New Leaders Guide Students

THIS fall the Division of Home Economics welcomed two new staff members, Dr. Grace Augustine, head of the Department of Institution Management and Dr. Gladys Everson, associate professor of foods and nutrition. A third member, Dr. Ercel Eppright, will arrive in June to assume her duties as head of the Department of Foods and Nutrition.

Dr. Augustine attended Columbia University in New York where she received her bachelor of science, master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, scholastic honorary. Her book, Some Aspects of Management of College Residence Halls for Women, is used as a text in the Department of Institution Management. She has written articles for the Journal of Home Economics and the Journal of the American Dietetic Association.

She remained at Columbia as an associate in the Department of Institution Management of the Teachers' College from 1927-38. Following this she became head of the Institution Management Department at Texas State College for Women, where she remained until this year.

Traveling and sampling unusual foods are Dr. Augustine's favorite hobbies. While traveling abroad she visited university residence halls, hospital kitchens and restaurants. One place of particular interest to her was the American University Hospital at Beirut, Syria, because one of her graduate students from Columbia was the head dietitian. Miss Augustine also observed the American hospitals and schools in Greece and Turkey. For relaxation Dr. Augustine prefers hiking, riding, music and bridge.

Dr. Eppright will leave Texas State College for Women as director of the Department of Home Economics when she comes to Iowa State in June. She received her bachelor of science degree from the University of Texas and her degree of doctor of philosophy from Yale University. She is a member of Phi Lambda, Omicron Nu, Sigma Xi, Phi Upsilon Omicron, Phi Theta Kappa and Delta Kappa Gamma.

Dr. Eppright has a daughter who is a freshman at the Texas State College for Women and a son who is a marine overseas. She is frequently called upon to prepare articles for national publications. Dr. Eppright spent last summer in the research laboratory of the Children's Fund of Michigan, analyzing data relating to mineral metabolism of children.

Dr. Everson, the new associate professor of foods and nutrition, came to Iowa State from Wayne University, Detroit, Mich., where she was assistant professor of nutrition. Her outside interests include movies, swimming, riding, bridge and meeting people.

Dr. Everson received her bachelor of science and doctor of philosophy degrees from the University of Wisconsin and her master of science from the University of Iowa. She is a member of Sigma Xi, Iota Sigma Pi and Sigma Delta Epsilon. She spends long hours in the research laboratory and articles which she has written on her research in foods and nutrition have appeared in national publications.
