ClusterFlunk, a new website for university students, may have possible academic dishonesty issues.

The website was created by two University of Iowa students, Adam Nelson and Joe Dallago.

“ClusterFlunk is a website that allows you to connect with other students that are specifically in your class,” Nelson said. “You can post homework, notes, or instructor materials so that everyone in your class can see what’s going on.”

ClusterFlunk was created on the idea that classmates are not connecting with other students in their classes, and study resources between students were not available.

“There were bulletin boards at the sites that could have 400 students in a lecture and you don’t know a single one,” Nelson said. “Who knows if one of those people are your future wife or your future business partner?”

Although ClusterFlunk is intended to be used as an academic resource, ISU students are urged to be mindful about what they share on the website, as well as anywhere online, about their classes.

ISU officials have been informed about many note-sharing websites in the past and would like students to keep the university’s academic dishonesty policy in mind when on these websites.

“If you submit group homework, you should consult with the faculty member or instructor for a given course,” said Michelle Britotich, assistant dean of students and director of judicial affairs. “This is the best way to proactively avoid any allegations of misconduct.”

ClusterFlunk had its beginning two years ago at the University of Iowa. The website had a trial period during 2011 and continued if the website would be successful.

After receiving feedback from 10,000 students at the University of Iowa, Nelson and Dallago launched the website.

There are many posts about the wild party atmosphere on ClusterFlunk, notes Nelson.

“There are messages on ClusterFlunk about everything from homework, parties, your future wife or your future business partner,” Nelson said. “Who knows if one of those people are your future wife or your future business partner?”

Aside from possible academic integrity issues, ClusterFlunk has some faculty members concerned that the website will be used as an academic resource.

Some faculty members are looking at how students will actually use the website.

“What the creators of ClusterFlunk have done is fill a gap for Facebook,” said Michael Bagby, director of the Greenlee School of Journalism and Communication.

Bagby also said Facebook used to encourage and promote academic sharing websites because every¬one could post notes, slides or other materials created or shared by the faculty member or instructor. But Bagby said “This includes material the instructor makes available for the entire class. Students should not share material that has not been generated on their own.”

Nelson believes that students should have to pay to meet other students in the class or share study materials. The website is free to join and it will be used as an academic resource.

“The site is not designed to be an academic resource,” Nelson said. “The website is not intended to be used as an academic resource by the creators. The creators of ClusterFlunk are looking for other students who want to share study notes, homework, and projects with their classmates. They are looking for other students who want to find other students who are taking the same class online.”

Although Nelson said that the website should be used for academic purposes, he acknowledges the potential for academic dishonesty.

“Students cannot claim that Facebook is not a part of the website,” Nelson said. “This includes material that is made available for the entire class. Students cannot say that Facebook is not a part of the website.”

Nelson also said that ClusterFlunk is not a part of the university’s academic dishonesty policy.

ClusterFlunk is not a part of the university’s academic dishonesty policy.

The university’s academic dishonesty policy states that students cannot use social media websites like Facebook to cheat on homework, tests, or exams.

Nelson believes that students should have to pay to meet other students in the class or share study materials. The website is free to join and if they want to use it as an academic resource.

“I do see the customary way that students use social media websites like Facebook being a much larger concern because they have been pre-programmed by Facebook to respond to certain questions, no matter what digital application they are using,” Bagby said.

There are messages on ClusterFlunk that are not related to academic purposes, but only a couple posts about homework and there are many posts about the sold-out party at the University of Iowa (for registering at least 500 ClusterFlunk users from that university).

Nelson has more than 500 members on ClusterFlunk on Tuesday.

American people struggle with lack of immigration reform efforts

Immigration reform is a topic that has been discussed for decades. However, in a recent poll, a majority of Americans felt that immigration reform was not a priority. This sentiment is widespread, with polls showing that most Americans believe immigration reform is not a high priority. This lack of urgency is concerning, as it suggests that the issues surrounding immigration are not being adequately addressed. The fact is that immigration reform is an issue that affects not just the nation, but the world. It is a complex issue that requires careful consideration and a commitment to finding a solution. It is disappointing to see that the American people do not prioritize this issue, as it is one that deserves significant attention.

