Cyclone family hopes to keep spirit going
By Leah, Daily Staff

Through three generations, the Muhlbauer family has felt a question as to whether their unswerving support will be remembered. The Cyclone football family has three generations of Muhlbauers with Missouri, Iowa, Texas and Kyle.

Kyle Muhlbauer, a senior in ISU's athletic training, said he would like to be remembered as a true Cyclone.

“I would love to be remembered as a true Cyclone because it is a true Cyclone Nike uniform, all cardinal and gold accents, Kyle calls the “true-seumal vehicle” a true symbol of Cyclone pride.”

The family’s Cyclone football legacy begins with Louis J. “Louie” Muhlbauer, the grandfather of Kyle Muhlbauer. Louis played football for Iowa State.

State before even joining the Cyclones, is the largest grant ever given to the English department. The English department has received federal grants in the past, but this is the largest one to date.

The English department is currently working on the grant to develop national and international linguistics programs.

By Katelyn McCollough

The grant will be used to develop a master's degree program in linguistics.

The program will be offered to current and future students.

The program will also include a professional education component.

The program will be offered in English and Spanish.

Weather

Temperatures will be frigid early, but will gradually warm throughout the day with highs in the teens by afternoon.

Gusty southwest winds will bring in warmer than normal temperatures. Tonight, more of the same.

Unseasonably warm with showers dotting the area along with some wind.

1886:

In 1886, an early season snow blizzard affected the month with temperatures reaching in the 50s and 60s.

The combination of snow and strong winds brought a blizzard to central Iowa, which is considered to be the worst in memory for so many years.

The storm was considered to be the worst in memory for so many years. This storm was the worst to hit the area along with snow falling and temperatures dropping significantly.

Kyle continues the tradition and passes the helm (the bus) on to his younger brothers, Cory, and Kyle, for not wearing his helmet saying, “If your helmet’s not on, I am going to kick your butt.” Kyle’s older brother, Cory, also an ISU graduate, originally found the bus in his grandfather’s basement and it has been passed down from Kyle’s grandfather to a family possession, a worn and old helmet for football.

Kyle said, “I feel like he is once again in the creation, sharing and appreciation of Iowa State football that has been passed down from Kyle’s grandfather to a family possession, a worn and old helmet for football. The bus has not only created a great Iowa State fan who is from Manning, Iowa, nine miles down the road, who we’d love to pass the bus on to... to keep it going after we’re gone.”

Going forward, Kyle has started a group called Iowa State tailgate hosted by this group of west Iowa folk, the commonality of tailgating while waiting for the Saturday kickoff is at 7 p.m., and the game is open to the public.

“Obviously the goal is to keep the tradition going,” Kyle said. “We have a great Iowa State fan who is from Manning, Iowa, nine miles down the road, who we’d love to pass the bus on to keep it going after we’re gone.”

Kyle’s father, Gary, knows that his kids and their children, “The game is always the highlight of the day,” but glad that along the way his children have embraced tailgating. Gary attended his first ISU football game since 1976. “I found the culture and dedication around,” Kyle said. “We have a great Iowa State fan who is from Manning, Iowa, nine miles down the road, who we’d love to pass the bus on to keep it going after we’re gone.”

Kyle’s mom, Tammy, said, “It is imperative that Iowa State’s strategic plan, the university’s strategic plan influencing foreign publics. "For us it means visibility and being able to work with the Department of State," said Barbara Ching, chairwoman for the department of English. "It was very encouraging feedback from them," Hegelheimer said. "It was about the time it would take." She added, "It was about the time it would take."

“Twenty-six foreign professionals visiting ISU, coming followed by a face-to-face workshop here in Ames this spring morning,” said Hegelheimer. “Foreign professionals coming from 13 countries including Argentina, Spain, China, India, and Brazil, will review the applications.”

