LGBT events all week for Coming Out Day

By Makora Todd

LGBT events all week for Coming Out Day of CALS Week and senior in animal science. "It's important to have a welcoming session and then break out in campus tours, as well as [student-run] farm tours." Penny Wars will last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week. Penny Wars last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week. Penny Wars will last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week. Penny Wars will last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week. Penny Wars will last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week. Penny Wars will last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week. Penny Wars will last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week. Penny Wars will last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week. Penny Wars will last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week. Penny Wars will last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week. Penny Wars will last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week. Penny Wars will last through the entire week and is open to everyone in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "We have a strong CALS Week because it's symbolic of a strong college, which we definitely have," said Penny brown, co-chairman of CALS Week.
A sense of clarity an way to a hundred people to find out the meaning of their lives or even to find out what, or even who, it is that we are supposed to be. The article speaks about the idea of clairvoyance and how it can be used to guide people through their lives.

Ames Psychic and Paranormal Expo attracts all types of vendors
By Delaney Vierkandt
www.iowastatedaily.com

A sense of clarity was in the air as hundreds of people came to find out about the meaning of their lives or even to seek guidance at the Ames Psychic and Paranormal Expo Saturday.

McCarville and Pati Kroll organized the event in Ames after originally hosting it in the Cedar Rapids area.

Fifty-two different vendors participated in the event, sharing their knowledge with the community.

These vendors ranged from tarot and astrology readings, to stress reduction techniques, numerology and many more.

In addition to the readings and vendors, there was also merchandise for sale, such as crystals and gems.

McCarville and Kroll also included a paranormal tour of a haunted location.

During this event, we have vendors from all over the place from come. We have vendors from Iowa, we have local vendors, we have that from Chicago, Wisconsin, Minnesota, just all over the place, McCarville said.

McCarville is a "clairvoyant," which means she says she knows things about people as well as what they see in their future. However, she said this event was not about the other vendors, it is also only six months to plan it, but it takes three months to get everything worked out, get the floor plan figured out and get the vendors and speakers lined up.

Kim Kline stood with the paranormalendors display and was one of the speakers at the event. He teaches the spiritual and the scientific, and if someone is having a hard time with that, he can detect these presences and get the vendors and speakers lined up.

It was kind of a journey that draws his attention on Saturday at the Psychic and Paranormal Expo in the Scheman Building.

"It was kind of a journey that draws his attention on Saturday at the Psychic and Paranormal Expo in the Scheman Building."
Yell Like Hell nears: gears prepare sketches

By Delaney Vierkandt
@iowastatedaily.com

The annual Yell Like Hell event is fast approaching, and members of the Greek community are busy preparing. The popular event, which occurs every year on Central Campus, is a way for the community to come together and support one another.

Members of the Greek community have been working on a sculpture to be painted on Central Campus, and some members are also preparing a documentary about the event.

The sculpture is a large, abstract piece that was created by a local artist and is meant to represent the diversity of the Greek community.

The documentary, titled "Yell Like Hell: A Tradition of Pride," will feature interviews with members of the Greek community and will be shown at the event.

In addition to the sculpture and documentary, members of the Greek community are also preparing a variety of other activities, including a painting session and a dance performance.

The event is open to the public and is a great way for people to support the Greek community and enjoy some fun and entertainment.

For more information, please visit the Greek Life website or contact the ISU Greek Life office.
Washington Daily

Opinion

UNWINDING UNTRUTHS

By Michael Glazer
@wsondaily.com

Last week, I submitted a rather scathing column expressing my opinion about the “flat tax” for the list of people to which I do not return. I did, however, express the belief that Congress, as a whole, is the problem and thinks about the best way to make business, particularly for their legislative staffs. As a result, I believe the Obama administration and the bureaucrats are making a go of it. I also believe it is time to acknowledge that these Americans are both bipartisan and divided by the law.

There are those who wish to tear Apart Congress and make it “bipartisan” and the public. These are the people who are looking for an escape. Consider this my attempt to address the things people are looking for. All the things, but we must establish the current under which we are so divided and the circumstances.

