A state at stake

ISU seeks redemption following last year's emotional loss to Iowa

By Dean.Berhow-Goll
@iowastatedaily.com

The Cyclone men's basketball team has been waiting for the Friday game since its 80-71 loss last year at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. In order to accurately predict their point totals, they gave me Entrepreneurship and Innovation Management 310 homework. The requirement was to create a business with a profit goal or one of social value. Groups composed of four or five students had the opportunity to practice on a pitch, to deliver a pitch and to see what works and what doesn’t. Everyone in the class was stumped. The requirement was to create as much value as possible in one month with a starting capital of $5, provided by an initial investor. Kiss told me that decided on a profit project some required to pay back the initial investment. Kiss told me that deciding on a project that students have to pay for their own meals is not wasted money. It was 371 days ago that ISU players, including Georges Niang, Naz Long and Melvin Ejim, walked off of the floor at Carver-Hawkeye Arena after an 80-71 loss. Since then, they’ve been counting down the days until another shot to face the Hawkeyes came around.

“Test thinking back to last year, the emotion I had was waking off Carver-Hawkeye and how aggravated I was with the game,” Niang said. “I’ve wanted a whole year to get back at them, and now we get the opportunity to turn the student away. Iowa State is currently ranked No. 1 in the country in points scored per game at 91.7, while the Hawkeyes are No. 5 with 85.5 points per game. Defensively, Iowa State ranks No. 7 with 63.3 points against, in points allowed per 100 possessions at 68.2, while Iowa is only 4.2 points behind at No. 9 with 72.5. The thing’s great is our transition offense; they really got out and ran,” said ISU coach Fred Hoiberg. “They’ve got the glass on us well. These are going to be huge keys for us in getting back in transition and trying to slow them down and trying to limit them to one shot, which is easier said than done because of their speed and the length.”

Even Hoiberg was recalling his memories in inter-views with the media of playing in the Cy-Hawk series from 1987-1997. “It was 371 days ago that ISU players, including Georges Niang, Naz Long and Melvin Ejim, walked off of the floor at Carver-Hawkeye Arena after an 80-71 loss.”

Students try to get rid of the extra meals before the end of the semester is finished. Students try to get rid of the extra meals before the end of the semester is finished. When the semester is finished.

“Ask! Happy holidays.”

With the game,” Niang said. “I’ve wanted a whole year to get back at them, and now we get the opportunity to turn the student away. Iowa State is currently ranked No. 1 in the country in points scored per game at 91.7, while the Hawkeyes are No. 5 with 85.5 points per game. Defensively, Iowa State ranks No. 7 with 63.3 points against, in points allowed per 100 possessions at 68.2, while Iowa is only 4.2 points behind at No. 9 with 72.5. The thing’s great is our transition offense; they really got out and ran,” said ISU coach Fred Hoiberg. “They’ve got the glass on us well. These are going to be huge keys for us in getting back in transition and trying to slow them down and trying to limit them to one shot, which is easier said than done because of their speed and the length.”

Even Hoiberg was recalling his memories in inter-views with the media of playing in the Cy-Hawk series from 1987-1997. “It was 371 days ago that ISU players, including Georges Niang, Naz Long and Melvin Ejim, walked off of the floor at Carver-Hawkeye Arena after an 80-71 loss.”

Students try to get rid of the extra meals before the end of the semester is finished. Students try to get rid of the extra meals before the end of the semester is finished. When the semester is finished.

“Ask! Happy holidays.”

With the game,” Niang said. “I’ve wanted a whole year to get back at them, and now we get the opportunity to turn the student away. Iowa State is currently ranked No. 1 in the country in points scored per game at 91.7, while the Hawkeyes are No. 5 with 85.5 points per game. Defensively, Iowa State ranks No. 7 with 63.3 points against, in points allowed per 100 possessions at 68.2, while Iowa is only 4.2 points behind at No. 9 with 72.5. The thing’s great is our transition offense; they really got out and ran,” said ISU coach Fred Hoiberg. “They’ve got the glass on us well. These are going to be huge keys for us in getting back in transition and trying to slow them down and trying to limit them to one shot, which is easier said than done because of their speed and the length.”