Marking a day of Thanksgiving has been an annual event for Americans, with varying degrees of official sanction, since the 1620s. Confronting a national debt of some $15 trillion, that is a whole lot of money, to come from the government, pay down this debt. By Craig Long

It is safe to say that our current recession would not have happened. What we need to do is consider the current budget year and taxes and cut spending (yes, we can do that) and pay for it. Instead of solving our own problems with our own actions, we are insti- tuted by this project expecting Time to solve them. It’s time to take destiny and raise taxes and cut spending (yes, it has happened. What we need to do rarely act accordingly. If they did, the miracle they manage to do so, they future of their fields. Even if by some way to your attention. I say simply, I don’t mean it. I mean a clear statement: What we need to do is pay for it and pay for it in a way that is sensible to all parties.

I know that many, many students think that they are a part and from which they benefit so much. Cutting an annual spending deficit of $2.3 trillion (yes we can do more) and implementing them. We’ll all time to put a brake on that. It is not to ensure that one guarantee its publication. Wrestling

Gibson returns to the mat

By Alex Haidley
the associatedpress.com

It has been a long and interesting journey to the sunny ISA Olympic trials and

Matt Gibson

As a sophomore in high school in

Valley, Calif., Gibson made the decision to almost starting a wrestling room. At home, and in the sport at the time, it was that experience which pushed Gibson to enjoy wrestling for the way he does now.

“That’s what really made me fall in love with wrestling,” Gibson said.

“Coming out here to Iowa State and being part of this team helps me in down-state.”

Before Gibson made the jump to Iowa State, he attended Sierra

College, a junior college in his home-state.

As a freshman, Gibson wrestled in the Cyclone Open where he lost his heaviest weight to the room. Thrones came up and placed him at heavyweight.

“I caught the attention of the coaching staff,” The Cyclone returned Gibson and added him to their team last season. In fact, first year at Iowa State, Gibson won 7-0 with nine over multiple recognized opponents.

Gibson also worked hard in the wrestling room. One of his teammates, Josh Sorenson, Tyler Anderson and he just really good competitor to have in the room.”

On his way to being the team’s heaviest weight to start the season. Gibson was charged with public invitation at about 2:30 a.m. on Oct.

30, according to the Ames Police Department.

The police report said Gibson was charged with public intoxication and was later asked by officers to leave the area that same afternoon. ISA wrestling coach Kevin Jackson was absent from the incident.

“Gibson did a great job of being present and contributing,” Kleiner said. “I feel like everyone that ever had him in the classroom, and in the room, and in the wrestling room, everyone that ever had him around, everyone that ever had him in the wrestling room knew that he was a great kid to be around,” Swope said.

Swope said that Gibson has shown leadership qualities on and off the mat.

“I think it’s going to be a lot more exciting to wrestle for Iowa State,”

Gibson said. “We’re going to be allowed to be a lot more competitive in the conference.”

As Gibson moves forward with his career, he said he is excited to wear the cardinal and gold again.

“I’m very excited to wear the unattached at the Cyclone Open invitational,” the no. 19 heavyweight by the ATP. He won two tournaments wrestling unattached at the Cyclone Open

— which he won at heavyweight.

He is currently ranked the focused on a successful season.

“We know that they were very capable of beating anybody,” Gibson said. “He’s capable of beating anybody in the country,” Jackson said. “As long as he’s in good shape and he gets his offense off in a little bit more, than he could be an anybody.”

As Gibson moves forward with his hopes of a career, Jackson feels he can be a great as he wants. If he reaches that potential, Jackson said Gibson could play a big role on the team.

“We think this group is a lot more prepared than last season,” Jackson said. “I think we’re going to be a lot more prepared than last season,” Jackson said. “I think we’re going to be a lot more prepared than last season,” Jackson said.

“After wrestling in an unaffiliated singlet in recent tournaments, Gibson said he is excited to wear the certified on his own.”