What about the costs? The United States Congress is not comprised of individuals who have yet to pass a test in health care. Americans are willing to pay these costs because, in John Glenn’s words, they are “insane” — that is, the pre-

The employer mandate does not force employers to provide insurance for their employees. Lower premiums, with 50+ employees, a penalty if they do not offer a plan that meets minimum coverage requirements. — I think this is one of the “Coverage tenets” of the law. Either way, I can provide a free or low-cost plan through the online health insurance exchange.

Small businesses will not be hit by the shutdown. They will not be negatively impacted. Yes, the Affordable Care Act does not cover illegal immigrants because they are not citizens. It is not enough to state that Americans don’t like Obamacare, closing the “donut hole.”

Because this law is bad, the government cannot afford to close down the government for the preposterous reasons that Republicans are scrambling for to make it appear as though they are fighting for something. No. The deficit is not going to be solved by shutting down the government. In addition, there is the individual mandate — it’s not a “tax,” either, but a fee. The individual mandate waives, and there are other exemp-

The reality. Americans cannot fall for this media stunt. Republicans in an effort to make the Obama administration look foolish, make a point about a budget measure which set up a government shutdown. The shutdown was caused by the actions of my fellow Congress members, for the narrow percent of Americans who care about this.
The way we apply for jobs over the years has changed. Instead of going in to a store to pick up an application, applicants go online to fill out their applications. It seems I have fallen a little behind the times.

It was supposed to do as well. But what employers may not realize is that they are missing out on an important piece of a potentially great employee by refusing to speak with them. People who are truly determined to find a job that is not what they used to be will find a job.

Not only was my attempt to sound polite and assertive rejected, but any other attempts were stopped before I even had the chance to try them. One business to which I applied had clearly stated in the application that applicants were not to call or email the business about the status of their application or to make any other inquiries, such as telling them how excited you are to work there. If they were interested, they would contact you. They could argue that the employers are willing to annoy an employer to get their attention, but don’t do the same. It’s not important to them.

Today’s employers seem to be more interested in a job that is not what you used to be. It is now rare to find a job that is more than what you used to be. It is now rare to find a job that is more than what you used to be. It is now rare to find a job that is more than what you used to be. It is now rare to find a job that is more than what you used to be. It is now rare to find a job that is more than what you used to be.
Kansas State and Drake this weekend

Women’s soccer ties with both schedule may spell
Men’s soccer coach gives players structure, organization will translate into success in late Commins has organized for them
busy and competitive schedule

Iowa State Daily

No. 10 senior midfielder Emily Golden puts a corner kick into play during Iowa State’s 6-2 double overtime win with the Jayhawks on Friday at the Cyclone Sports Complex. Iowa State battled the geese with two games ending in draws.

The team’s improved play was fueled in part by junior....

The men’s soccer team currently has 45 members, making an A and B team. Andy Commins, the coach, has added more structure and organization to the club over the past two seasons.

Two out of those three fin...

Iowa State Daily

Busy preseason schedule may spell success down road

By Kyle Fein

After advancing to the round of 36 a year ago at nationa...

The team’s improved play was fueled in part by junior...
Finnish brothers get chance to play together as Cyclones

By Jared Stansbury

Eero and Antti Helanto have not yet played on the same hockey team. The two brothers from Finland have never been on the same team, but for the first time this season, they are competing together for the Cyclones.

Eero Helanto, left, freshman in hospitality management, and Antti Helanto, sophomore in pre-business, are brothers from Finland. As Cyclones, they are competing together for the first time.

The Helantos have not yet played together, but they are both really enjoying the experience of playing together.

Eero said playing with his brother would be nice but he has meshed well with the line he is currently on.

So far this season, Antti is credited for five points, two goals and three assists, and Eero has amassed three points, two goals and one assist.

Whether or not they are on the ice together, both brothers are really enjoying the experience of playing together.

“Both brothers have really enjoyed playing with each other, and it is just really awesome,” Antti said.

See the reaction: Watch the comments online at iowastatedaily.com