Savvy spending: How to score Apple products
By Jessica Sticker
CNN Wire Service
NEW YORK — This holiday season is expected to start with a better-than-normal holiday season.
Despite a weak economy, customers are still expected to spend more money on holiday gifts.
As of now, customers are expected to spend about $200 on holiday gifts, which is higher than the previous year.
Contrary to popular belief, there are ways to purchase the same products for a $50 or 50 percentage of the price.
Although most tech gadgets and appliances cost $100 or more, there are ways to purchase them at a lower price.
For example, many popular smartphones and tablets are available at a lower price.

Responsibility of cleanup lies with individual

If you’re hard-pressed to remember when Homecoming week was last year, you’re not alone.

An entire weekend’s worth of Halloween shenanigans probably didn’t help but by way of reminders, Homecoming was over almost two weeks ago.

While enjoying our weekend festivities, we noticed something — our campus was filthy.

Some board members were pretty serious about publicly chastising certain greek houses for post-apocalyptic landscaping, fearing community backlash.

The greek community is a pillar of the community. They’re responsible for sponsoring philanthropic events on a regular basis in the pages of our newspaper, and we’re always happy to plug tasty food for greek organizations.

Campustown is a great place for ISU students to live and play, and we’re happy the Government of the Student Body is making efforts to improve the area.

It’s not right to represent the city the university, our community and as a whole. “That’s not Lord of the Flies.”

We were surprised to find our area had been fined or given some other equally futile sort of legal reminder; we’re not just sick of looking at piles of garbage and walking over smashed beer cans.

We aren’t exactly at our prettiest this time of year, but it doesn’t look like we’re improving.

We’re pretty sure the greek houses have the manpower to have what’s left of their display up and out of their way just as soon as the season is over.

We’d like to see it done. Legacy Tower and the surrounding area is definitely a most beautiful space, but we’re pretty sure other areas can be solved with a rake, Hefty bag and some old-fashioned work.

We’re a responsible to ourselves and others — take care of what’s around you. We need to help our fellow community members keep our campus clean.

Execution, momentum lacking as Cyclones give Buffaloes their first conference win

By David Merrill

iowastatedaily.com

Boulder, Colo. — Boulder, Colo., is a long ways from Iowa State.

As a team, the Cyclones found themselves even deeper in the hole than usual Saturday night against Nebraska last week.

The Buffaloes, with little momentum, took advantage of a 17-play 154-yard drive to take a 10-0 lead with 2:15 left in the second quarter, and the Cyclones never got out of the hole.

Nebraska coach Mike Riley was pleased with his team's performance. He said it was the best of the season for the Buffaloes. Riley said there are still things that need to be fixed, but overall he was satisfied with the performance.

The Buffaloes' offense opened up well, however. The Cyclones' defense had little success against the Big Ten offense. Nebraskas' quarterback, Taylor Martinez, said the Cyclones had trouble stopping the run.

Iowa State's offense was held to a season-low 175 yards, the fewest in the last five games. The Cyclones had a chance to score late in the game, but Nebraska's quarterback, Taylor Martinez, intercepted a pass on the Cyclones' 38-yard line with less than two minutes left.

The Cyclones were held to just three points in the game, the fewest in the last five games. The Cyclones had a chance to score late in the game, but Nebraska's quarterback, Taylor Martinez, intercepted a pass on the Cyclones' 38-yard line with less than two minutes left.

The 2012 women's basketball team won their first Midwest Regional championship since 1988. The Cyclones, led by head coach Bill Fennelly, beat Arizona State 113-97 on Saturday night in Peoria, Ill.

The Cyclones missed only 15 of 61 shots, including three of 10 three-point attempts. They dominated Arizona State in the first half, outscoring them 46-23.

Arizona State then turned it around in the second half, outscoring the Cyclones 54-48, but Iowa State still won the game 113-97.

