The universityása and planned all of the events for the celebration. Near Hill spoke about old traditions such as cherry picking, which was his 50th year participating in the festivities.

Christmas. He also commented on how he grew up while growing up, Veishea was one of the biggest events of the week. Hoiberg joked. "If you win the knockout contest, stop by my office afterward, I have one scholarship left," he said.

After speaking about some more of his favorite Veishea moments, Hoiberg began to talk about the upcoming basketball season. "We want to do more than raise awareness. We want to create a culture of understanding," Peterson said. "Our goal is to strive for an unprecedented level of engagement. We want to create a community that makes people feel like they belong.

"These Hands Don’t Hurt works hand in hand with the Margaret Sloss Women’s Center to help raise awareness of sexual assault and domestic violence. We want to strive for more understanding," Peterson said. "Our goal is to create a culture where people feel like they belong.

More than 100 ISU students put on their business professional best to present mentored research projects in a low-pressure public speaking engagement at the Symposium of Undergraduate Research and Creative Expression.

The projects were presented Tuesday and ranged from genetics, engineering and mathematics to fashion design, psychology and business. Each project displayed the technical and minute details of undergraduate research in addition to weeks of careful preparation for the symposium presentation.

In order to enter the symposium, students needed to fill out an application process and then go through a selection process. A key component of the symposium is technical communication as well as engaging a lay audience. Since its start in 2007, the undergraduate research symposium has exploded in numbers and diversity of research subjects presented, with more than 200 entries and other non-scientific types of research emerging on campus. "We are at the limits for the number of rooms and number of hours we can use," said Dana Schumacher, the symposium coordinator. "It's going to be a challenge to expand.

"The presentation of research material is a visual record of achievement in undergraduate researchers for faculty members to show how education is being passed to the next generation. In order for the research to be accepted at the symposium, undergraduates need to be mentored by a professional academic in their given field.

Ian Schneider, assistant professor of chemical and biological engineering and a research mentor, cited participation in research as an undergraduate as something that adds to the educational experience at Iowa State.

"There is a lot of excitement in the learning process and change in ability from when students enter the lab not knowing much about research or lab techniques," Schneider said. "The symposium is something that is able to expand beyond formal meetings and something for the students to prepare seriously for.

A key component of the symposium is for students to become comfortable with public speaking about their academic research and to be able to communicate effectively to broad audience.

"I definitely feel more comfortable about how these presentations are structured and feel more comfortable interacting with an audience," said Tish Fitzhugh, graduate student and chemical engineering and climate participant of the undergraduate research symposium. "I was extremely nervous last year, and I was just moderately nervous this year.

Looking ahead to next year, Schumacher is concerned about the challenges that come along with having a popular symposium. If it grows too much, it could either become more competitive or we will have to rethink the use or how we use the time to expand it," Schumacher said. "I don't want it to be tremendously competitive, because I want students to have the experience of presenting research.

Benton works out for ‘America’s Team’

By Dan Tracy
@isdsports

Before he hopes to find a new home with an NFL team next fall, former ISU defensive back Ter’ran Benton has the chance to go home two weeks ago for a private workout with the Dallas Cowboys.

“That was a real feeling to be wanted and to be owned by ‘America’s Team,’” Benton said. “It’s the team that I grew up watching, and probably in the next two or three weeks, I could find out that I’ll be going to camp with them.”

Benton, a native of Arlington, Texas, worked out along with 13 other defensive back prospects on the practice squad of the Dallas Cowboys. Benton worked out with them.

"That was a good feeling to be wanted and to be owned by ‘America’s Team,’” Benton said. “It’s the team that I grew up watching, and probably in the next two or three weeks, I could find out that I’ll be going to camp with them.”

Ihmels said school affects the athlete’s drive and it is important to responsibly balance the role of the student-athlete. "For the ISU track- and-field team has been traveling all over the Western portion of the country. With sports in Arizona and California, athletes have had to balance academics with competition.

"It’s a little unsettling to see a coach require three things to happen - get up, walk to the bus and get on the bus," Ihmels said. "But I think that’s a good place."

The rivals met in Tempe, Ariz., earlier this season, where Iowa took two out of three games against Nebraska this past weekend.

“Gemeinhardt-Cesler. “It’s all about how we need to be,” Gemeinhardt-Cesler said [Massey], she was probably the best that we were at that point.”

When we first faced [Tempe] as a team,” Varela said. “We're hitting a lot of things wrong that cost us the game,” said ISU sophomore Sara Derzon.

We’re all excited to play them and even more excited to play them in this environment.

“I think the lessons that we need to make and we're keeping our pitches up when they’re better,”

Joe, while only 10K in the conference, is used to hitting .280 or better and he’s hitting .289/.298/529 this season in pitching with a 3.82 ERA.

Standing out from the pack this past weekend was senior pitcher Kayla Money who threw a five-inning complete game in the loss against the Cyclones.