Even Hoiberg was recalling his memories in inter-views with the media of playing in the Cy-Hawk series from 1987-1997. “It was 371 days ago that ISU players, including Georges Niang, Naz Long and Melvin Ejim, walked off of the floor at Carver-Hawkeye Arena after an 80-71 loss.”
Scientists share strategies to keep nitrates on farm fields, out of water

By Caitlin Doxor
doxor@amessilversmithing.com

Iowans have come together to pinpoint strategies to keep nitrates out of bodies of water.

The main problem centers on corn and soybeans, which includes high levels of nitrates in the field and out of the water.

He said the research team—which is led by 45 ISU scientists, the Iowa Department of Natural Resources—has seen many cases of high nitrate levels in Iowa waters.

Nitrates in water have harmful health and ecological effects. Before consumption, the water is treated to prevent these effects.

According to the newsletter of the Nutrient Management Program of the University of Minnesota, "Nitrates in drinking water can cause cancer and birth defects. Excessive intake of nitrates during pregnancy may result in methemoglobinemia, a blood disorder in newborns."

Nutrients that end up in water bodies can affect the water quality.

"In this volume, we will explore the science of nitrates and discuss some of the strategies that can be used to reduce nitrates in water bodies," Doxor said.

Doxor also outlined a strategy to help reduce nitrates in water bodies, which is called "source reduction.

The strategy begins with water quality improvement techniques, such as removing excess nitrates from the water body. This can be done by using bioreactors or other techniques to reduce nitrates in water bodies.

Doxor also mentioned the importance of reducing the amount of fertilizer that is applied to fields, which can reduce the amount of nitrates that enter the water.

Doxor also mentioned the importance of reducing the amount of fertilizer that is applied to fields, which can reduce the amount of nitrates that enter the water.

Doxor also mentioned the importance of reducing the amount of fertilizer that is applied to fields, which can reduce the amount of nitrates that enter the water.

Doxor also mentioned the importance of reducing the amount of fertilizer that is applied to fields, which can reduce the amount of nitrates that enter the water.

Doxor also mentioned the importance of reducing the amount of fertilizer that is applied to fields, which can reduce the amount of nitrates that enter the water.
Students who plan on graduating early have to hit the books hard, especially for their general education classes. An early graduation date can have a positive impact on students if they can get a job right out of school and begin paying off student loans, but those employments can fall into a vicious cycle.

Students who plan on graduating early have to hit the books hard, especially for their general education classes. An early graduation date can have a positive impact on students if they can get a job right out of school and begin paying off student loans, but those employments can fall into a vicious cycle.
By David Garthwell
at iowastatedaily.com

Bringing the true flair of Italy to the citizens of Ames — that is the goal that owner Salvatore Andreoni has for his new Italian restaurant, Plus39, located in the College Road in Ames.

“Everything we offer here is 100 percent Italian. Nothing is Americanized or pre-cooked,” Andreoni said. “We make everything ourselves on the ovens.”

Plus39 combines the concept of a restaurant with a can- didate and a market. Customers can have an experience, eat and leave as fast as they want. Andreoni said, “Especially, since the concept of a restaurant with a candidate and a market. Customers can have an experience, eat and leave as fast as they want.”

Andreoni has for his new Italian restaurant in Ames, a dream he’s had since he was a child.

His family has had a long tradition of making handmade food in Italy. “I wanted to bring that authenticity to Ames and offer a different experience,” Andreoni said. “Especially, since the concept of an eatery in the College Road differs from restaurants here.”

Besides, Andreoni said, people are always in a hurry and want to see and know how possible.

Plus39 in Europe, on the other hand, tend to stay in one or two hours, sit in a restaurant or talk to each other, which makes dining more of an experience.

