Official urges reduction in nuclear arms

By Thana Himes

Rose Gottemoeller, Bureau of Arms Control assistant secretary of state and chief negotiator and assistant secretary of state and chief negotiator, urged a reduction in nuclear arms during her lecture Wednesday at the Memorial Union.

“It is imperative that the youth of today recognize the threat that nuclear armaments pose on our lives and that they will be the ones to continue the non-proliferation efforts,” Gottemoeller said.

“Today’s problems are not going to be solved in my lifetime. It is up to the next generation to make sure the efforts go on.”

The non-START Treaty if passed by Congress, will reduce the number of deployed offensive nuclear weapons of both the United States and the Russian Federation to roughly 1,550 missiles, missiles and warheads.

“Take them off the table, that would be a very significant step,” Gottemoeller said.

“We’re doing our best to bring this to an acceptable conclusion.”

Calling leading to career

Iowa State and Northern Illinois took their rivalry to the pool

Wednesday night. The Cyclones took down the Panthers 147-89.

"I thought we really did well," said北方 Illinois "We had a lot of people that were new to us this year, so this was a new experience. The Cyclones have had a tough time getting going through the team, but it didn't seem to show in their meet against Missouri-Madison.

Missouri-Madison lost at the 300-yard freestyle with a time of 3:27.75. It was the last of a strong showing in the 300-yard freestyle, which

Iowa State took in the 400-yard freestyle, winning by just 35 points of the game. The Cyclones are looking for more consistency later this season as they try to focus on defense,

The team will be working on their consistency and speed in the water. They will be looking to improve their performance in the freestyle races.

Midwest standouts sign on for '11 season

By Teria Correa

Three high school seniors signed letter of intent to play for the Cyclones this fall. Among the signees was Christy Johnson-Lynch, the 2010 ISU volleyball team's co-captain.

"I really wanted to go to Iowa State," said Johnson-Lynch. "I've been here for so long now, and I just wanted to continue my career here."

The 2010 Freshman class consists of four total signees, including two from the Kansas City metro area and two from from out of town. She will be joining the Cyclones as a defensive specialist.

Her signing also marks the end of an era for the Cyclones as Johnson-Lynch will be the last of the 2010 class to sign. She will be joining the Cyclones as a setter.

Johnson-Lynch will be the final piece to the puzzle for the Cyclones as she will be joining the team as a sophomore. She has been a key player for the Cyclones throughout her career at ISU, including her time as a junior. She will be joining the team as a sophomore and will be looking to continue her success in her final year.

Consortium continues tradition of 400-year-old ‘pop’ songs

By Alliyson Suess

First hundred years ago, dance tunes and bal- lads played on instruments like the lute and citterns were popular among people. Though the music didn’t fit the style of music in the way we think of music these days, people still loved it.

The Baltimore Consort formed in 1985, and has carried the traditions of popular early music into modern audiences. The Consort will perform next weekend at the City Auditorium.

Consortium’s director of early music and band director, will perform songs including “Danzon.”

What?

To everyone who skips class and sleeps or watches TV in their dorm room instead. I hope you enjoy it. Because this is an expensive vacation you are taking just sayin’

Sorry for buying right before your final exam this morning. It was a surprise to me too.

To the guy who always turns on the lights in World Food house, are you afraid of the dark?

Did you miss the day in preschool when you learned to cover your mouth when you coughed?

Playing bags at the ‘Avoid the Stork’ tent. do I need a 6 pack make it in?

To the girl who had beer, cookies and wine on her hand... you know what year it was.

To the people who come to class 30 minutes late and class gets out 15 minutes early. ‘You suck at life. Just sayin’

Dear person who hides people wearing campaign signs over it. ‘You can’t see us anyway.’ heh...

To the guy I’ve seen just sayin’ on the streets and ‘I enjoy vagina’ shirt. ‘You’re probably going to die alone.

2% extra credit on the final for showing up in class and paying attention! Absolutely!

Somewhere listening to AC/DC and Bon Jovi makes it easier to study for tests...

Who is Dougie and why do people keep trying to teach me how to do him?

To the girl in my computer science class who just helped some kid cheat on our assignment over WebCT... maybe next time you shouldn’t e-mail it to the class. Just sayin’

When or less. We still love you.

To the bikers on campus, you are required to stop at stop signs too!! If you don’t you will be my friend.

There are far too many easily offended Harry Potter freaks here to refer to who say ‘Hogwarts’ or ‘Harry Potter’ at the top of my lungs. I hope you read a book, or better yet watch the movies.

Submit your LMAO(ing) or just sayin’ to iowastatedaily.com/fun-games/
