TO ALL OF US who are engaged, in any way, in the forest industries is delegated a responsibility of vital importance to our nation's future. Ours is the double duty of maintaining the supply of forest products demanded for the successful prosecution of the war while preserving our forest resources for the needs of tomorrow.

THE TIMBERMAN considers it a privilege to be a means of accumulating and disseminating information and facts which will assist in seeing this job through.

To you upon whose shoulders a portion of this burden rests THE TIMBERMAN extends an invitation to make regular use of its pages in keeping abreast of current trends, developments and activities in the Western lumber field. Forestry, sawmilling, plywood, box and woodworking are all given important attention.
Every issue is full of facts and ideas which are helpful in making the necessary adjustments in policies and methods to win the "battle of production." The subscription rate is but $3.00 annually. We shall welcome you as a regular reader of THE TIMBER-MAN. Use the enclosed order form TODAY.

Your subscription will start with the March number. As an added expression of appreciation we will send you a complimentary copy of the February issue which contains two features in themselves well worth the cost of a year's subscription to many lumbermen and loggers.

Some 574 individual mill lumber production records for 1941 are shown. (Others will appear in the March issue.) "More Trees—More Paper" describes the plans now employed by a major organization for a perpetual timber supply.

In Forest administration the increasing importance of recreation and human relations is gaining recognition.

In College, as in our National Forests, we recognize a conservation of human resources and an enrichment of lives through recreation and social relationships.

The Memorial Union, Our College Club, is Iowa State's center of friendship, recreation and culture.

BARTLETT

Tree Trimming Tools

No. 114B—26 in. Special Utility Saw
Big, husky, streamlined teeth make this the fastest cutting saw we have ever offered; yet cuts are clean and the operator finds it easy to use and easy to recondition.

No. 127—Paragon Saw
This curved blade, draw cut pruning saw is ideal for all-around pruning. Best quality saw steel. Easy grip handle. 26" to 26" blades.

No. 44 Pole Saw
Fast-cutting, adjustable pole saw. Made in one-piece poles 6 to 16 ft. or in sectional poles of 4, 6 or 8 ft. sections joined together with our steel connecting sleeve. Several types of blade available. No. 4402-16 inches, has peg tooth, 7 per inch. For branches 13/4" and less, we recommend our No. 1-W Pulley Type Tree Trimmer with compound-lever, side-cutting blade.

No. 777—26"
Two Hand Pruner
A rugged, easy-cutting tool, this has hardened, drop forged blade and hook, white ash handles. Also furnished with 10" strap ferrules. Plain ferrule shown.

Catalog free on request.

FORESTRY INSTRUCTION in the classroom at Iowa State College is well-integrated with work in the field.

FORESTRY WITH PRACTICE takes these forms at Iowa State:
- Practical nursery experience and opportunity to observe practical forest management plans in operation in the vicinity of Ames.
- Two summer camps—one required and one optional.
- In addition to the regular 4-year course, a 5-year course with specialization in Forestry and Conservation, Forest Utilization, Forestry and Range Management, and Forestry and Wild Life Management.

FORESTRY INSTRUCTION at Iowa State keeps pace with the war effort by:
- Recognition of the fact that war draws heavily upon timber resources and that protection of forests against fire and other destructive agencies is now even more important than in peace.
- A speeded-up program of instruction that permits students to complete the 4-year course in 3 calendar years plus summer camp.

Inquiries regarding undergraduate and graduate training in Forestry may be addressed either to the Forestry Department or the Registrar.
