ISU works to focus on assault policies

By Makayla Tendall @SWPositionDaily

Iowa State has had an increase in reported sexual assaults since 2012. Iowa State University’s Office of Equal Opportunity has policies in place to deal with and improve how they deal with sexual assault.

According to the annual crime report, Iowa State had 13 reported sexual assaults in 2015, an increase of 3 from 2012. However, reported sexual assaults are not necessarily indicative of the actual amount of sexual assaults that may have occurred, said Natasha Oren, campus and ROTC cadets help fund the Memorial March to pay tribute to the lives lost.

Though dining centers will not be open to students, some employees will still be working to make sure the dining centers are in good condition when students return.

To ensure they have food bundles on hand, the dining centers shut down and their staff focuses on training coverage and content during break. The Association of Student Organizations has been planning the sporting event since December 2013. “We believe that sports is one of the ways to unite Malaysians all over the country. So we organized this event, we have a chance to unite them from all over in one place,” said Muhammad Haziq Shabir, president of the Malaysian University-Sports Event. The association originally spoke with the Malaysian embassy to invite students from around the nation. They have been planning the sporting event since December 2013.

By Dalton Bergan @SWPositionDaily

Starting Saturday, all dining centers will be closed until March 22, as well as the majority of campus cafes and convenience stores. Students planning to stay in the dorms during Spring Break will have limited options when looking for the most part throughout the week, meaning students may have to find food off campus. Though dining centers will not be open to students, some employees will still be working to make sure the dining centers are in good condition when students return.

The MU Market & Cafe will be open during most of Spring Break, with varying hours. Students can use Dining Dollars to purchase things such as wraps, sandwiches and salads at either location.

Spring Break will have limited options when looking for food on campus instead of having to spend money from my wallet,” said Vegah Adams, sophomore. “I’ll just eat whatever I find on campus or somewhere on Lincoln Way.”

Breakfast and lunch will be served Mondays through Fridays from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. The MU Market & Cafe will be open during most of Spring Break, with varying hours. Students can use Dining Dollars to purchase things such as wraps, sandwiches and salads at either location.

Iowa ranked 2nd in nation for sales in all three agricultural categories

According to the USDA Census of Agriculture, the state is losing ground in its total amount of agriculture sales compared to the rest of the United States. Lawrence said this shows the strength of the ag industry in Iowa is waning.

Lawrence said the increase in value is due to the highest prices of corn, soybeans, cattle and hogs.

For every year, the USDA shows a decrease in sales of corn, soybeans and cattle. Lawrence said this shows the strength of the ag industry in Iowa is waning.

Professor wins award for research

By Blake Dodge
News@Iowastatedaily.com

The ISU chemistry department recently added another award to its pile of honors.

Last Tuesday, professor of chemistry Todd Stone was awarded the National Science Foundation Career Award for his candidacy work on iodine chemistry.

The award presented Tuesday with $300,000 in research money was granted by the NSF to support the research, according to the NSF.

“This is an academic recognition activity that offers a great opportunity to help students in their academic development,” said Jennifer K. Stone.

The NSF Career Award is a great opportunity for universities and their departments to encourage early career researchers to tackle more challenging and important research.

Wishing the NSF Career Award winners, the committee to hereby congratulate them for their remarkable contributions.

The committee wishes to continually provide one of the greatest opportunities to all current faculty members.

Stay safe with smart choices during break

The week many of us have desperately been waiting for has finally arrived. Spring Break, the glorious time to take a working break before heading into the final stretch of the semester has come to Iowa State. The weather is finally nice, and everyone is itching to head out on a new adventure. For some, this means traveling to an exotic destination overseas; for others, it’s just staying close to home. Whatever the plan, it’s important to remember to find that fine line between having a good time and staying safe.

Here are a few things you should keep in mind:

1. Stay aware of your surroundings.
2. Don’t leave your drink unattended.
3. If something seems off, trust your instincts.
4. Have a plan in case anything is stolen.
5. Don’t post photos from a wild spring break adventure.

As you plan your spring break, keep in mind that the party never stops, and stay safe to ensure a fun-filled vacation.

Your Spring Break 2023: A Guide to Safety

Spring Break is coming, and with it comes a peak of partying and fun. While English classes are vital to the American education system, the general English courses should be narrowed down to each major’s specific needs. English courses are often overemphasized and not tailored to the needs of each major. This results in students being deprived of valuable skills that are fundamental. Sadly, it is common for students to feel as if their general education courses are a waste of time, likening it to a required class that was specialized to my major and a business major. Instead, students should focus on the studies each major requires and tailor their coursework accordingly.

Let us assume that the foundation of English courses involves improving writing skills. Since this is true, the students are being deprived of an opportunity to improve their English education with internships. Today, every college student takes an English 250 class to improve their writing skills.

