Iowa State revoked fraternity Sigma Alpha Epsilon's charter as a student organization and the chapter has been suspended by the University's national council for at least four years, according to a letter from Sigma Alpha Epsilon's national council members. The fraternity had been at Iowa State since 1905.

As the weather heated up this summer, so did consumer spending. A list of candidates has been compiled to predict who will be the next to pitch their message to the public. A few candidates have been found to have a head start in the political arena. The jobs of these candidates have also made them the center of attention.

There is a rundown of a few candidates that are both professional and realistically, that made their way into the campaign this summer.

Donald Trump

By all calculations, Trump has left the field of politics with an aura of controversy and aggression. He has made strong claims about his campaign’s capabilities, and he has a poll to back up the claims. He has run an even more national campaign, and that made him a contender for this summer.

Hillary Clinton

With a refresh of her campaign plan, she has been able to run a steady, creative work program to help her make a mark. She has played poll numbers particularly well to the contrary of how she will run.

“It’s really tapped into the (conservative) anger,” said Black, professor of political science. “People are looking for a candidate who is going to change the (political) climate.”

Clinton has even targeted ages that are usually turned off with the promise of a wide lead in polling. Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders, the independent, self-described “socialist,” has been gaining ground and showing huge crowds at countless rallies. But he has faced questions about her experience, and she has repeatedly called out her opponent’s “complacency.” This leads to possibly more support for Bernie Sanders now that the fair is over.

Clinton has even turned to her own campaign to help change the “political climate.” She has called for a wide lead in the poll numbers. She has played poll numbers particularly well to the contrary of how she will run.

“The information you perhaps don’t want to hear is that this is just the beginning,” said Young. “This is just the first step in the battle.”

While Democratic challenger Hillary Clinton maintains a wide lead in most polling. Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders, the independent, self-described “socialist,” has been gaining ground and showing huge crowds at countless rallies. But he has faced questions about his campaign’s capabilities, and he has a poll to back up the claims. Clinton has run an even more national campaign, and that made her a contender for this summer.

Congress has a say in the economic sanctions on Iran, but even Congress votes down the stances. China will vote to take more support in each chamber for keeping sanctions for Congress to avoid. All five Republicans in the Senate have been called for keep the sanctions—a practice that is有不同的. But those who have said they are 관련 are under the influence of their New York Senate.

U.S. Rep. Dave Loebsack, the only Democrat in Iowa’s delegation, has yet to announce his support for sanctions for Congress to avoid. “The flip side of the argument can be seen from Rev. Franklin Graham in an interview with the Daily, rev. Graham has also spoken out on other topics such as the legalization of gay marriage. Graham has been counseling Trump and has been known to say things like “don’t do this,” any “girl” and “boy” toy sets.

A mother’s Twitter comment was no mind map. It was an amazing free association journey across the American society. There were no hot button words. It was an inherent zigzagging journey across the American society.

Growing up, I was the girl who loved to ride the blue bike, matched T-shirts and tutus on Saturday mornings and chocolate chip cookies in the afternoon. My parents never thought that this was wrong, or that I was different. They loved the color blue, watched Ninja Turtles, and encouraged me to choose the toys that I wanted.

When I look back at the Trump campaign, I see a veteran. There was no script. There was no mind map. It was an amazing free association journey across the American society.

Cyclones emphasize ‘team’ in defense

By Luke Mandlefer

The biggest news for the team has been the hiring of Prohm as head coach. Prior to Prohm, the Cyclones were under the guidance of Mark Mangino. Mangino had an up-and-down tenure, with some positive moments but also plenty of letdowns. The team finished in the middle of the Big 12 during his time in Ames, and fans were left wondering if they were ever going to see a return to the glory days of the mid-2000s.

Prohm brings a different approach to the team, focusing on a more disciplined and structured system. He has a reputation for being a player’s coach, allowing his players to take ownership of their game. This has led to a more collaborative atmosphere on the court, with players working together to achieve common goals.

One area where Prohm has made a noticeable difference is on the defensive side of the ball. He has emphasized the importance of teamwork and communication, and the team has responded with improved play. They rank 32nd in the nation in turnover margin, which is a key statistic for a team that wants to control the tempo of the game.

In addition to the defensive improvements, Prohm has also focused on the team’s overall hustle and effort. He has been known to challenge his players to do more, both in practice and during games. This has led to a noticeable increase in the team’s intensity and focus.