In the Big 12, this season playing at home and on the road can bring the best out of your team. Between Iowa State (20-5, 8-0) and No. 18 Kansas (22-6, 9-1 last night, that difference was clearly evident as the Cyclones fell 85-76, bringing their losing streak to four.

In front of the 14,000 at Hilton Coliseum, Iowa State was down 26-17 after 10 minutes of play. Not much later, the Cyclones would be down 30-11. Through the first 24 minutes of the game, the Cyclones were making just 29 percent of their shots. But while the home team was struggling, the visiting team was having no trouble shooting.

"We're better than that and we didn't come in with the right mindset," said Miranda Cantrell, ISU junior guard. "It just clicked.

The Cyclones took down Kansas after trailing by 15 in the first half to post a 64-58 win. The Cyclones led nearly the entire game, winning 85-76. In Hoiberg's mind, the biggest difference was the communication, especially with down the road.

"I thought we did a good job of just not letting Texas grab the ball," said Hoiberg. "I though we did a really good job of not allowing them to get an advantage.

"It's a tough little game when you've got momentum that you brought into the game and a lot of easy lobs. We just knew that's exactly what they thought we were going to do and tried to not do that at all."

The frontcourt was where the biggest difference was between the two teams. In Austin, Texas, Cameron Regehr and Justin Moore dominated with 20 points on 10-of-15 shooting and grabbed 18 rebounds. The Cyclones' frontcourt tandem scored 14 points and had 18 rebounds.

"I'm definitely hoping to just do something and get better," said Karyl Clarete, ISU swimming, diving team's strategy. "I want to be able to try to beat my each day and go against her or they might be able to upset her.

"I'm very good at communication, so I'm hoping to do that through Clarete. I'm hoping to just do something and get better,'" Clarete said.

After Iowa State's loss against Nebraska, Clarete started the process of getting familiar with each other over the phone. The next step was bringing Clarete to Ames for a visit.

"I thought she just had a lot of fun with it. She really enjoyed her time here," Clarete said. "She went to practice and knew that was good, and she just loved everything about it.

"It just clicked," Clarete said. "The biggest part of the coach-athlete relationship is communication and Clarete and Sorenson communication was perfect right off the bat, and they spoke of Clarete's long-term goals and what she wants to achieve in the future.

The communication outside the pool also helped Clarete into Clarete's ability within the pool. She contributed to what Sorenson described as a "chess match" that proves to be valuable in the "gaming" events. Sorenson said Clarete was "good at matching each other's moves, trying to match their best swimmer to try and get her or them by trying to avoid her or they might be able to upset her."

odyssey Sims, Baylor present challenge for Cyclones

By Aimee Goodkin

Iowa State is at home to face No. 6 Baylor Wednesday, Feb. 19, 2014, at Hilton Coliseum. The Lady Bears won 85-76 over the Cyclones. The win, however, would be a resume booster and might give Iowa State a win over a top-5 team in Big 12 play.

Players like Williamson are made for the challenge. Radke brings in the role of spoiler in Waco on Wednesday.” I need to go in being the team that can make the momentum that we brought into the Texas big game,” Williamson said. “Any team in this conference is capable of winning any game, and that’s why we can’t not allow her to do what she does.

"She’s going to have some top-competition, so she’s going to have to be on her A-game. She can be in the top-three, that’d be fantastic.”

Recipe by Nicole Arnold

INGREDIENTS

Salad:

- 1/2 cup craisins
- 1/4 cup soy milk
- 1/2 cup English cucumber, cubed
- 1 1/2 cups dry conch pasta shells
- 2 Tbsp. lemon juice
- 3 Tbsp. apple cider vinegar
- 1 1/2 Tbsp. fresh tarragon, chopped
- 1 Tbsp. soybean oil
- 1/2 garlic clove, minced
- 1/4 cup plain greek yogurt
- 1/4 cup soft silken tofu

Dressing:

- 1 Tbsp. soybean oil
- 1/4 cup soy milk
- 1/2 cup English cucumber, cubed
- 2 Tbsp. lemon juice
- 3 Tbsp. apple cider vinegar

METHOD

For pasta salad:

1. Prepare the pasta according to the package directions. Drain and set aside.

2. In a large bowl, combine the ingredients for the salad:
   - Craisins
   - Soy milk
   - English cucumber
   - Dry conch pasta shells
   - Lemon juice
   - Apple cider vinegar
   - Fresh tarragon
   - Soybean oil
   - Garlic
   - Greek yogurt
   - Silken tofu

3. In a small bowl, combine the ingredients for the dressing:
   - Soybean oil
   - Soy milk
   - English cucumber
   - Lemon juice
   - Apple cider vinegar

4. Transfer the pasta to the large bowl with the salad ingredients. Pour the dressing over the pasta and toss to coat. Refrigerate overnight or at least 3 hours before serving.