“Good food takes its time,” Andreoni said. “We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether,” Andreoni said. “We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether,” Andreoni said.

Andreoni has watched 22 times so far. “I want the restaurant to establish in Ames, and after that, maybe open more restaurants all over Iowa,” Andreoni said. "I think Ames would be successful with up to 500 customers per day. And I've been here every day since the opening. The atmosphere is simply one of a kind."

Plus39 has a strong connection to Iowa State, said Michael Orman, general manager of the restaurant. "The university is so diverse and Ames with people who want to know more about international cultures, so we try to make sure for people from affordable as possible for them," Orman said. "The majority of the staff consists of ISU alumni, who graduated from hospitality management."

Plus39 is an explosion in the mouths of customers, said Andreoni. “I want to create an ambiance of the restaurant in Iowa State and bring that authentic experience to Ames.”

Plus39 is located on Stange Road, opened Nov. 30. Andreoni has for his new Italian restaurant in Ames, a dream he’s had since he was a child.

He said he always goes around and talks to his customers explaining how his business works and giving out recommendations.

"I love the passion and joy you can see in that movie," Andreoni said. “I want to bring that authenticity to Ames and offer a different experience.”

Andreoni has watched 22 times so far. "I want the restaurant to establish in Ames, and after that, maybe open more restaurants all over Iowa," Andreoni said.

Scott Demers, ISU alumnus, “Our chef studied hotel restaurant management at ISU for two years,” Orman said.

"I’m interested in the way the food is prepared, and that’s why I decided to attend the university," Orman said. "We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether," Andreoni said. "We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether," Andreoni said.

Andreoni has watched 22 times so far. “I think Ames would be successful with up to 500 customers per day. And I've been here every day since the opening. The atmosphere is simply one of a kind."

Plus39 has a strong connection to Iowa State, said Michael Orman, general manager of the restaurant. "The university is so diverse and Ames with people who want to know more about international cultures, so we try to make sure for people from affordable as possible for them," Orman said. "The majority of the staff consists of ISU alumni, who graduated from hospitality management."

"Our chef studied hotel restaurant management at ISU for two years," Orman said.

Scott Demers, ISU alumnus, “Our chef studied hotel restaurant management at ISU for two years,” Orman said.

"I’m interested in the way the food is prepared, and that’s why I decided to attend the university," Orman said. "We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether," Andreoni said. "We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether," Andreoni said.

Andreoni has watched 22 times so far. “I think Ames would be successful with up to 500 customers per day. And I've been here every day since the opening. The atmosphere is simply one of a kind."

Plus39 has a strong connection to Iowa State, said Michael Orman, general manager of the restaurant. "The university is so diverse and Ames with people who want to know more about international cultures, so we try to make sure for people from affordable as possible for them," Orman said. "The majority of the staff consists of ISU alumni, who graduated from hospitality management."

"Our chef studied hotel restaurant management at ISU for two years," Orman said.

Scott Demers, ISU alumnus, “Our chef studied hotel restaurant management at ISU for two years,” Orman said.

"I’m interested in the way the food is prepared, and that’s why I decided to attend the university," Orman said. "We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether," Andreoni said. "We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether," Andreoni said.

Andreoni has watched 22 times so far. “I think Ames would be successful with up to 500 customers per day. And I've been here every day since the opening. The atmosphere is simply one of a kind."

Plus39 has a strong connection to Iowa State, said Michael Orman, general manager of the restaurant. "The university is so diverse and Ames with people who want to know more about international cultures, so we try to make sure for people from affordable as possible for them," Orman said. "The majority of the staff consists of ISU alumni, who graduated from hospitality management."

"Our chef studied hotel restaurant management at ISU for two years," Orman said.

Scott Demers, ISU alumnus, “Our chef studied hotel restaurant management at ISU for two years,” Orman said.

"I’m interested in the way the food is prepared, and that’s why I decided to attend the university," Orman said. "We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether," Andreoni said. "We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether," Andreoni said.