As great as it is to have a place to travel with your university, it is important to remember that you are not alone in these adventures. This includes knowing emerg-ance safety procedures and what to do if you find yourself in a dangerous situation. You should contact the police or sheriff if something seems to happen that requires immediate attention or is a threat to your group. It is always a better idea to be prepared and plan for the worst than to be caught off guard. This does not mean you have to bring over-prepared and plan for the worst. This includes knowing emergencies aren’t quite in their most stable line between having a good time and staying safe.

Each year, more than 1,300 people get reportedly see a high increase, according to the American Medical Association. The best way to stay safe and still have fun on your spring break is to have a plan in case anything is stolen. Though the party never stops, it is important to remember to find that fine line between having a good time and staying safe to ensure a fun-filled vacation.

R eligious liberty is a tricky subject. Few things in American politics are more polarizing than the debate over how to balance religious freedom with other values. The First Amendment to the Constitution protects the right of people to ‘exercise religion freely’ and to ‘conform the same laws in官司 to their own conscience.’ While the Constitution is clear about these rights, the debate is often framed in a way that implies that there is a single, correct way to balance religious freedom with other values.

There are several reasons why this debate is so complex. First, there is a deep level of misunderstanding about what religious freedom means. When people talk about religious freedom, they often think of it as a right to “do as I please” without any restrictions. However, religious freedom is much more nuanced than that. It is a right to practice one’s religion without interference from the government, but it is not a license to violate the rights of others.

Second, there is a lack of understanding about how religious freedom is protected in law. In the United States, religious freedom is protected by the First Amendment to the Constitution. This amendment guarantees the right of individuals to practice their religion without government interference. However, the amendment does not provide a specific guarantee that religious groups will be able to operate freely. Instead, the government is required to respect the rights of religious groups, but it is not obligated to provide them with special favors or protections.

Third, there is a lack of understanding about the diversity of religious belief. In the United States, there are many different religions, each with its own beliefs and practices. This diversity can make it difficult to find common ground on issues related to religious freedom.

Finally, there is a lack of understanding about the importance of religious freedom. Many people believe that religious freedom is a fundamental right that is necessary for a free and democratic society. However, others believe that religious freedom is a threat to the common good, and they argue that it should be limited in some way.

In recent years, the debate over religious freedom has become even more complex. In some cases, religious groups have been able to use their religious freedom to impose their beliefs on others. In other cases, the government has been forced to interfere with religious groups in order to protect the rights of others.

The debate over religious freedom is not simply about how to balance religious freedom with other values. It is also about how to protect the rights of religious groups while respecting the rights of others. This is a difficult task, and it is unlikely that there will ever be a perfect solution. However, it is important that we continue to have this debate and to work toward finding a way to balance religious freedom with other values.
Gymnasts hit the road for crucial meet in Denver

Niang, Long close on team rules

Rodney Coe has been dismissed from ISU's gymnastics program in the wake of a violation of team rules, an ISU spokesperson confirmed Thursday.

Niang was sitting out of practice on Wednesday while Long was nursing an injury that he sustained from a shoulder injury, Green said in a statement Thursday.

"It's going to be public but I guess it will be null and void once it's now. I've been dismissed from the ISU football program after this season while we're continuing my football career somewhere else," Long said in a statement Thursday.

"We know we've got to pick it up because we're coming down the stretch. We've got to get the stops down the stretch that we desperately needed. Rodney and I talked it over, we sat down the stretch, we made them the second time, and today, we were fortunate enough to do it in a very, very important game," Green said.

"We're just outside of qualifying for regionals, so these last two meets are critical," Niang said. "We're really focusing hard on the details it will take to get a big road score this weekend, which will really help our RQS."

"We had a great meet last Friday, but we know we've got to pick it up because we're coming down the stretch," Green said.

"We're really focusing hard on the stretch, take one skill and one routine at a time and getting ourselves in an arena and with equipment as the concentration will be the tools for success, Green said.

The RQS is a metric that weighs a team's six best scores of the season, at least three of which have to have come on the road. The highest score is used and the remaining five of the six best scores are averaged to arrive at a team's RQS.

"We're just outside of qualifying for regionals, so these last two meets are critical," Niang said. "We're really focusing hard on the details it will take to get a big road score this weekend, which will really help our RQS."

Iowa State faces Kansas at 3 p.m. on Saturday at the Class 4-A state tennis tournament in Topeka. The Jayhawks have never been to the NCAA Championships before, but they have the most competitive field in any event. Johnson has high hopes for her performance this week. "She's always been a great athlete, she's just kind of had a number of injuries to her knees like most people do," Johnson said. "Last year, she had a really good year and she's really bringing it on this year."

"She's come into the NCAA indoor meet in a great spot at the SEC Conference championships. I think it will be a really good meet for her," Johnson said. "The Cyclones plan on bringing out their best in the SEC Conference championships."

Kemboi plans to stay disciplined, Ostrowski said to pass to record.

"I think right now we're hitting our stride and season as an All-American," Kemboi said. "It is not us

1:45 was a dream run. He hopes to duplicate his performance from the Big 12 Championships at the NCAAs.
