To Sleep

The black fog stymies
Feeble flashes from weakening grey soldiers
To repulse the numbing conqueror.

It is creeping,
This rotting decay of deadened senses,
Eating its way to total
Unconscious coma.

Green and yellow
Visions dazzle sightless eyes,
While unsorted herds of data
Gallop down empty paths.

Nightmare, feed elsewhere!
Stir not the fall on pasture
With biting gooves
Shod with rusty memories

Forged in the fourth dimension
Of intruding reality.

John J. Pusey, Sci., Jr.