Money (8-10) has pitched 15 complete games this season and owns a 2.62 ERA.

Meme and Chase Lyons have combined to pitch 392.2 of ISU’s 394 innings this season.

Lyons also has thrown 10 complete games this season and owns a 2.52 ERA.

“They’re both good pitchers,” Gemeinhardt-Cesler said of Money and Lyons. “Both have good arm control, I think that they both spot the ball well.

Money’s breaking balls have a little bit of a curve, which she minus is.”

When the Hawkeyes (17-21, 7-5 Big Ten) make their way to Ames on Wednesday afternoon, it will have been six runs over the three games.

we just did a couple things wrong that cost us the game,” said ISU sophomore Sara Derzon.

The Cyclones led the all-time series against the Hawkeyes by 3-2-6 in March.

The Cyclones are 4-7 in the Big Ten this season, while the Hawkeyes are 5-8.

A little too late, but we just did a couple things wrong that cost us the game,” said ISU sophomore Sara Derzon.

YOUR LIFE JUST GOT BETTER.
Today's Birthday (04/18/12).

- Today's Birthday (04/18/12).

Daily Horoscope:

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) -- Today at 7, you're in an extroverted mood and have the ability to hit the world. Stop out of your shell, and be bold. Listening is the key to communication. Someone doesn't like your ideas, but you're bold and confident. (You love to show off your abilities and the game is not for the next two days, but now in the spotlight.)

- Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) -- Today at 10, a special friend or ally will tell you a secret that is for everyone to hear. Be careful. (You love to show off your abilities and the game is not for the next two days, but now in the spotlight.)

Remember, what you're doing is for everyone to see. Be careful. (You love to show off your abilities and the game is not for the next two days, but now in the spotlight.)

- Taurus (April 20-May 20) -- Today, the key to creativity is to get away from the obstacles you face and be bold. Listening is the key to communication. Someone doesn't like your ideas, but you're bold and confident. (You love to show off your abilities and the game is not for the next two days, but now in the spotlight.)

Word of the Day:

Cameron MURPHY-beau

1. A present; gratuity; tip.

Random Facts:

Sagittarius was a common cherry pie on the Royal Wedding menu.

- The average price for a major league baseball game in 2022 is $25.30.

- There is a museum dedicated to the fruits of the 17th century, and it only offers all-garlic products. They also have garlic cheese.

- Example: Many had nothing to give, but the younger wives always brought a modest gift for Dr. Ransome. They called it a gift, and they referred to it as "cumshaw." For whatever mysterious reason, it taught them a valuable lesson. One example: many had nothing to give, but the younger wives always brought a modest gift for Dr. Ransome. There is a wide spectrum of flavors that exist in the ice cream world, and it seems like they are getting further and further out there. Some flavors can include pistachio, bacon, monster cookie, chili pepper, spaghetti and cheese and even spleen!

When banana ice cream is mentioned, it seems pretty normal. However, here is a recipe that is made from frozen bananas, literally banana ice cream. The little bit of fat gives it the ability to cream together instead of crumbling, and because it only contains bananas, it is an ideal treat for those with a gluten intolerance or celiac disease, diabetes, vegans, lactose intolerance and those of us who are watching our weight. Also, it is a great way to get rid of some old bananas.

Directions

1. Extra-ripe bananas
2. Add-ins (yogurt, honey, sprinkles, candy — we used peanut butter and chocolate chips)
3. Peel your bananas and cut them into small pieces. Freeze for just 1 or 2 hours on a plate.
4. Blend in a food processor or blender, scraping down the bowl when they stick.
5. Add in any ingredients of your choice for flavor and texture enhancement.

As busy college students, we all know it’s not easy to get a decent meal in three times a day. Let the grocery store do the work for you by picking up a ready-to-eat rotisserie chicken. You can keep it in the fridge for a few days and even use it to make your own wraps for the week. Start with these three tasty ideas.

Traditional chicken and potatoes

1. 1 serving of white or dark meat roasted chicken
2. 1 small garden or red potato
3. 1 tablespoon olive oil
4. Dark pepper, garlic powder and turmeric to taste

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F
Wash and quarter potatoes
Toss with oil and seasonings
Bake for about 30 minutes
Serve with chicken and enjoy!

Chicken summer salad

1. 1 serving of white meat roasted chicken, sliced
2. 1 cup spinach
3. 1/2 cup sliced strawberries
4. 1 tablespoon sliced almonds
5. Drizzle of olive oil and balsamic vinegar

Toss together all ingredients and enjoy!

Chicken tortilla roll-up

1. 1 serving of white meat roasted chicken, sliced
2. 1 cup of cooked corn
3. 1 cup chopped bell pepper
4. Juice of 1/2 of a lime
5. 1 tortilla

Toss all ingredients together
Serve wrapped in the tortilla
