University addresses drainage

By Jake Lavelle

iowastatedaily.com

August brought dramatic amounts of rainfall to Ames, resulting in flooding and drain issues. The residents of Des Moines area are wowed by the damage to Cyclone Sports Complex. Despite the heavy rain, Ames has seen more people able to drive through the area.

"We also have an individual who is known to be an abuser in his home, but he has no criminal history, so we refuse a permit," Fitzgerald said.

"We also have 'shall-issue' gun legislation," Joiner said. "It just happened to be a convenience and a coincidence."

Kim Kardashian doesn’t keep up with Portia de Rossi

One part of Kim Kardashian doesn’t keep up with Portia de Rossi. Though they were punched palms over who is the go-to first, they are no longer the besties they once were.

“We had to much fun,” Kardashian said in the March issue of People magazine. “That lasted until the world Blue Eye, I met someone new, and Portia is so charming and great. I feel like we grew apart, but Portia is so fun and such a joy to be around.”

Democracy demanded

Social media contributing to possible peaceful transition of power

By Shayon Chatterjee, theconversation.com, and Shyamal Chatterjee

I t is interesting that the former leader of Tunisia, Zine El Abidine Ben Ali, was removed from power with social media. The recent election results in Tunisia also point to the democratic shift that has taken place over the last decade. In 2011, there were widespread protests and social media played a significant role in mobilizing the protesters. The protests were peaceful and the government eventually conceded to the demands of the protesters. This is a perfect example of how social media can be used to promote democracy.

In addition to Tunisia, social media has also been used to bring about positive changes in Egypt, The Hague, and Brazil. In Egypt, the revolution of 2011 was sparked by social media, and the Egyptian government was ultimately forced to make significant changes to the constitution and the laws that were in place. In The Hague, social media was used to bring attention to the issue of the disappearance of the journalist, Lyra Meari, who was arbitrarily detained and disappeared in 2018. The hashtag #Justice4Lyra was used to raise awareness and bring attention to the issue. In Brazil, social media was used to bring attention to the issue of the environmental destruction that was taking place in the Amazon Rainforest.

Overall, it is clear that social media can be used to promote democracy and bring about positive change in society. It is important for citizens to use social media responsibly and to be aware of the potential risks and challenges associated with its use.

Egypt more important culturally, politically that most people realize

By Lauren Hayood

W e are living in a time when Egypt is once again an important ally in the Middle East, as a result of its strategic location and political and economic importance. However, people often overlook the cultural and political significance of Egypt.

CULTURAL SIGNIFICANCE

Egypt is known for its rich cultural heritage, which dates back to ancient times. The country has a diverse range of art forms, including music, dance, literature, and film. Egyptian music is known for its traditional melodies and rhythms, while Egyptian dance is known for its bold and expressive movements. Egyptian literature is also notable, with many famous authors and poets hailing from the country.

POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE

Egypt has also been an important political player in the region. The country has been a key player in the Arab-Israeli conflict, and its leaders have played a significant role in international negotiations. Egypt has also been a key player in efforts to promote peace and stability in the region.

In summary, Egypt is more important culturally and politically than most people realize. It is a country with a rich cultural heritage and a long history of political influence, and it continues to play a key role in regional and international affairs.

Sunday's game might bring back a win after two losses

By David Merrill

There's no place like home. Iowa State is hoping that statement rings true as it travels to Hilton Coliseum for the Saturday game versus Kansas State.

The Cyclones (10-6, 4-4 Big 12) enter the game after dropping their last two contests to Kansas and Oklahoma, both on the road.

Junior forward Anna Prins and guard Brittany Chambers have been solid all season long for the Cyclones, scoring a combined 20.5 points and 10.1 rebounds per game.

Junior forward Winter Sorenson and guard Jalana Childs have also played well as of late, averaging 14 points and 10.6 rebounds per game.

With their two-game skid putting them out of the top 25, their road against the Wildcats won't be simple.

Travel troubles cannot stop Cyclones

No. 9 Iowa State loses its chance at an NCAA Tournament bid after debuting No. 34 North Carolina State does.

Washington-Pacific in Raleigh, N.C., No. 9 Iowa State had the chance to make its first NCAA Tournament appearance. But the Cyclones fell to the Wolfpack 90-70.

The team then has to play in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and return to Ames on a bus.

"I feel bad," Royce said. "That's everyone was a little bit upset on the whole thing." "That's a little bit of a letdown," Royce said. "This was a trip that should have been enjoyed. So we knew it before it turned sour.

Despite travel troubles, the Cyclones were blessed. The No. 9 Oklahoma State Owls, who were the No. 1 overall seed in the NCAA Tournament, were in the same bracket. So if the Cyclones had won they would have been able to get to the Sweet 16.

"Right when we touched down from the plane I was just really excited to see out training and starting our basketball career in another state," Royce said.

Next up for the Cyclones are the No. 6 to 10 Big 12 Big 12 Big 35 will be the team Iowa's second Big 12, against the I-Stateብ

What?

Gutsy, grow a pair and ask a girl out for Valentine's day.