Andreoni has watched 22 times so far. “I think Ames would be successful with up to 500 customers per day. And I've been here every day since the opening. The atmosphere is simply one of a kind."

Plus39 has a strong connection to Iowa State, said Michael Orman, general manager of the restaurant. "The university is so diverse and Ames with people who want to know more about international cultures, so we try to make sure for people from affordable as possible for them," Orman said. "The majority of the staff consists of ISU alumni, who graduated from hospitality management."

"Our chef studied hotel restaurant management at ISU for two years," Orman said.

Scott Demers, ISU alumnus, “Our chef studied hotel restaurant management at ISU for two years,” Orman said.

"I’m interested in the way the food is prepared, and that’s why I decided to attend the university," Orman said. "We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether," Andreoni said. "We have more than 150 different kinds of wine and the discount restaurants offer altogether," Andreoni said.
DOLLS p1

Entrepreneurship: Deciding not to use the initial $5 investment, the group survived off of local businesses in an agreement to advertise their ideas with some presentation. “It’s name to ask for money when you can say you’re getting it in charity,” Morris said.

Nearly $400 was raised for the center to help benefit student entrepreneurs who use businesses that support nonprofits sponsored by the Papajohns Center. Kiss said she was a little surprised that so many students look on the social route and not the financial route for their business. “I think this is a reflection of the fact that you don’t have only business students in your class.” Kiss said “I have seen of my students who are really pragma- nomic majors, half are coming from engineering, commerce or agriculture.”

With diversity in age, gender, cultural back- grounds and major differ- ences purposely in mind, Kiss felt that these students have valuable dis- cussions because they can build on their diverse experiences.” Kiss said.

Various entrepreneurship classes across the country tackle this assignment, but in different ways. Some are challenged to design their own projects, while others are given a project to develop and present. In a few cases, Kiss said she had given students more time to develop their idea and that students involved in the project. “I think it was a reaction of the fact that they actually had to do something.” Kiss said. “It’s not just a written project or presenta- tion. It’s not collecting simple data from field.”

The assignment was pur- posefully left ambiguous to dem- onstrate how any true business venture embarks: with limited re- sources that you have to use cre- atively,” Kiss said. “That’s what we want to work for a nonprofit,” Morris said. “Employees always want to know how you can work in a group and work toward a goal. It’s important to take a leadership role, you’re will- ing to put yourself up!”

---

GREAT MATTRESSES GREAT SAVINGS!

3-Sided Queen Set You Can FLIP!

AS LOW AS $299

Hankdorf Queen Pillows

AS LOW AS $349

235 South Duff Ames

515.663.0640

www.vitalitypillows.com

Plus Get FREE Local Delivery or a FREE Blemish Bed with any set $499 and up!

---

Sweep & Gently Used Sweatshirt for 20% Off a New ISU Sweatshirt!

OR, TRADE IN a Gently Used UNIVERSITY of IOWA or UNI Sweatshirt, GET 25% OFF. ONE DISCOUNT PER CUSTOMER PER SWEATSHIRT. NOT VALID ON SALE ITEMS OR UNDER ARMOUR.

---

Take the season for SWAPPUNITY!

December 12th-16th

---

holiday shopping

Apparel, home goods, jewelry, sporting goods and more!

North Grand Mall has the perfect gift for everyone on your list. Show your support! Donate to our Giving Tree and Toys for Tots Programs!

When you want to taste, touch, hug and hold… experience

---

real SHOPPING

North Grand Mall

2801 Grand Avenue, Ames, IA (515) 232-2679

NorthGrandMall.com | Text Mall Name, b. 30323 | On Facebook at the Property

---

ONION p1

eating. ISU Dining does not allow students to share meals more than three times so they can determine how many meals go toward each plan.

“We are able to set meal plans for students by assuming they are the only ones who eat the meals,” Kiss said. “That information is not valid to the trade-in year round. Turn in your old technology and get a gift card for something new, shiny and fancy.”

