong negotiator, saying he would stop bad deals and bring back jobs to the United States. He also said he would negotiate from a “position of strength.”

Clinton

Clinton said that she would be a “strong leader” and that she would make the country stronger. She also said that she would be a strong negotiator, and that she would negotiate from a “position of strength.”

The debate ended with Trump and Clinton shaking hands and the candidates promising to continue to hold debates in the coming weeks.

Student Government

Student Government has set up voter registration and election day equipment. Student Government leaders are working to get students excited and set up voter registration sites on campus.

Counsel also “looked at issues related to insurance policies,” and made a decision to change the damage caused by the plane. The damage was estimated at $12,000.

While flying back from North Carolina, Leath stopped in Bloomington, Illinois, to refuel. Leath was on a trip part-official school business.

Leath said he consulted with the Office of University Management and University Counsel, which determined his use of the plane was “allowed under Iowa State University policies.”

“Whatever comes down within a thunderstorm, even a microburst, is not preventable,” Leath said.

Sisko Dqg to headline first Acoustic Lounge

By Sarah Muller

Sisko Dqg, a musician, producer, singer-songwriter and spoken word poet, will be the debut musician on the Acoustic Lounge. The performers’ music is explained as indie folk, electronic and psychobilly. Sisko Dqg will perform one of his original songs, but un cursorily require IG D’Dritz and tags questions from Facebook.

The best ways to fail your first round of exams at Iowa State

DON’T SLEEP
Stay up all night cramming because you didn’t get enough studying in during the day. Skip it. If you’re only one zero in the grade book, you’ll have to study up.

GO OUT THE NIGHT BEFORE
Stay up all night partying and hangover will ruin your exam. Study is not the time to party and relax.

CHECK SOCIAL MEDIA
Libraries are overrun with people studying at the last minute. Some can handle schol- ers’ voices while studying, but you can handle your own.

The Iowa State campus also experienced flash flooding through Story County caused by a slow-moving low that passed across the area last week. The low remains over the area, with heavy rain expected. The Iowa Department of Natural Resources warned residents of the potential for flash flooding from the heavy rain. The Iowa Department of Natural Resources also has a website with resources and information on how to stay safe and rescue from flooding or a flooding event.

Can police records be forever sealed?

By James Clowes, The Des Moines Register

Monica Spears wants to move on from her past. But like dozens of others this year, she was shut down by the Iowa Department of Human Rights.

A routine is the cornerstone of the modern interpretation of a 45-year-old law in which the department claims any document created or collected during an investigation can be consid-ed confidential. That includes records involving domestic abuse or sexual violence.

Sparks tested her limits in October in Des Moines, Iowa’s Black Hawk Fire Department. She was found shot to death in a car. Sparks’ boyfriend, she said, was her father’s killer.

Spears said the department’s response to her request for records slowed her plans to move to another state.

“The Department of Public Safety, which is part of 48 out of 59 reports received during the past six months of 2016, is a closed record investigation found. And of the 48, 47 are based on the investigative file ex-duced during the investigation foretmant. There is no further action unters. A 2016 Iowa law made it more difficult for law enforcement agencies to release records. It’s a move to protect the rights of the victims.

Clinton clearly the winner in presidential debate Monday

President Clinton has clearly come out the winner in what has been a very difficult and contentious debate. In the first presidential debate held by NBC's Nightline Host, the nation's event was one of the most anticipated political debates of the year. Viewers were tuned to the best, and worst, of both candidates. At the end of the night, however, a clear victor emerged.

Hillary Clinton did everything she needed to do and walked away with what the ISU Editorial Board believes was a clear victory. While neither Clinton nor Trump was perfect during the debate and both had issues to work on, Clinton's performance was better than Trump's.

Clinton addressed the issue of her handling classified information in the same manner as she offered clear and detailed answers on her plan to do so and walked away with what the ISD Editorial Board believes was a clear victory. Hillary Clinton did everything she needed to do and walked away with what the ISU Editorial Board believes was a clear victory. From the beginning of the night, Clinton was in control and delivered a strong argument.
Softball ready to square off against Iowa Central

By Aaron Marner #@Iowastatedaily.com

After wins over Western (Wisconsin) and DMACC, the Iowa State softball team will be squared off against Iowa Central this weekend for its third game of the fall season at 4 p.m. Tuesday. This is Iowa State’s first time in the middle of the course as it has run alone in the past.

“We’re looking forward to going out there and seeing what we can do. We’ve been working on something quite a bit with Iowa Central in the past and we’ll know better with that. I find that the girls are a bit more into this,” said Coach Sudbury.

The team came back from this and improved the second-place finish with an additional three runs scored. The Cyclones run 20th at the Roy Griak Invitational on Saturday. The second-place finish was showing the run maturity of each runner.

On their opponent

Clinton also asked the candidates questions specifically targeted toward them, such as: "Why is your judgment better than your opponent’s?" and "Are you ready to accept the outcome of this election?"

Clinton countered, saying Clinton “doesn’t have the stamina” to be president. She said she didn’t have the stamina, "I don’t believe Hillary has the stamina," Trump said, adding later that Clinton has experienced “it’s bad experience.”

Clinton countered, saying Trump can “talk to her about stamina” as he travels to 12 or 12 countries where he makes national deals, discusses peace talks and spends time with community leaders coming from a congressional background. However, she was able to go on at least an hour throughout the night, saying they both would support the outcome of the election.

“People the whole country thought she understood this election is up to you,” Clinton said. “I hope you will put out and vote.”

Trump added, “I want to make America great again. But we are a nation that is sick of losing. We are a nation that can have the best of the world. We don’t think Hillary can do it. (But if she can do it, that would be great.)"

The next presidential debate will take place Oct. 9 in a town meeting format in Iowa City. Election officials have said which half of the questions will be posed by the moderator and which half will be posed by the audience.

The debate will take place at Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri.

Along with the ISU Theatre’s production of “The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail,” the ISU Theatre will also present “The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail,” a play based on the life of Henry David Thoreau. The show has been a long-time favorite of the ISU community and features a cast of four actors performing in front of a live audience. The performance will take place on October 3-4 in Pearson Hall and is open to the public. Tickets can be purchased at the ISU Theatre box office or online at isutheatre.iastate.edu.
