A Meal in One Dish

Ardith Wick
Iowa State College

Follow this and additional works at: http://lib.dr.iastate.edu/homemaker

Part of the Home Economics Commons

Recommended Citation
Wick, Ardith (1934) "A Meal in One Dish," The Iowa Homemaker: Vol. 14 : No. 3 , Article 10.
Available at: http://lib.dr.iastate.edu/homemaker/vol14/iss3/10

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Publications at Iowa State University Digital Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Homemaker by an authorized editor of Iowa State University Digital Repository. For more information, please contact digirep@iastate.edu.
Coeds Plan Their Rooms

(Continued from page 1)

even be a literary trend or a keen interest in babies.

When these roommates continued the "We're not settled yet, but . . . " it was evident that they both were interested in nature. Plants are to be added to their rooms—in bright colored pots. Ivy and wandering jew it'll be at first, for, the one girl reasons, they grow easily and rapidly. And also a bouquet of buttercup because not only is it inexpensive, but it adds interesting color. Then in time for final exams they hope to have bulbs blooming. One of the roommates hints that the flowers might help her through exams, brighten her spirits, perhaps.

"Bumps mustn't have a broken leg. Here, shove in some more gingham dog in the making. The roommates needn't have bothered to explain that they had an especial liking for dogs, for Bumps was only one of their dog kingdom. Already there were dog bookends, dog pictures, dog this and dog that in the room.

Another girl was taking her stretching exercises—hanging this and that, including souvenirs from her summer's vacation trip.

Coding hobbies crop out in one way or another, inexpensively, too. One girl, particularly fond of poetry, is satisfying her interest without spending a cent. For years she has collected poetry here and there, and now she is clipping verses offer many possibilities. A mock chicken a la king may be concocted by the addition of pimento and mushroom. When the white sauce and tuna are served with baking powder biscuits, a very favorable substitute for chicken pie is obtained, especially if onion and celery seed have been used effectively in the sauce. Tuna is well named chicken of the sea.

In addition to the numerous variations that depend on the originality of the one who does the cooking is the question of price. It is a pleasant surprise to find that tuna fish, which is often considered expensive, really does not cost so much—not more than salmon—and, using such recipes as the above, a 25 cent can will serve six. So try tuna sometime—you'll like it.

Highly refined flour requires less fat.

Searing does brown the roast and gives a delicious flavor to the outside slices and the gravy.

A roast put in the pan with the fat side up bastes itself as the fat melts and cooks out of the meat.

In the early years of the college every student was required by law to labor 2½ hours each day throughout the college year. The young women worked in the laundry, the dining room and the kitchen.

Here's a new use for all those blotters that are continually being left on your doorstep by cleaners, tailors, and assorted tradesmen. Use them instead of brown paper to drain things on—sardines, croquettes, codfish balls, or anything fried in deep fat.