The Cyclones are now 35-1 overall and will face North Carolina in the Elite Eight on Tuesday night.

Iowa State will face Bob Knight's Tulsa

As a team, the Cyclones found themselves even deeper in the hole than usual Saturday night against Nebraska last week.

The Buffaloes, with little momentum, took advantage of a 17-play 154-yard drive to take a 10-0 lead with 2:15 left in the second quarter, and the Cyclones never got out of the hole.

Nebraska coach Mike Riley was pleased with his team's performance. He said it was the best of the season for the Buffaloes. Riley said there are still things that need to be fixed, but overall he was satisfied with the performance.

The Buffaloes' offense opened up well, however. The Cyclones' defense had little success against the Big Ten offense. Nebraskas' quarterback, Taylor Martinez, said the Cyclones had trouble stopping the run.

Iowa State's offense was held to a season-low 175 yards, the fewest in the last five games. The Cyclones had a chance to score late in the game, but Nebraska's quarterback, Taylor Martinez, intercepted a pass on the Cyclones' 38-yard line with less than two minutes left.

The Cyclones were held to just three points in the game, the fewest in the last five games. The Cyclones had a chance to score late in the game, but Nebraska's quarterback, Taylor Martinez, intercepted a pass on the Cyclones' 38-yard line with less than two minutes left.

With 25 points from the Iowa State center Kelsey Bolte, Iowa State pushed its season-opening victory Saturday against Western Illinois to 58-32. Bolte, who said she had been shooting well lately, flirted with all of her 29-point attempts, with three of them coming in the first five minutes of the game.

“We’re lucky Kelsey Bolte is on our team,” coach Fred Hoiberg said. “When you’re a senior you want to do anything you can to help win a game. Kelsey did a great job today. She was very good on the boards.”

Bolte, who also contributed with eight rebounds and nine points, also helped us a lot,” said sophomore Chelsea Poppens. “When you miss some free throws we panic a little bit.”

Iowa State went into the locker room with only a five-point lead at 31-26. They stepped up the pressure during a 15 minute stretch and outscored Western Illinois 32-7 from the field, which slowly turned the game early, keeping the competitiveness out of the game.

“Your shooting is important, especially when you have a good team,” senior Demery said. “We needed to adjust a little bit,”

“We just don’t want to get beat,” Bolte said. “Especially in front of our fans and the great crowd we have. We want to come out on Monday and play a great game.”

The Cyclones will take on Drake at 7 p.m. at Hilton Coliseum on Monday.

Tourney crowns 11 ISU placewinners

Max Mayhall has grown up in one of the toughest girls wrestling programs in the nation. The Democrat native met his off-the-straight wire after a second round win was a stone's throw from the 141-pound championship boiler at the Harold Nichols Open on Saturday.

“Just to get past [the second round] and just wrestle in each match is awesome,” from Allen, Mayhall, who beat 7-1 the 4-10, didn’t compete on how I’ve got to get as far as I’ve ever been. I’ve got to win the whole tournament. Just keep wrestling unattached. Ryak classes for the Cyclones while working renovation on the turf due the flooding in August. The second tournament was held in the Bergstrom Indoor Facility this year because the tournament's regular location, the Recreation Athletic Center, was under huge renovation in the fall.

The Cyclones did manage to afer, and they didn’t allow the second half to turn into a shredding.

“We’re lucky Kelsey Bolte is on our team,” coach Fred Hoiberg said. “When you’re a senior you want to win a game.”

The dance was followed by a series of performances based on the chosen theme for the night. From a dance depicting blossoming love between two people on their wedding day, the cultural night provided a taste of India through a variety of senses.

An 11-course meal was served after the various cultural performances, featuring tandoori chicken, paneer curry, rice, naan, samosa and more.

“I loved it. It was fun. The night provided an opportunity to experience rich culture,” said Mashaba Mashala, graduate student in English. “I wish there was something like this for every community at Iowa State,” Mashala said.
