TEXTBOOK SHOPPING?

COMPARE PRICES AND BUY FROM MULTIPLE RETAILERS ON ONE SITE!

CLICK COMPARE SAVE

PRICE COMPARISON TOOL

SHOP AROUND BEFORE YOU BUY! WWW.ISUBOOKSTORE.COM

PRICE COMPARISON TOOL ALLOWS YOU TO COMPARE PRICES FROM MULTIPLE RETAILERS AND BUY ALL YOUR TEXTBOOKS AT ONCE!

Try the new comparison tool and compare prices from the Iowa State Book Store and multiple websites. Choose from new, used, and rental textbooks. You get the best deal no matter what. It’s your one stop shop for all your textbook needs!

I CHOOSE UBS!

www.isubookstore.com
MEMORIAL UNION • AMES, IOWA • 515-294-1131
Features

Anxieties
gen in the way
p. 10 by Devon O'Brien

College Jobs
earning $ for your degree
p. 14

Quickies

Clickers
the frustration with technology
p. 6 by Abbey Necola

Stereotypes
the major judgements we all make by Devon O'Brien & Matt Wettengel
p. 8

Internships
making connections for the future
p. 26 by Abby Gilman

Loans
pay up
p. 23 by Mindi Price

Dorm Living
not so high expectations
p. 20

Student Affairs
is making a good grade worth it
p. 28 by Katherine Marcheski

Course Eval
it's your turn to give the grades
p. 30 by Matt Wettengel
LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

It’s hard to examine or evaluate our education while confined within its years. Until a certain age, we all attend school. Most of us graduate high school. Some of us enroll at a college or university. But at what point, aside from a statutory angle, does our education transition from imperative to optional? That depends on an individual’s goals. More importantly, does our education value academic learning or the appropriate achievement of certain established benchmarks? While America’s educational system may be governed by official policies and curriculum, individual education differentiates those driven by societal norms from those driven by a more personal motivation.

This year’s final issue of Ethos is devoted to education at Iowa State, in the broadest sense. We realize both the incredible diversity and the inherent likenesses within a student population of this magnitude by offering criticism, praise and analysis, with a bit of humor sprinkled in. As you enjoy the Iowa State adventure, pause for a moment to enjoy your own.

CORRIN HATALA
Editor in Chief