December 12th-16th

---

ONION p1

A gently used sweatshirt for 20% off a new ISU sweatshirt!

Or, trade in a gently used University of Iowa or UNI sweatshirt. 25% off. One discount per customer per sweatshirt. Not valid on sale items or Under Armour.
Electronic evaluations are necessary

By Zachary Sundstrom

Electronic evaluations are necessary, as many students would like to see an increase in online classes. This is not only due to the higher savings, but also the increased efficiency for students. Online classes have been shown to have higher grades, more engagement, and have increased the retention rates.

Movie ratings no longer relevant, need an update

By Ian Timbulke

Movie ratings no longer relevant, need an update. This is because the current rating system is outdated and does not reflect the current standards of today’s society. The ratings are also often confusing for audiences, leaving them unsure about whether a film is suitable for their age group. A new system of ratings is needed that takes into account the current standards and values of today’s society.
Practice Christmas party etiquette

Respectful guests create successful holiday gatherings

By Hailey Gross
#iowastatedaily.com

For a stress-free finals week, it is a good idea to have enough free time in a row to truly get a little rest. As a result, the annual Christmas Party is the perfect time to show your true colors—advertise your wit, your charming smile, or your affluence in dance, but don't go overboard. Be a respectful, responsible party-goer.

If there is some sort of gift exchange incorporated, make sure you go for something realistic. Most people enjoy a nice bottle of wine, but lesser self-appreciates the very fancy stuff, or a candy cane shaped like a man's genitals. Even if you know who the recipient is, opening such a gift is in front of the entire office might make them a little uncomfortable.

If the social occasion is a workplace party, the rules are particularly strict. There probably should not be any overt kissing in high places, or at least not until your bosses and supervisors are at least as intoxicated as you are.

When it comes to dressing the same thing goes. A little "naughty" is good, as this might be the only time your coworkers see you in something other than stacks and a dress shirt, or a conservative business suit. However, you still want them to respect you, so keep that in mind when picking through your wardrobe.

The most important thing to remember is that not everyone you know is comfortable with such a "naughty" get-up. Some may actually dislike you in something other than your business suit. However, you still want to look your best. Be a respectful, responsible party-goer.

Specific to the family party is that you should be willing to lend a helping hand. Nothing will put your grandparents or parents in a more uncomfortable situation than dishes piling up. Fortunately, if your family loves peanuts, you can always slip off. At the very least, eat a peanut butter cookie.

The most important thing to remember is that not everyone is comfortable with such a "naughty" get-up. Some may actually dislike you in something other than your business suit. However, you still want to look your best. Be a respectful, responsible party-goer.

Specific to the family party is that you should be willing to lend a helping hand. Nothing will put your grandparents or parents in a more uncomfortable situation than dishes piling up. Fortunately, if your family loves peanuts, you can always slip off. At the very least, eat a peanut butter cookie.

The most important thing to remember is that not everyone is comfortable with such a "naughty" get-up. Some may actually dislike you in something other than your business suit. However, you still want to look your best. Be a respectful, responsible party-goer.

Specific to the family party is that you should be willing to lend a helping hand. Nothing will put your grandparents or parents in a more uncomfortable situation than dishes piling up. Fortunately, if your family loves peanuts, you can always slip off. At the very least, eat a peanut butter cookie.

If the social occasion is a workplace party, the rules are particularly strict. There probably should not be any overt kissing in high places, or at least not until your bosses and supervisors are at least as intoxicated as you are.

When it comes to dressing the same thing goes. A little "naughty" is good, as this might be the only time your coworkers see you in something other than stacks and a dress shirt, or a conservative business suit. However, you still want them to respect you, so keep that in mind when picking through your wardrobe.

The most important thing to remember is that not everyone you know is comfortable with such a "naughty" get-up. Some may actually dislike you in something other than your business suit. However, you still want to look your best. Be a respectful, responsible party-goer.

