Special thanks to the Iowa Soybean Association

ICM Newsletter
Special thanks to the Iowa Soybean Association

Abstract
The ICM newsletter staff thanks the Iowa Soybean Association (ISA) and Iowa’s soybean checkoff for their financial support of this special soybean issue of the newsletter. Your soybean checkoff. Delivering results.

Disciplines
Agricultural Education
Special thanks to the Iowa Soybean Association

The ICM newsletter staff thanks the Iowa Soybean Association (ISA) and Iowa’s soybean checkoff for their financial support of this special soybean issue of the newsletter. Your soybean checkoff. Delivering results.

ISA develops policies and programs that help farmers expand profit opportunities while promoting environmentally sensitive production practices using soybean checkoff dollars and other resources. ISA is governed by an elected board of 21 volunteer farmers and serves about 6,000 members throughout the state.

Organized in 1964 by a group of Iowa farmers who came together with a common goal, ISA works to increase the profitability of soybean production in Iowa. In 1964, producers in the United States grew 701 million bushels of soybeans at a price of $2.62 per bushel. Iowa is always a top soybean-producing state, and in 2006, it grew 510 million bushels of soybeans at an average sales price of $6.25 per bushel.

Visit ISAs Web site at www.iasoybeans.com/index.html to learn more about soybean production in Iowa.

Integrated Crop Management is published by Iowa State University Extension, with funding support from the Integrated Pest Management program. Subscriptions are available for $55 a year from the Extension Distribution Center at ISU. To subscribe or change the address of a current subscription, write to 119 Printing and Publications Building, Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa 50011 or call 515-294-5247. Please indicate that you are inquiring about Integrated Crop Management. Marlin E. Rice, Department of Entomology, is executive editor of ICM newsletter; Keven Arrowsmith, Extension Communications and Marketing, is managing editor; and Donna Halloum, Information Technology Services, is production designer.