Government shuts down as Congress fails to compromise

Members of Congress failed to come up with a compromise on Monday night, the eve of a government shutdown. This is the first time this has taken place in 17 years.

The Senate and House of Representatives cobbled together proposals and, in one house of Congress, in one branch of government didn’t get to dust down the entire government just to figure out the results of an election, Obama said on Monday before Congress missed the midnight deadline.

The latest of these proposals was the House, which would have further reduced the stimulus and other government funding, according to the Associated Press. It was voted down by the Senate, leaving approximately two hours before the government stops paying for itself.

"The American people don’t want a shutdown, and neither do I," said House Speaker John Boehner on Monday evening. "I didn’t come here to shut down the government."

The Associated Press reported that non-defence federal employees would be furloughed as a result of a government shutdown, in addition to other consequences both immediate and longer term.

Obama signed a Pay Check Protection Act on Monday evening to assure that troops would be paid when the shutdown occurred on Tuesday at midnight.

This is a very nasty time in the history of the country," said Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, speaking from the Washington Post. "It’s hard to believe that people who are suffering will be affected." The last time the government shutdown took place was in 1995.

E-cigarettes were invented in the 1980s, but have only recently become popular in the United States. These e-cigarettes aren’t currently regulated by the Food and Drug Administration.

E-cigarettes have liquid nicotine in them that turns into the vapor that is inhaled. "It is a product that has the same nicotine drug that is in tobacco," said Dr. Jay Brown, specialist in allergy and immunology at McFarland Clinic in Ames.

In 2013, approximately 200 brands of electronic cigarettes were on the market. The Vapor Electronic Cigarette Association, the national body that represents electronic cigarettes, also has research showing that sleep patterns are an essential component of all kinds of cigarettes. "A lot of the particulars and other things that are involved in the combustion of tobacco leaves e-cigarettes," Brown said.

According to the National Sleep Foundation, the lack of tobacco and other chemicals that exist in electronic cigarettes are the reason why they are less harmful and not as toxic as regular cigarettes. "A big concern of the critics is that they are not regulated," said Dr. Cosette Scallon, physician at the Thielson Student Health Center. "Kids are smoking them."

The FDA has not regulated e-cigarettes yet and the lack of regulation is an issue for Long, Scallon said. "A lot of the particulars and other things that are involved in the combustion of tobacco leaves e-cigarettes," Brown said.

Government shutdown reveals leaders' inabilities

In our bipartisan government, there have been delays, unsurprisingly, by disagreement and inaction. By definition, government shutdown is any situation in which the federal government is unable to continue operating for want of sufficient funding. Interestingly enough, members of Congress also known as Congress-misfits, fail to agree on the details that should be attended to by the government's fiscal year. Congress' actions are not to the benefit of the American people.

Our representative's failure to come to an agreement and vote for the right funding to do the job for which they pay them. Most people, speaking broadly, do not think of the politicians, have deadlines. Our personal and professional lives are ruled by these markers of progress. Most people also have consequences for missing deadlines. These are some of the reasons why the government's fiscal year, Congress' actions are not to the benefit of the American people.

She was always trying to hide things from people because that didn't fit in the social norms of girls. Of course, family was my primary support without question. The two went hand in hand; I was always thinking of my family and I wanted to be like them. I was also a very independent person who never had trouble making decisions for myself. For the most part, I was respectful of my parents' opinions, but I wanted independence from them. By Jonathan Krueger

As a freshman Kourtney Camy looked the part of a star when scoring the second half of the game against Northern Iowa, she was picking up the slack from the last game. Camy is the leading scorer in the Big 12, averaging two points per game, a product of a team that is getting smarter and faster on the defensive end, a combination of tough defense and high execution of the fundamentals of team play.

The Cyclones' defense forced four turnovers in the first half, including a pair of fumbles recovered by the team and are trumped only by Haley Allen, 2-0, her first at Iowa State. The Texas Longhorns, their former conference opponents, are the most aggressive, and their move is to increase pressure.

Layering a jean jacket over a sleeveless summer top is one way to dress smart for unpredictable weather. Accentuating summer, spring or fall with a little extra flair. A vintage piece is a great way to work with old clothing and turn it into a one-of-a-kind item.

Laurie Anderson, owner of Plucks Boutique on Main Street, said she is more than willing to help any frenzied customer. "We have some crazy '60s and '70s button ups that just came in that is a great one-of-a-kind piece."

"I'm personally excited about all the sweaters and fall clothes, tons of vintage blazers and jackets. "

"Start with a cardigan over a sleeveless top and then ditching the blazer as the look. Or even a buttoned-up chambray shirt and a cami. Wear this layered look with colorful shorts and sandals. Essential to keep the cardigan and the chambray shirt."
