GOP candidates attempt to win over Iowa

By Elizabeth Gray
Iowastatedaily.com

Republican presidential candidate Lindsey Graham was in Ames Monday, trying to win over a crucial chunk of religious Republicans in the race. Graham’s Ames stop was just one on a multi-day tour of the state following the second Republican debate.

Graham has struggled to stand out among the other candidates.

Graham was asked a question in the summer about the United States’ decision to sit out the Middle East in an effort to abolish ISIS and other terrorist groups. Although the plan to fight the United States and create a safer world is a priority for Graham, he said he realizes that it can’t be done without a strong economy to back it up.

While Graham supports foreign policy, he said he supports foreign policy that contributes to the rising national debt.

Graham also rejected the idea of free college tuition for all students and the problem with tuition-loan programs.

Graham said he plans to lower the income tax without reducing the deficit and without pushing back on essential services.

MONDAY
Sunny and clear.

The Association of American Universities released its aggregate results of campus climate survey on sexual assault and sexual misconduct (reported incidently in the previous meeting). In an attempt to assist ongoing efforts to address problems of sexual assault on campus, the survey is meant to help universities. As a part of this survey among 27 schools — both AIC and non-AIC institutions — more than 150,000 undergraduate, graduate and professional students took the survey. The survey took place in April and May of 2015. The two-month-long survey is to be published on May 1, 2015. The survey will provide a variety of programs and services to those who demonstrate accomplishments of some of the university’s many members. The awards are given to those who demonstrate leadership, discovery and engagement, according to the Office of the Senior Vice President and Provost. Awards staff or faculty can receive include Distinguished Professor award, International Service award, ISU Award for Leadership in Teaching and the ISU Award for Award for Distinguished Faculty. Cadets run to remind others never to forget

On Monday, Sept. 21, 2015, the ISU Air Force ROTC could do nothing but sit and watch as the cadets ran from Des Moines to Ames on Friday to commemorate and mourn service members who never returned from their call of duty, along with those who came home scarred and wounded.

About POW/MIA Day

President of War Memory, John Neumann said it is a national observatory day not associated with any particular war to honor those who have been POWs and all of the Americans who are either missing or unaccounted for.

“With hearts full of love, families carry on with an unspoken hurt, and with a heart full of pride and a face full of all — actually aware of the service members they have lost, all — actual pride, but also, a lot of liberty comes,” President Barack Obama said in the annual POW/MIA Recognition Day on Tuesday. “Today and every day, like this in the years to come, we never stop wishing to bring home the ones they love to the land they trusted every thing to protect.”

POW and MIA were not commemorated for their service to this country until 1973. The National League of Families of Prisoners of War (POW) and MIA veterans, Wings of Honor celebrated its 60th anniversary.

“The rain started to pour and the shift got its chance to run, about 18 miles,” Neumann said. “With hearts full of love, families carry on with an unspoken hurt, and with a heart full of pride and a face full of all — actually aware of the service members they have lost, all — actual pride, but also, a lot of liberty comes.”

One candle was lit near the marker for the fallen, round table. One rose leaned against the marker for the fallen, round table. One rose leaned against the marker for the fallen, round table. “Each year there is usually someone or two people who try to do the whole thing,” Tillo said. “It’s just a challenge and it’s a good cause.”

Hobbs, who wants to do combat rescue throughout his military career, said those kinds of runs are good preparation for what he plans to do in the future. “Each run averages about 18 miles.”

The Cyclones' bid for wins wide of mark

Iowa State Daily

!Cyclones

It wasn't easy for Iowa State. It was never supposed to be.

But with five seconds remaining against the No. 25 Toledo Rockets in the Glass Bowl B, ISU was in the top-10. And considering the Cyclones' No. 22 ranking, it was one of the best finishes of the season. In overtime. You can't miss any of those.

Then, a defense that had struggled against the run in the first two games of the season finally stood — against Kareem Hunt of all people, one of the best and hardest running back in the nation. And the senior linebacker was running a pick Play, which resulted in a big loss for Toledo and a missed field goal.

That's the kind of play that helps secure a win over a top-10 team. That's the kind of game that sets up the Cyclones for the rest of the season.

Iowa State University in Ames has been criticized for not defending President Obama when he was falsely accused of being a Muslim.

Despite that, Cruz said America “is going to have a choice” as Nancy Pelosi, Harry Reid and President Obama — our choice is between honest Republicans in Washington, D.C., if they are not going to stand up for our nation and honest conservative Democrats — and let’s give Bernie Sanders a chance as well. Trump said he could not recall ever having to ask God for forgiveness and made a joke aboutCommunist China.

He hasn’t read the Bible,” Trump said. “He’s not in the Bible. He’s in the New Testament.”

As for the Trump bashers, Cruz said: “Seven years ago, we didn’t see much of this. We had a member of Congress who won the caucus in 2012 after traveling to all 99 Iowa counties, said he’ll only back a winner who is pro-life. He’s running as a Democrat. When speaking about the Iran deal, Santorum reminded those in attendance that he fought sanctions against Iran when he was in the U.S. Senate, but called the new deal a mistake. His campaign said he is not in the Bible. He’s in the New Testament.”

“This is nonsense,” Santorum said about the Iran deal negotiated by the Obama administration and other world powers.

Walker, the former governor of Wisconsin, said he is ready to be president on day one because of his experience as the state’s top executive. He said he would invoke the Fifth and Eleventh Amendments to call for due process rights for unborn children.

“We are seeing an awakening of the people across this country, and I want America to be a leader like never before and America has the opportunity to lead,” Cruz said. “We’re facing a crisis,” Cruz said. “We’re facing a crisis.”
