THAT FIRST KISS—AH, ME!

Never before had they been alone. But tonight, somehow, the others had withdrawn and left them—two alone on the broad stretch of green.
He had seen her before, of course, in the crowd. Few had not seen and admired her incredible fairness. Once he had brushed against her—and the remembered quivering thrill of that contact startled him anew.
Could nothing bring them together? He hesitated, but she remained motioness—waiting perhaps—gleaming fair in the pale light. Then an impulse, a power greater than he, impelled him to her. And she waited, as dark and shining, he drew near.
They touched—and with a soft whispering sigh—they kissed.
And parted—each billiard ball rolling over to the cushion.

What follows graduation

Most graduates of the 4-year accredited forestry course at Iowa State College find employment in one of the following branches of the profession:

1. U. S. Forest Service
2. Other federal agencies
3. Lumber companies
4. Commercial firms which utilize forest products

Q. What are the advantages of taking the 5-year forestry course?

A. The 5-year course permits students to supplement the regular forestry work with technical and supporting courses for specialization in related fields as follows:

1. Forestry and Conservation Major leads to national and state forest administration, soil conservation work and positions with state and federal agencies.

2. Forest Utilization Major leads to employment with lumber companies, pulp and paper companies, and other concerns in the forest utilization field.

3. Forestry and Range Management Major leads to specialized work in grazing activities on state and national forests and on the public domain.

4. Forestry and Wild Life Management Major offers sufficient specialization to provide for proper administration of wild life activities on national, state or private lands, including the U. S. Forest Service, the Biological Survey, Indian Service, state conservation department and private game preserves.

Graduate Work

Opportunity is given forestry graduates of Iowa State College or other accredited forestry schools to pursue work for a master of science degree in the fields of forest management, grazing management, or forest utilization.

Inquiries regarding the Forestry course may be addressed to the Forestry Department or the Registrar.

The “multiple use” policy of the Forest Service provides for the management of our timberlands, not only for the production of lumber products, but for the development of aesthetic, social, and recreational values as well.

Similarly, Memorial Union provides, in addition to the technical training offered by college courses, a well-rounded cultural background for Iowa State students, faculty, and alumni.
