A Special Man

Dr. Dwight Bensch was honored with an Outstanding Teacher Award. One of six ISU faculty so honored, he was selected by the College of Agriculture.

Departing Faculty

At the end of February 1977, John C. Gordon left Iowa State University to accept a position as head of the Forest Science Department, Oregon State University School of Forestry.

Dr. Gordon received his B.S. in Forest Management from Iowa State University, went to the University of Helsinki to study silviculture, then returned to Ames to earn his Ph.D. in Plant Physiology-Silviculture in 1966. He was an Instructor of Forestry at I.S.U. from 1965-1966, then spent four years with the U.S. Forest Service, N.C. Station investigating the physiology of wood formation. Dr. Gordon returned to I.S.U. in 1970 as an Associate Professor of Forestry, and was promoted to Professor in 1973.

The staff of the Ames Forester joins the students and faculty of the Forestry Department in wishing Dr. Gordon continued success in his professional endeavors.

Chapter Forester

This society was set up in 1908 at the University of Washington to encourage and foster high standards of scholarship and personal performance in the forestry and natural resources profession. Here at Iowa State University we have a chapter, Alpha Gamma, which was established in 1965. Since then, Juniors and above who show excellence