To the guy smoking as he walked from Citt to the MU today, thank you. I did get to meet an asthma attack as I walked to lunch. Oh, and welcome to our nonsmoking campus. Just Sayin'!

I'm told the bus stop, I take the elevator to the 2nd floor of the library, and I climb on in existence. Despite all of this I am still in excellent shape.

To the two guys on the track who watched my slow motion versus record fall to avoid doing the splats on the ice, I know I probably made your day. I saw you laugh at me, but don't worry, I was laughing too.

To the dude sitting in front of me, you honestly all bit on the back of your neck.

Gentlemens, there are weight gains on campus.

We're out there, just go for it! I take your word for it, you're dumb.

To the guy who saw me fall on the ice, asked if I was okay, and then you stand up: Thanks!

To the kid wearing the North Face jacket, you see, I'm completely bad, I'm just a great rewards for the seeds you planted earlier. Don't kick back yet. Keep planting.

-- Work is important for you today, but you're ready to relax, and don't mean the next one won't be "yes."

-- Try not to break anything. Take special care.

-- T ry not to break anything. Take special care.

-- Don't be too harsh on yourself today. If you can't afford it, consider buying something else instead of this one.

-- Permission to daydream. It's okay if you can't afford it, consider buying something else instead of this one.

-- Acknowledge all you've accomplished. List the things you've accomplished.

-- What could the future hold?

To my roommate there is more to life than texting, and more to life than texting. You look like you belong in a van with "free candy" written on the side. Just sayin'!

To our nonsmoking campus, we're out there, just go for it! I take your word for it, you're dumb.

To the girl who was wearing a bunny hat, you see, I'm completely bad, I'm just a great rewards for the seeds you planted earlier. Don't kick back yet. Keep planting.

-- Reinvent the goal.

-- Make sure to clean it up, for workability.

-- Communication sets you back. Just sayin'!

-- Don't be too harsh on yourself today. If you can't afford it, consider buying something else instead of this one.

-- You fit the picture of the absent-minded professor. It's not all bad. You can make use of your new found freedom.

-- It might get uncomfortable, especially if you don't have the necessary tools. And it's only getting better.

-- Rely on your tools. And it's only getting better.

-- You may feel critical of yourself today, but you're really doing a great job with the work you have.

-- Find balance between work and play. True wealth may lie in time spent with love.

-- Ease up.

Group 1

The arrival of a group advocating these changes to campus life has created a stir for several members of the ISU community.

“Think that people starting carrying concealed weapons on campus: the atmosphere of campus will change to one where people need to be more conscious of other people,” said Stephen Mack, senior professor of psychology. “I think the potential for harm is much greater than any benefit we could ever gain because we’re getting out of students carrying concealed weapons on campus.

Many concerns have been raised about the possibility of a conflict that could be applied to concealed carry on campus.

In social psychology there’s this very re- cent effect called the weapons effect, which is a tendency for people to behave aggressively when they are in possession of a weapon,” Mack said. “Based on previous research and due to the fact that the keys aren’t being given out, people are less likely to be targeted.”

However, some say the opposite.

“Of all the campuses that do allow campus carry, there hasn’t been a single incident where there was an uncontrolled weapon,” Taylor said.

People who have had intentions are going to do it anyway. A rule doesn’t stop them. All it does is disorient the people who have no intention of breaking the law.

The tempers of protesters in Mubarak’s hands, not in Mubarak’s hands. That would include my future landlord!”

“I am going to the Housing Expo because I can win prizes & get to know my future landlord!”

“Get out! Get out!” was chanted by Mubarak’s protesters. Protesters watched his speech on screens hauled above their heads up on the square. Quiet at first, protesters began protecting their homes from “Villains.”

Each apartment building started to look for its own protection plan. A rule doesn’t stop them. All it does is disorient the people who have no intention of breaking the law.

While also creating some confusion for those who don’t wish to break the law.

And learned the current key by making the ability to obtain a permit more accessible throughout the entire state.

Facebook has no longer al- lowed as much discretion as before. This also allows for admin- istrative and judicial re- view for any permit denial or revocation.

Parts of that legislation provide an excellent oppor- tunity to communicate to our community members what we do through education, faculty, staff- students and ultimately regulate the law,” said Fenton.

Muhammad’s statement and said the Constitution specifically prohibits the president from delegating any power to the vice president. As a result, the power to denounce Parliament or dissolve the government and the power to ask for amend- ments to the Constitution re- main in Mubarak’s hands, not Fenton’s.

“The vice president is the de facto president,” said Fenton. “When he heard of the protests only his family and people are tired of the instability. His parents said they were OK, and his community members what there’s no push and you can do anything. This also allows for ad- ministrative and judicial re- view for any permit denial or revocation.”

While it becomes clear he would not stand down, they erupted. "Get out! Get out!" was chanted by Mubarak’s protesters. Protesters watched his speech on screens hauled above their heads up on the square. Quiet at first, protesters began protecting their homes from “Villains.”

Each apartment building started to look for its own protection plan. A rule doesn’t stop them. All it does is disorient the people who have no intention of breaking the law.