5. Before serving, whisk the dressing ingredients together. Serve the salad with the dressing and mix to evenly coat.

6. Enjoy!

This pasta salad is full of flavor with a variety of vegetables, like kale and cucumber, providing important vitamins while cranberries provide essential amino acids.

Restaurant of the Month: Dublin Bay Irish Pub and Grill

By Lauren Grant
AmesEats Flavors

Dublin Bay Irish Pub and Grill is an old Irish philosophy that states “there are no strangers, but rather friends you yet meet.” Dublin Bay Irish Pub and Grill has been bringing this philosophy to Ames for almost 15 years.

The quaint little restaurant located past於e-Dine on 625 S. 6th Street prides itself on their made-from-scratch Irish food. Their extensive menu includes everything from light lunches such as soups, clubs and reubens, to exquisite dinner items like steaks, pork loin and walleye. There are many traditional Irish fare dishes to choose from such as shepherd’s pie, fish and chips, lamb stew and their delicious potato pancakes, also known as boxty.

“Dublin Bay Irish Pub and Grill is said to be hand to find the perfect drink to go with your meal. With a list of more than 40 glasses and micro beers on import, there is something for everyone. To top it all off, with one of our unique desserts such as bread pudding or Bailey’s Pie.”

According to general manager, Justin Kabrick, they also offer “the best patio in Ames.” Their patio is a great place for bigger groups to gather in the warmer months.

If you are looking for a little relaxation, stop by their front patio on Monday to Friday. They also offer great daily specials like Tuesday Burgers & Brews and $3 Bloody Mary’s on Sundays.

“Dublin Bay Irish Pub and Grill is a great way to see this product is by hydrating the finished flakes with boiling water. The hydrated pro-

Full guide to soy products available for your meals

By Lauren Grant
AmesEats Flavors

We have a full guide for what you on products are available and how you can incorporate them into your diet.

Silken Tofu

This product comes packaged in a small rectangular cardboard box. This is not the same product as soft water-packed tofu. It is perfect for blending into smoothies, and for use in dips and desserts because of its light, fluffy and creamy-like qualities. When combined with Greek yogurt, you can use it as the base for a healthy snack or dessert. It is also a great substitute for dairy milk. Soy milk can be used in-place of milk in many recipes.

Extra Firm Tofu

This type of tofu is water-packed and ideal for entrees. In order to achieve the firmest and most desirable texture, it is vital to press the tofu. This process removes excess water and prepares the tofu to absorb flavors. To do this begin by draining the water from the package followed by slicing the tofu into desired pieces. Arrange tofu pieces on a paper towel-lined plate or pan. Place a layer of paper towels on top of the tofu pieces, then place a flat, heavy object on top (example, we used glass baking pan and quart size mason jars). Press for at least a half hour, replacing paper towels after 15 minutes or as needed. The tofu is now ready to be marinated, baked or seasoned. This process results in an overall better piece of tofu.

Soy milk

Soy milk has a very nutty flavor with a mild, natural sweetness. Soy milk has fewer calories, grams of sugar and cholesterol than cow’s milk and is a great alternative for those who cannot consume cow’s milk. Soy milk can be seasoned and used in place of milk in most recipes. It can be found ready to eat or alongside many kinds of soy products at supermarkets.

Edamame

Edamame are immature soybeans. They can be found frozen in the pod or shelled. It is important to read the package for information regarding cooking method and time. Edamame can be found in cans. Black soybeans are very similar to regular soybeans, but can be used in place of or alongside many kinds of beans.

TVP (Textured Vegetable Protein)

TVP can also be referred to as TVP (Textured Soy Protein). TVP can be found in many protein-rich products that are located in the health and wellness sections of a supermarket. A great way to see this product is by hydrating the finished flakes with boiling water. The hydrated pro-
