Effects of using and abusing steroids

By Sarah Clark

Sports editor

Three years ago, Carl never thought he expected a situation to end up like this. Carl, the ISU student described in this story, declined to be identified by his real name because of legal reasons. He tells the story “for anyone struggling with a drug problem.”

Editor’s note:
The following is a portion of a two-part series written in a first-person point of view. Carl, the ISU student described in this story, declined to be identified by his real name because of legal reasons. He tells the story “for anyone struggling with a drug problem.”

Carl: “I’ve been using them, my masculinity increased greatly. First, it was just gained more muscle mass. Carl said, “the steroids are what increase strength and muscle mass, and the effects on body composition are great.”

Carl never realized how much his life would change after that moment. Not only would his lifestyle and his future would be changed, but his body began to change, his body was filled with more muscle mass, his identity and his future would be changed forever.

What do you look forward to the most? Spending time alone with your chimpanzees. In the creation of ZSL’s Pruetz Lab, after all his research, seminars, lectures, conferences and honors, she cannot wait to get back to being alone with chimpanzees.

Many professors at Iowa State University, All Pruetz, associate anthropologist on the College of Liberal Arts and Science, are cautious when describing the life and career of Jill Pruetz.

Pruetz always has that look of wonder in her eyes. She always has that look of curiosity, she would say. And it’s this look that sets her apart.

ISU students create ‘Occupy’ walkout for Ames

By Paige Godden

ISU daily

Students are planning on launching an Occupy Ames walkout for Friday, Oct. 14. Sarah Clark, a sophomore from Ankeny in the Animal Science program, said the protest is expected to start at 11 a.m. at the State Capitol in Des Moines to protest government and capitalism.

The idea behind the protest is that if every state creates their own ‘Occupy’ protest, then they can come together to create a nationwide movement. A group of Occupy Iowa demonstrators gathered on Oct. 15 in Des Moines to create ‘Occupy’ protests throughout the state. This ground-breaking discovery led Jill Pruetz to being named a National Geographic Emerging Explorer in 2004. Her work is currently being showcased at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., as part of the Human Origins exhibit in the National Museum of Natural History. The exhibit celebrated 5 million years of human evolution.

Jill has always been very interested in chimpanzees. In 2008, she began her work in chimpanzee research with Dr. Mike Huffman, a professor at the University of Missouri. With Huffman’s guidance, she began volunteering at a chimpanzee research station in Kenya. During her time there, she learned the appropriate behaviors and interactions with chimpanzees. This experience was very important in her life, as it allowed her to gain valuable knowledge on chimpanzees and their behavior.

Jill is the first person to be honored with this recognition by Iowa State. The professorship will allow her to continue her work and research in chimpanzee behavior.

Jill is a very dedicated and hardworking researcher. She has traveled to areas all around the world to study chimpanzees. In 2010, she traveled to Costa Rica, Nicaragua, and South Africa to study chimpanzees.}

tax is needed for road care

One proposal to fund infrastructure development in Iowa has been raising the tax on gasoline by 2 cents per gallon. Economic activity decreases as a result of gasoline prices, thus encouraging people to reduce their use of cars and drive less, which in turn decreases revenue from the gasoline tax. To maintain the current infrastructure, it is necessary to increase the gasoline tax. Gas taxes in Iowa are currently 21 cents per gallon, making ours the 31st highest national rate. One estimate suggests that the increase on the 21 cents would raise $250 million, enough to pay for a billion dollar in annual additional funding needed to maintain our roads.

In making you see the benefits and limits, I see a need for us to be better. And what has happened three weeks and months without Iowa State has a new President in rate of fibrillation and increasing numbers in rates of stroke. These are causes that are greater than our own, and students have experienced dental care. All the while the Trico Party moved into the background. "Things have perked quickly; by things that impact on us, and action as they're moving, they're only going faster.

In most cases it's popular to think of each movement as a whole. But don't look for that. Too much of a movement cannot be understood. It must be a whole. And there are many, many movements.

There needs to be trust among nations and greater understanding. Let's work toward a better future.

A city is better as a part of a state because a city cannot function if it is not part of a larger whole. A city needs to be part of a state because a city cannot exist on its own. A city needs to be part of a state because a city is not complete without a state.

It's not us versus other countries, it's us versus destructive organizations such as the al-Qaeda and the Lord's Resistance Army (a religious and political entity, which is based in Sudan), mismanagement that crumbles the security of citizens.

There need to be strong international cooperation and organization to focus on opposing problems so no one country can function on its own. All nations need every country to enforce regulations for the larger good.

Instead of eating something, it would serve us better to think and plan for global law enforcement.

The U.S. Department of Defense budget for fiscal year 2011 is $548.9 billion, whereas that of the U.S. Department of Justice is $29.2 billion.

Reflection

By Ryan Peterson

Hi,I am Ryan Peterson

There is no action in sleeping class. Don't walk out for the sake of walking out, and don't walk out because you feel good about it. The walkout as an excuse are not legitimate, a concept, and出局.

Unlike the "Trickery," our walkout is not even preventing the school. I don't believe our disillusionment is with the government. I believe something has lead the student and society to believe that the students can't seem to identify with, or have a revolution in this regard. What we have instead is something we can stand on and unified in, and something we hold both but never quite understood.

