The Society of American Foresters is a non-profit organization for professional foresters in the United States. SAF's mission is to advance education and technology, to establish professional excellence, and to guarantee continued health and use of forest ecosystems.

As members, we receive outstanding member benefits. For starters, we receive weekly and monthly publications which keep us informed on all current events in forestry. Networking opportunities with experienced professionals and potential employers, and exposure to specialty fields within the profession also rank among the benefits. Attending the SAF National Convention allows us the ability to do all cash in on these benefits. It is a prime opportunity to meet and learn from these professionals, such as Richard Simmons, who teach us how to sweat to the oldies and love every minute of it (see next page).