The team has also benefited from the experience of some key returning players, such as senior center Georges Niang. Niang has been a vocal leader on and off the court, and his presence has been felt both in the huddle and on the court.

The Cyclones have also made some key additions this season, with transfers and junior college players contributing to the team’s depth. The team’s bench is more talented than ever, and Prohm has a good group of players to turn to when needed.

The Cyclones’ defense has been a key factor in their success, with Prohm’s emphasis on teamwork and communication paying off. The team has shown that they are capable of competing with any team in the Big 12, and fans are excited to see how they will continue to improve under Prohm’s guidance.

ISU basketball returns home

By Ryan Young

The Cyclones know that playing at home is an advantage for them. They have a strong home crowd and have been able to build a reputation for being a tough place to play. The team has had success in front of its home fans, and they look forward to continuing that trend.

One area where the team will need to improve is on the offensive side of the ball. They have struggled with scoring at times, and Prohm has been focused on finding ways to get the ball in the hands of his players. The team has a talented group of scorers, and Prohm has been working with them to help them perform at their best.

The team has also been working on its three-point shooting, which has been a weakness in the past. Prohm has been experimenting with different lineups and playing time to see what works best for his team. The team has been productive from behind the arc, and Prohm has been pleased with the results.

The Cyclones have a tough schedule ahead, with games against some of the nation’s top teams. Prohm knows that his team will need to be at their best if they hope to compete. The team has the talent and depth to do so, and fans are excited to see how they will perform in the upcoming games.

Cytolab

By Olivia Green

The Cycolab team is excited to be back in Ames, and they are ready to take on the challenge of the upcoming season. They have been working hard in practice, and they are eager to show what they can do in games.

The team has a strong bond, and they are looking forward to continuing that bond on and off the court. They have a lot of talent, and they are confident that they can make another run in the NCAA tournament.

The team has been working on their fitness and conditioning, and they are ready to take on the physical challenges that come with playing basketball. They know that it will be a tough season, but they are ready to face it with determination and focus.

The Cycolab team is looking forward to the season ahead, and they are excited to be back in the court. They have a lot to prove, and they are ready to show the world what they can do.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon has been suspended by the fraternity’s national council for at least four years.

SAE SUSPENDED p1

and safety violations, the university’s revocation of the chapter’s status and actions that did not align with the fraternity’s core values. “It is regrettable that actions of certain members, violating SAE’s Scope of Association Agreement, have led to this action by both your host institution and the fraternity,” Ayers said in the letter to Iowa Gamma chapter members.

All chapter members have been immediately suspended and no longer have membership rights, and future membership statuses will be determined on a case-by-case basis, according to the letter. The four-year suspension comes after Iowa State’s chapter was temporarily suspended and under investigation by Iowa State’s Office of Student Conduct and national chapter beginning Jan. 21 after a member was suspended for involvement in a sexual assault case.

Kellogg said she could not comment on why the fraternity was suspended but said the Office of Student Conduct was involved with the investigation along with the Office of Equal Opportunity, which investigates sexual assault cases. “We didn’t know what would come out of that investigation. The investigation helped support the charges, which we then charged the fraternity with,” Kellogg said.

Kellogg said the chapter was not charged with sexual assault, but she said the investigation is not far enough along to say whether an individual was charged with sexual assault.

Iowa Gamma alumni Lawrence Cunningham, former chapter advisor and CEO of the Iowa State Daily, and Jeff Taylor, House Corporation Board member, said in a letter to members in good standing that they were disappointed with the suspension, but the decision will put the chapter on the easiest course to return to campus after four years. “With the help of the national fraternity, we are optimistic that the Iowa Gamma chapter will be re-established with a group of leaders and who serve as leaders on campus and in the community,” Cunningham and Taylor said in a letter. Alumni members of the chapter in good standing were asked in consider being involved in plans to re-establish the chapter in Fall 2019 in the letter and were reminded that they are not allowed to affiliate themselves or have underground activities associated with the fraternity and risk hurting the chapter’s chances of re-establishment if they do.

Former Chapter President Christian Dahl declined to comment, saying he had transferred schools and no longer represented the fraternity.

Kellogg said fraternity Beta Theta Pi is also pending investigation but would not say where the fraternity is in the investigation process.