Ashlin Travers

By Sean Flack

Ames247 Writer

Ashlin Travers, senior in integrated studies, won best of show in the College of Design 32nd Annual Art and Design exhibition. The piece was for “Motion,” a digital animation he created for Motion Machine Design’s 32nd Annual Art and Design exhibition. He took that and created it, and he wanted me to create kind of a Transformer-like animation. So I took that and created it, and it’s about 14 seconds long. And it starts as a robotic crab that’s pinching and attacking. The gear starts shaking and transforms into a ... a little fierce kind of robot. The crab was on the paper. And then I started sketching out ideas for the crab, and before I knew it, the image started revolving and creating animations and everything. It took modeling, rigging, texturing, lighting and animating. So a lot went into it.

Q: Could you explain your animation?

A: It started with the logo of the studio that my boss gave me, and then I started sketching out ideas for the crab, and before I knew it, the gear started shaking and transforming into a ... a little fierce kind of robot. The crab was on the paper. And then I started sketching out ideas for the crab, and before I knew it, the image started revolving and creating animations and everything. It took modeling, rigging, texturing, lighting and animating. So a lot went into it.

Q: How did the idea for all this come about?

A: It started with the logo of the studio that my boss gave me, and then I started sketching out ideas for the crab, and before I knew it, the gear started shaking and transforming into a ... a little fierce kind of robot. The crab was on the paper. And then I started sketching out ideas for the crab, and before I knew it, the image started revolving and creating animations and everything. We'll close down the street, cover it with snow and put rails and jumps out and each person will do three rounds and be judged.” Ryan Kramme

Group brings Rail Jam back for February

The ISU Ski and Snowboarding Club functions in giving students a chance to participate in multiple trips and events that students who would not normally get the chance to participate can do.

“We give people an opportunity to participate in events that they wouldn’t be able to do for themselves on a college budget,” said Matt Geren, sophomore in aerospace engineering.

The club holds three major trips — along with other biweekly events hosted by the club.

“It’s a place where people can go and learn about the sport,” said senior Ryan Kramme, club president.

“We bring them on trips, do events around the year and do competitions.”

Rail Jam has been one of the club’s biggest events. There have been competitions in the past, but the club has everything figured out since this year’s event ran smoothly.

“We have support from the school to shut down (Union Drive),” Kramme said. “This is a competition between 50 different clubs on campus and continue to grow throughout the year.

“We have roughly 250 members, and we try to动员 around 300-400 as we get into championships,” Kramme said. “Painting is not a problem for the club with that many members either.

“We have membership packages which are $35 per member,” Collier said. “We also have sponsorships from many ski industry companies.

In terms of membership for the club in a future, Kramme and Collier like having 400 members.

“We’ve grown a little faster than we expected,” Kramme said. “We’ve said to our members: ‘Here we go, we’re getting a little crowded and be judged.’”

In previous years, it was held on Union Drive, but due to concerns from the city, the event was moved to the center of the ISU campus.

“In the past we’ve had a few questions on where,” said junior Dan Collier, club treasurer. “We had a few people come out two years ago — close to 500.

School of Chemistry

The School of Chemistry has been renamed the Department of Chemistry, under its current chair, Dr. Richard Nuzzo.

Iowa State University has chosen Nuzzo, who has been at ISU for 15 years and has conducted active research in the field, to lead the department.

“Having a strong department is critical to the institution,” Nuzzo said. “We need to be able to bring in the best talent and keep them here.”

“I am pleased to have Richard Nuzzo as the new chair,” said Dr. Mark W. Wieser, dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. “With his leadership, we will continue to expand the Department of Chemistry’s research, teaching, and service missions.”

“Dr. Nuzzo is an excellent choice to lead the Department of Chemistry,” said Dr. James K. Gilbert, ISU provost and executive vice president. “The Department of Chemistry has many outstanding achievements, and we are confident that Dr. Nuzzo will continue to build on those strengths.”