Specific to the family party is that you should be willing to lend a helping hand. Nothing will put your grandparents or parents in a more uncomfortable situation than dishes piling up. Fortunately, if your family loves peanuts, you can always slip off. At the very least, eat a peanut butter cookie.

The most important thing to remember is that not everyone is comfortable with such a "naughty" get-up. Some may actually dislike you in something other than your business suit. However, you still want to look your best. Be a respectful, responsible party-goer.

Specific to the family party is that you should be willing to lend a helping hand. Nothing will put your grandparents or parents in a more uncomfortable situation than dishes piling up. Fortunately, if your family loves peanuts, you can always slip off. At the very least, eat a peanut butter cookie.

If the social occasion is a workplace party, the rules are particularly strict. There probably should not be any overt kissing in high places, or at least not until your bosses and supervisors are at least as intoxicated as you are.

When it comes to dressing the same thing goes. A little "naughty" is good, as this might be the only time your coworkers see you in something other than stacks and a dress shirt, or a conservative business suit. However, you still want them to respect you, so keep that in mind when picking through your wardrobe.

The most important thing to remember is that not everyone you know is comfortable with such a "naughty" get-up. Some may actually dislike you in something other than your business suit. However, you still want to look your best. Be a respectful, responsible party-goer.

Specific to the family party is that you should be willing to lend a helping hand. Nothing will put your grandparents or parents in a more uncomfortable situation than dishes piling up. Fortunately, if your family loves peanuts, you can always slip off. At the very least, eat a peanut butter cookie.

If the social occasion is a workplace party, the rules are particularly strict. There probably should not be any overt kissing in high places, or at least not until your bosses and supervisors are at least as intoxicated as you are.

When it comes to dressing the same thing goes. A little "naughty" is good, as this might be the only time your coworkers see you in something other than stacks and a dress shirt, or a conservative business suit. However, you still want them to respect you, so keep that in mind when picking through your wardrobe.

The most important thing to remember is that not everyone you know is comfortable with such a "naughty" get-up. Some may actually dislike you in something other than your business suit. However, you still want to look your best. Be a respectful, responsible party-goer.

Specific to the family party is that you should be willing to lend a helping hand. Nothing will put your grandparents or parents in a more uncomfortable situation than dishes piling up. Fortunately, if your family loves peanuts, you can always slip off. At the very least, eat a peanut butter cookie.

If the social occasion is a workplace party, the rules are particularly strict. There probably should not be any overt kissing in high places, or at least not until your bosses and supervisors are at least as intoxicated as you are.

When it comes to dressing the same thing goes. A little "naughty" is good, as this might be the only time your coworkers see you in something other than stacks and a dress shirt, or a conservative business suit. However, you still want them to respect you, so keep that in mind when picking through your wardrobe.

The most important thing to remember is that not everyone you know is comfortable with such a "naughty" get-up. Some may actually dislike you in something other than your business suit. However, you still want to look your best. Be a respectful, responsible party-goer.
Players reach career-high point totals, grabbing ‘big’ win heading into break

By Dylan Montz
@iowastatedaily.com

B rian Fennelly showed his team a stack of emails before its showdown with Iowa.

“They were from former players wishing the team well but also mentioned how special the Cy-Hawk game was to them and their memories of the rivalry. That’s exactly what Fennelly said he wanted this year’s team to feel,” senior Hallie Christofferson said after the game.

“I said, ‘You’ve got 40 minutes; what are you going to tell everyone?’” Fennelly said. “I thought Williamson had been practicing well. We run a lot of stuff to get her the ball,” Fennelly said. “She could’ve driven or cut to the basket. She didn’t have a lot of looks in transition, and I think in any game, the ball could get a shot. She got some good looks in transition, and I think in any game, the ball could get a shot. She got some good looks in transition.”

