ISU students need to learn about GSB

By Megan Culp

ISU students need to learn about GSB, which students can learn much about if they engage in the election season. This is when students can learn about those running for GSB and the issues they believe in, while also understanding the role GSB plays in the ISU community. It is important for students to be knowledgeable about GSB so that they can make informed decisions when it comes to voting. In the future, students need to get at least a 10 percent opportunity for students to learn more about GSB, which can lead to a greater understanding of the issues and candidates involved. Students also need to be aware of the election season as an opportunity for them to learn about GSB and get involved.

Political satire replaces cable news

By Varun Chandwani

H ow do you like political satire on television? If you are like the majority of Americans, you are probably watching The Daily Show with Jon Stewart. Jon Stewart is a political satirist and has been a host on The Daily Show since 1996. He is known for his unique sense of humor and ability to bring serious political issues to light in a humorous way. His humor and understanding of the political process have made him a popular figure among viewers of all ages. For many people, watching The Daily Show is a way to stay informed about current events and political matters. It is a way to engage with the political world in a fun and entertaining way. The Daily Show has been praised for its ability to make complex political issues understandable and accessible to a broad audience. It is a show that is both informative and entertaining, and it has become a staple in many people's daily routines.

Students interact constantly. But election season also is a time in which students need to open to those opportunities. We need to remember that the people we choose to represent us matter. We need to be able to have a say in what happens to our future. It is important to get involved in the election season and to make our voices heard.

Difficult road ahead for ISU

Cyclones prepare for tough schedule of upcoming games

By Alex Halsted
alexh3@iowastate.edu

After falling to a top team early in the week, the ISU men’s hockey team has to decide on course.

The Cyclones (13-5, 2-2 Big 12) host on the road this weekend to one of the league’s hottest defensively.

Come tournament time, the loss will stick to the Big 12 tournament committee as ISU’s lone second-round upset in recent memory.

The Cyclones need to start making noise to get to the NCAA tournament.

“This was a game that we should have won,” Iowa State head coach Al Murdoch said. “This was a game that we got swept in 2010-11.

“I told the pep band and the cheer squad — and I’m not kidding about it — they gave us one good performance. They gave us one good performance and the pep band will be at Friday’s gamecenters.

“Till the pep band and the cheer squad — and I’m not kidding about it — they gave us one good performance.”

Murdoch said with the way the Cyclones hosted the Robert Morris Eagles on Friday, Iowa State beat the Eagles 3-1, the two teams' first time competing since Nov. 16.

The Cyclones are at 7-2 in the Big 12 heading into Saturday’s game.

The Cyclones take on the Wildcats at 7 p.m. on Friday, and again at the Cedar Rapids Ice Arena at 1:15 p.m. on Sunday.

ISU Dance Marathon was started at Iowa State University in 1998 and since then has continued to grow in its own right. Last year, ISU Dance Marathon raised approximately $136,600.

Mirror Mirror, located in mechanical engineering, has been involved with ISU Dance Marathon for four years. She is also the co-director of recruitment and morale.

I am in charge of all the morale captains who are in charge of the volunteers of ISU Dance Marathon. I became involved through her sorority, Pi Beta Phi.

I signed up on the team, not really knowing what it was. Leow said. It's already made a huge impact on me, on my college career, and changed my life. It's been an eye opening thing.

Leow is now the chapter president of her sorority. She said with her fellow students for four years she really made a big impression on her life.

There's a really empowering feeling getting to see all these student leaders working together for a great cause like Children's Miracle Network, and it's so cool that a bunch of college students come together and raise thousands of dollars. So, that's a huge deal.

This year, we did not set a monetary goal because we believed the focus of our organization should be on the emotional support that we provide for our kids and families, Leow said. That being said, we are always looking to bigger and better than last year. So, we have tried extremely hard to focus on our participative experience, making sure that it is the best that we can make it be while they are part of UI Dance Marathon.
