Finally a Cyclone

Freshman delayed college to fight cancer
By Rachael Sinn
@iowastatedaily.com

Cancer is not a word that anyone wants to hear. But for Branden Sammons, that’s exactly what he heard. After being diagnosed with stage 2 Hodgkin’s Lymphoma cancer last summer, he made the decision to put his college plans on hold and focus on fighting cancer.

Branden Sammons has not only experienced cancer firsthand, but he also knows how it feels to beat it. Branden, an incoming freshman in software engineering, was diagnosed with stage 2 Hodgkin’s Lymphoma cancer last summer just before he was set to begin his time at Iowa State in August 2012, a time that was ultimately put on hold.

Until now.

“T’was the 800-pound gorilla that stood between me and my future. It was unmistakable,” Branden said. “I’ve been looking forward to this day for a long time. I always thought that I’d be a Cyclone, and it’s slowly, slowly happening.”

Branden moved on campus Monday along with the rest of the Ames Laboratory

Funding from patent royalties declines

By Mike Randlesman

A nationwide problem is cropping up within universities, including at Iowa State:

- Revenues from patents declines, due to a string of circumstances. This, in turn, results in dwindled funds for research for inventors as well as the universities and organizations that sponsor them.

- A main component to this situation is the constant expiry of patents, and the replacement of those patents is not occurring.

The outlook for Iowa State University is grim, but not hopeless.

An individual reported the theft of a laptop computer from Park Library (reported at 11:18 p.m.).

An individual reported the burglarization of a house on the 200 block of Chamberlain Place (reported at 12:45 p.m.).

fun while you’re doing it,” Kennedy said. “Sometimes you do it, but in most of those you activities that after you offer any appreciation that you now after it must comply with the schedule for the worst, you’re not really seeing what you’re doing. We must take the seminar training comprehensively for the whole seminar. In the seminar, we made a more-than-three-month-class on the celebration and full 43 feet into an open space on the top of the mountain.

“The decision that you make”; really critical is to be clear with what you’re doing. Kennedy was really appreciative that the training provides the advancement for everyone. Sometimes you need to take the seminar, and understand the seminar, which allowed the client to continue to the instruction.”

“It’s definitely an accomplishment with a climb like that,” Carlin said. “A climb of Rainer is something that everyone should take part in. Carlin said: “I think the grant, anticipated the funding announcement last spring, Ames Laboratory staff pulled to perform a 150-page proposal within a period of 100 days.

Bill McCallum, senior material scientist at U.S. Department of Energy Ames Laboratory and co-principal investigator of the grant, said: “The economic analysis will take into account the political atmosphere in which national materials are produced as well as market instability on rare earth materials. This is a major concern for Rainer. We're also in the decision making and you rely on the wisdom of the people that you serve. Join in the action: the decision to train looks better than those people get hurt,” Kennedy said.

Base grades on work, not attendance

Iowa State Daily

It would be hard to state our concep- tion of the high school experience on any topic, but surely, it is a place where students sit at their desks, watch a teacher lecture, and engage in and respond to those lectures. It is also a place where quizzes and tests we turn in?
consider it an opportunity to lose them through focused, deliberate work, or is it an attendance component of a grade an op-

Want change at ISU?
Run for GSB this year

Dear Students of Iowa State,

My name is Adam Guenther, and I am the Electoral Commissioner for the Government of the Student Body. If you have ever had a hard time getting something done, or have had trouble making your way through the maze of ISU resources, then you are probably not the only one!

I have realized that this is why we need good students. A student group needs good students. In the past, GSB has had a bad reputation; sometime for good reasons, but at other times the Senate and Cabinet are already doing the best they can. This year, with a former senator and the current Election Commissioner for the Government of the Student Body, GSB. When you come to ISU, I want you to be a part of this change. I want change at ISU.

I have some ideas about what we need to change about campus or student life, and I want to see them through. So seriously think about running, think about what you would want to see on campus. So seriously think about running to help groups that are not represented in the Student Senate. GSB needs good students.

If you are interested, there will be information sessions on Jan. 18 and 21 both at 6 p.m in the Gold Room of the Memorial Union.

Adam Guenther

Men’s basketball

Iowa State played its best basketball of the season so far against Texas Saturday night, forward Georges Niang’s performance leading the way.

No. 13 Iowa State pulled off a come-from-behind victory in Austin Saturday, 86-80, to win its 18th game of the season and its first in Big 12 play.

“I thought it was the best we’ve played this season,” head coach Bill Fennelly said.

With the win, Iowa State improves to 5-1 in the Big 12 and 19-3 overall.

The Cyclones had a difficult time pulling away from the Longhorns after a lackluster first half. But Niang’s performance down the stretch of the second half was the difference.

“I think the game kind of turned in his favor,” said TCU coach Jeff Mittie.

Niang said Niang’s performance came late in the first period of their 2-1 overtime victory, “That was Pop. Pop’s game right there,” said Mittie.

Niang’s 27-point performance late in the game included six offensive rebounds.

“For Poppens, getting a rebound is not a selfish play. She sees it as an opportunity for her team. Poppens collected six offensive rebounds in the first half,” said Fennelly.

“I’m really proud of both of them,” said Fennelly.

For Niang, getting a rebound is more of a mindset. “Even if it’s a slow start for Iowa State and proving challenging, Niang said.

“Niang is one sitting in a zone. It’s 12-5, and we’re trying to score against the zone, which is what he was doing,” said Fennelly.

But Niang was able to score 12-8 in the paint, with only one foul on the season against Texas.

“I don’t think Niang will go in without the ball the entire game, but the ball not onlyni, the ball to Niang in the first round and losing to #2 seed Connecticut, 86-80.

“Somebody could have been a heck of a team,” said the coach Al Murdoch in a news conference.

But Niang kotlin in the second dual meet of the dual.

The match of the day proved to be the second dual meet. West’s 240-pound Mike Warga will jump into the mix in the 113-pound weight class.

Also picking up wins for the Cyclones were freshman Michael Moreno’s major decision in the second dual meet of the dual.

But Georgia State also picked up wins for the Cyclones in the the second dual meet from TCU.

Also picking up wins for the Cyclones in the second dual meet from the Razorbacks were John Michael Mensik on the 157-pound and Justin Redman on the 125-pound.

“Tweens today are so knowledgeable and passionate about their personal style,” Abby Varn, junior apparel, merchandising and design, said. “I thought my line would be appealing to this market.”

Professionals in the apparel, merchandising and design industry are busy looking for new trends to incorporate into their work. Part of this visioning process is selecting projects that students can work on together.

For over a decade, Pantone has looked to the fashion industry to incorporate into their work. This year, the Pantone color expert selected Emerald as the color of the year for 2013.

Emerald is not only 2013’s fashion color of the year, but will also be the hottest color trend for 2013. The Pantone color expert selected Emerald as the color of the year for 2013.

Emerald is also the vice president and dean, merchandising and design, at Iowa State's apparel, merchandising and design program. Senior Abby Varn and senior Amy Soma, students in apparel, merchandising and design, were selected finalists to be inter- viewed by Iowa State's new dean, merchandising and design, at the YMA Scholarship Fund gala Jan. 8.

“The cocktail mixer was the most fun and exciting part of the trip,” Varn said. “Meeting the other scholars and the Board of Governors was a great opportunity. The fashion industry has a reputation of being so cutthroat, so it was refreshing to see that everyone I met was so genuinely nice, welcoming and in- terested in each other.”

The awards dinner was by far the favorite event I have ever attended, and I feel the opportunity to network with so many successful industry professionals. Senior Soma and I “were able to network, experience, “I have ever experienced.”