With point guard Nikki Moody in foul trouble throughout the game, Fennelly said the primary ball handler for the Cyclones was to pass the ball — which also included going back court. Williamson added three assists to one turnover to what she did scoring 21 points.

“She was so hesitant at the beginning of the season,” Williamson said. “She was making things for herself.”

“Such a big game for us and such a big game for Iowa, too,” Christofferson said. “It leaves a good spirit in our minds going into break.”

“Just to come out here, play like we did and show our fans how well we can play basketball, it’s just so big for us. It leaves a good win for these fans, it’s just great to be back here,” Christofferson said. “It’s Iowa, so you know there’s going to be a lot more of that. I’m so proud of my teammates for getting this win for us seniors, and to get the win for those fans, it’s just great to be back here.”

“I said, ‘You’ve got 40 minutes; what are you going to tell everyone?’” Fennelly said. “I thought Williamson had been practicing well. We run a lot of stuff to get her the ball,” Fennelly said. “She could’ve driven or cut to the basket. She didn’t have a lot of looks in transition, and I think in any game, the ball could get a shot. She got some good looks in transition.”

With point guard Nikki Moody in foul trouble throughout the game, Fennelly said the primary ball handler for the Cyclones was to pass the ball — which also included going back court. Williamson added three assists to one turnover to what she did scoring 21 points.

“She was so hesitant at the beginning of the season,” Williamson said. “She was making things for herself.”

“Such a big game for us and such a big game for Iowa, too,” Christofferson said. “It leaves a good spirit in our minds going into break.”

“I said, ‘You’ve got 40 minutes; what are you going to tell everyone?’” Fennelly said. “I thought Williamson had been practicing well. We run a lot of stuff to get her the ball,” Fennelly said. “She could’ve driven or cut to the basket. She didn’t have a lot of looks in transition, and I think in any game, the ball could get a shot. She got some good looks in transition.”

With point guard Nikki Moody in foul trouble throughout the game, Fennelly said the primary ball handler for the Cyclones was to pass the ball — which also included going back court. Williamson added three assists to one turnover to what she did scoring 21 points.

“She was so hesitant at the beginning of the season,” Williamson said. “She was making things for herself.”

“Such a big game for us and such a big game for Iowa, too,” Christofferson said. “It leaves a good spirit in our minds going into break.”
New coach to look at 'big picture' in series vs. Dakota Bottineau

By Trey Alessio
#iowastatedaily.com

No matter where you come from, the one thing you always find in collegiate athletics is the intensity and competitiveness that drives players and teams alike. When it comes to the Cy-Hawk rivalry, that intensity is only augmented.

The Cy-Hawk rivalry is a meeting of two teams with a rich history and a shared passion for success. The series, which dates back to 1988, has been characterized by high-stakes matchups and intense competition. Both Iowa and Iowa State have a deep appreciation for the significance of each game, understanding that a victory against the other team can solidify their standing in the state.

With the recent hire of a new head coach at Iowa State, the landscape of the Cy-Hawk rivalry is set to evolve. The new coach, with his fresh perspective, will likely bring a new approach to the series. This is an opportunity for both teams to adapt and embrace the changes, ensuring that the rivalry remains vibrant and relevant.

The Cy-Hawk rivalry will continue when the Cyclones host the Hawkeyes this weekend. Many athletes on both sides of the series appreciate the historical context and the significance of the Cy-Hawk rivalry. They understand that every game is an opportunity to showcase their talents and contribute to their team's legacy.

For many players, the Cy-Hawk rivalry is more than just winning. It's about the legacy they leave behind, the standard they set, and the memories they create. The rivalry is a defining aspect of their collegiate careers, and they are determined to leave a mark.

The Cy-Hawk rivalry is a testament to the passion and dedication that drives collegiate athletics. It is a rivalry that has stood the test of time, and with each passing season, it remains a symbol of the competitive spirit and the drive to succeed.