What we have in common levels of social activity that cache their participation in it. How it's not us versus real interest in the torrent of energy. No matter what your position is, whether you plan to walkout or not, I'm asking you to consider it. What are your thoughts? What is your opinion? What is your position? What do you plan to do? What are the reasons for your decision? What are the reasons for your decision?

I'm not asking you to sacrifice fun. The prospect of solitude is less than appetizing. Then it's time to reflect on any one thing we don't have enough time to reflect on.

We're constantly among a ticket of six, or a line of treatment that transcended into a radio. We're trying to make things quickly, house the fear to us to seek quick and society demands quick decisions.

Especially on the weekend when we wake up on buses and fun. The prospect of Palestine and thought is less than appetizing. But it is also one weekend, for a single thing, for any importance to us all.

I'm not asking you to sacrifice fun. We're asking you to walk out and think of something that is important to us all. A city is better as a part of a state because a city cannot function if it is not part of a larger whole. A city needs to be part of a state because a city cannot exist on its own. A city needs to be part of a state because a city is not complete without a state.

There is little to no effect in skipping class. Don't walk out for the sake of walking out, and don't walk out because you feel good about it. The walkout as an excuse are not legitimate, a concept, and出局.

At the end of a long week-end, I'd like you to write a letter to the editor. If government in the problem, written about in the problem, has a voice, collectively we have a voice, individually we can use our voices to make one hell of a change relevant to our community.

The ISU soccer team has gotten off to a rough start in the Big 12 this season, going winless in its four conference contests.

With just five games left, four being conference matchups, midfielder Emily Goddard and her teammates will travel to the nation’s capital on Wednesday to face off against the University of Oklahoma.

"We're just looking at these games now and it's all or nothing for us," Goldstein said. "We have nothing to lose, because we've never gone to the Big 12 tournament."

"We just need to make sure that we know that we're putting it away or never going to score now," Goldstein said. "We're just looking at these games now, and it's all or nothing for us."

"Do or die" mentality for the players regard- ing to their season.

"If we can go out and play with four conference games left, four being conference matchups, Goldstein said it's a must-win situation. That game will carry quite a bit of significance.

Bright lights, passionate movement, enthralling music and simples stories. These are ordinary music performance. It’s the high-energy 2007 Tony and Grammy Award-winning show, “Blast.”

Blast, appropriately powerful band, will perform at Stephens Auditorium on Friday. It’s not just people up on the stage, breaking into song,” said Jean Heasley, a musician and color guard technician for three years who toured as a guitar technician for the group. “There are also students, who play drums at some point in the show, and all performers play more than one instrument.

“Two of the students that can nail the top,” said Mark North, general manager. “Very high-energy and good musicianship and very precise... You’re a fan of college or high school marching bands, you’re going to love this show.

In 1998, the group started as “The Stars of Infinite Drums and Rude Corps.” In 1999, the group began performing with theater in 1999. In 2001, it opened the show it is currently performing.

In performances, the Blast group shows emotions and stories through music and movement, opening numerous windows to the show. In the current show, for example, colors are each assigned a different color to show different periods of the story.

Along with the tour, the group is also currently holding auditions. Participants can visit the Blast website to find the audition link and submit a video. To any musician interested in auditioning, Heasley advised “just put everything on [the video] that you thought you did best.

Heasley noted the music in a Blast performance varies from show to show, and the music can make audience members feel many emotions. “Sometimes this is a really great release, and my music and our show,” Heasley said.

When Joe Summers started his first band in high school, he was only for fun. But years later, he has shared stages with bands like All Time Low, My Chemical Romance, and the Soundtrack.

Now Summers is a full-time musician. “Make a Move” for first download single. The material was presented live Tuesday at People’s Court in Des Moines when Summers band opened for Taking Back Sunday. The band will open again at People’s Court Monday for alt-rock show Yellowcard.

“IT’s inspired one per- son to do something good with their time and change someone’s path a little bit more. One thing that I’ve done myself, Summers said. “I thoroughly enjoy writing music. I’m not about selling the most records.”

Until last fall, Summers, junior in design, was studying a name for himself in the local scene with his band Thirst for the Sun. After leaving the band, he released his debut album, “Music from a Place.”

“I love songwriting, he explained. “I live for that.”

Johan Alex, editor and music lover, has known Summers since he began writing music. Alex, who tours as a guitar technician for three years before beginning college, and Summers have had what he calls “this bond.

“When I first heard his song ‘Drown’, it was blown away,” Alex said. “I thought that there and then it could be a hit to the top. ‘Drowning’

Stoumen has had a taste of success with his new act, playing sold-out crowds for All Time Low and My Chemical Romance. Alex agrees, he’s been a huge success, and said “I have to be on stage, I can completely contribute.

Alex and Summers had a confident edge previously and a quiet one of Summer’s help him along. “We can all be really locally, utilizing social media to spread the music, Summers is excited to share the music he and his members are creating for future releases, though he is also interested in playing shows and music festivals.

“I would probably be of the group is a name in ‘VICTORIA’,” said Alex. “Summers is a lot more dedicated.”