In summary, the Cy-Hawk rivalry is a timeless tradition that embodies the essence of collegiate sports. It is a rivalry that challenges players to reach their highest potential, and it is a rivalry that fans and players alike look forward to with excitement and anticipation.
HELP WANTED

Jackson Cleaning Service
Call us at 231-3649

- Residential Cleaning
- Getting Your Home Ready For The Market
- Deep Cleaning
- Post Construction Cleaning
- New Home Cleaning
- Move In/Move Out Cleaning
- Apartment Cleaning
- Window Cleaning
- Gutter Cleaning
- General Assistance

The IOWA STATE DAILY Recommends
ALL OUR READERS

CLOSELY EXAMINE ANY OFFER OF A JOB OPPORTUNITY OR SERVICE THAT SOUNDS TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE. CHANCES ARE IT IS.

Before investing any money, please contact the Des Moines Better Business Bureau at 515-243-9377.

HELP WANTED

Internship opportunity for Summer 2014:

Industrial Engineer Intern
Jennie-O Turkey Store is an EEO/AAP Employer.

www.jennieo.com/careers/current-openings

Internship opportunity for Summer 2014:

Maintenance Engineer
Pelican Rapids, MN

www.jennieo.com/careers/current-openings

Internship opportunity for Summer 2014:

Tumbling/Trampoline Coach  Experienced tumbling instructor needed for Lodge 268 at Pelican Rapids, MN. For working Info and career Call Coach Mahoney at 515-231-7233

SUDOU

Crossword

Day’s Birthday (3/15/13)

You’ve trained your pet for yourself and it’s hard to let go. You could gain a lot from other people – but at the same time, you need to be attuned to life. You need to be open to the opinions of people around you.

Aries

(4/21-5/20)

Today you’re more successful in handling your money. A financial problem can be solved with some effort. You can get back into the financial world, and you’ll be happier than you’ve been in a while.

Taurus

(5/21-6/20)

Today is a 5 – Professional plans and projects get a boost, but be careful of a financial downturn. Changing your mind is part of the creative process. Your spiritual beliefs are important, and it’s okay to share them.

Gemini

(6/21-7/21)

Today is a 6 – You make a decision that has a long-lasting effect. It could be unwise.

Cancer

(7/22-8/22)

Today you’re feeling more lively and active. You feel like you’re in a better position to take risks. It’s a good time to try something new.

Leo

(8/23-9/22)

Today is a 3 – You’re in a good mood. You can make a lot of things happen.

Virgo

(9/23-10/22)

Today is a 4 – You’re feeling more adventurous, and you can make a lot of things happen. This is a great time to think about your future.

Libra

(10/23-11/22)

Today is a 6 – You’re in a good mood. You can make a lot of things happen. It’s a good time to try something new.

Scorpio

(11/23-12/21)

Today is a 4 – You’re feeling more adventurous, and you can make a lot of things happen. This is a great time to think about your future.

Sagittarius

(12/22-1/19)

Today is a 6 – You’re in a good mood. You can make a lot of things happen. It’s a good time to try something new.

Capricorn

(1/20-2/18)

Today is a 4 – You’re feeling more adventurous, and you can make a lot of things happen. This is a great time to think about your future.

Aquarius

(2/19-3/20)

Today is a 6 – You’re in a good mood. You can make a lot of things happen. It’s a good time to try something new.

Pisces

(3/21-4/19)

Today is a 4 – You’re feeling more adventurous, and you can make a lot of things happen. This is a great time to think about your future.

Sudoku

Sudoku by the Mahjong Group

Complete the grid so each row, column, and 3 by 3 box in bold borders contains every digit 1-9. Every row, column, and 3 by 3 box in bold borders contains every digit 1-9.

Place Bids

Friday, March 15, 2013

Sudoku Answers are available online at www.iowastatedaily.com/sudokus

Evening Fun & Games

 perl@perlesoom.com | 515.294.4123 | www.iowastatedaily.com/classifieds

Classifieds@iowastatedaily.com
classifieds@iowastatedaily.com

iowastatedaily.com