For Iowa State, Abdulkarim Vannat, president of the ISU College Democrats, said he hopes that financial aid and student debt will be addressed this year as well.

"Definitely affordability at universities is a big issue for college students," Vannat said. "We’ll need to see some tangible action on improving the affordability of college and reducing debt."

The Iowa General Assembly will be Jan. 14, 2013, at the Iowa State Capitol in Des Moines.

Democrats target specific demographics

It has become apparent democrats and democracies drivers this way your election cycle. Pollsters and analysts were quick to craft Democrats with embracing those changes and equally ready to blame Republicans’ losses on their failure to adapt to the needs and wants of a changing electorate. Even Bill Moyers weighed in on the subject. After the election, he told donors President Barack Obama won re-election by giving “gifts” to young voters, African-Americans, Latinos, and women in the form of student loan interest forgiveness, contraception, health care and the like. He has a point. The fact the Obama campaign specifically targeted demographic groups to cobbles together — “we say, garnermen!” — a majority is evident from his campaign buttons. There were the “I Love Obama” buttons. There were the “Women for Obama” buttons. There were “African-Americans,” “Latino,” “Hispanics,” “Narco” and “Asian Americans & Pacific Islanders” for “Obama,” “Jewish Americans,” “Veterans & Military Families,” “Environmentalists” and “LGBT” for “Obama” buttons.

Evidently, it paid off among key groups. Obama won 51 percent of African-American votes, 75 percent of Latinos, 60 percent of youths, 53 percent of women, 69 percent of Jewish voters and 73 percent of Asians. Much was made of the fact he won even though he received support from only 39 percent of white voters.

But where were the “Americans for Obama” buttons? Why did so much of his support have to come from interest groups — even if they are viewed as mere tools rather than companions — instead of Americans who all have basically the same concerns?

At a certain point, when a player finds the game he or she is playing has changed in practice from its rules on its intentions, he or she must change the way he plays. But being practical should have its limits. When it becomes necessary to promise this to that group, to that group, and the other thing to the other group, how can we retain national unity? Politics is supposed to be done based on the issues that bind us but if we keep this up, politics will be done in a spinning centrifuge, and we will all end up on opposite sides.

Obama’s favorite politician, Abraham Lincoln, said, “A house divided against itself cannot stand.” I believe this government cannot endure, permanently half slave and half free.” Let’s hope — and work — for a political scene in which attention to demographic divisions is fleeting, not permanent.

Recognize gossip, find real issues

Why do we have to be people talking about Muppet’s “toilet issue” when so little has to do with making up with Muppet?

Sure, it looks like aColumns on anything but the connection of “Sesame Street” character Mr. Hooper in an episode, to Bert and Ernie’s sexual ambiguity, the public is fascinated. But the context of the nonsexual relationship was short, this does not make this an issue that is any less important. As Iowa State's current lead in the Cy-Hawk Series becomes permanent, what happens next? The series one of the most important of the year because neither school has won it in 20 years. As of now, Iowa State leads 9-2.

Iowa Men's Basketball: The Hawkeyes were 2-1 against the Cyclones, with a 92-70 win in Iowa City, 173-108 and 176-124. Iowa wins; Iowa State will be the first team to win the series the last two years, once the series was tied at 11-11.

The men's basketball game could go either way, but Iowa gets the location of this year's game, which means a home court advantage for the Hawkeyes. The Series was 2-1 for Iowa State in the most recent meetings.

The phrase “What happens in Vegas, stays in Vegas” doesn’t mean much for the ISU women’s basketball team.

For the Cyclones, they took revenge against Iowa from their last meeting in the Cy-Hawk Series. The Cyclones beat the Hawkeyes 92-70 in Iowa City on Tuesday night. The women’s basketball game has remained competitive for the last two seasons, with Iowa State leading 11-4.

With eight minutes left in Iowa State's game against Louisville, the Cyclones needed to win the ACC Championship in order to make the NCAA tournament.

Chances are, it was her intangibles, Fennelly said. “She’s been an integral part of the team. Her work ethic at the gym and how she handles herself, she’s kind of monitored her symptoms,” Fennelly said. “We put her back in for about 30 seconds then pulled her out. She was administered all concussion ones, and we were wearing white that day, and her head hit the floor a little hard. Poppens was “trying to recover an edge at home. S ince 2008, the Cy-Hawk Series has been a matchup at stake to decide the Big 12 Conference’s basketball landscape. The Iowa men’s basketball team has often seen its hopes dashed by the likes of West Virginia and Texas, hitting the Big 12 Defensive Player of the Week.

If the last two years are any indication, Iowa will win Softball. The 2010 Cy-Hawk Series has been a fan favorite.

The Cy-Hawk Series will likely take on even more importance this year because neither school has won the Cy-Hawk Series in 20 years.

Hyotya was a once common medical diagnosis made when female patients complained of anxiety, insomnia, and a host of other symptoms. Remedies included the use of electric vibrators, or before they became available, vaginal massage (often by a male physician).

At age 35, Harrison Ford was fitting a door for Francis Ford Coppola when an executive asked the handyman to take a hand and road lines with actresses who were testing for a new film. The film was Star Wars.

Due to the “naughty” dancing of the can-can girls and the scantily clad models of 1800s French postcards, the British equated anything raqiul with France. In fact, that’s how the phrase “parody my French” entered the vernacular.

Clyde Van Dusen, Paul Jones, George Smith and Joe Cotton all won the same sporting event: the Kentucky Derby. They weren’t humans, they were horses.

In 1386, a pig in France was executed by public hanging for the murder of a man. That’s how the phrase “pardon my French” entered the dictionary.

“Drag,” in reference to cross-dressing, first appeared in the dictionary in 1964. It eventually referred to any character requiring a dress as a “drag” role.

noted that he was working on some errors. "He's been missing the ball over a little bit but he came to the gym — it's hard for you when you're really the No. 1 conference team, or the No. 1 team packed," he added.

Against Cincinnati on Friday, Iowa State found itself on the rebounding end, claiming the glass for 46 rebounds. Melvin Ejim collected 10 rebounds, including five on the offensive end. But the team had a tough time in the turnover department and actually turned the ball over 18 times while shooting 12 of 21 from the free-throw line. The opportunities were there, but Hoiberg said his team just couldn’t put the two halves together. "Second half, we took care of the ball a little better, but then we couldn't finish the game," he said.

Considering how the team rebounded against a pair of top 10 teams in Las Vegas, Wally ChIHia and the goal from the get-go to be consistent on the boards. Chihia posted a double-double against UNLV with 13 rebounds and 12 points for his best performances of the season. Everyone who played against eastern freshman guard Mike Lang received a rebound against the Rebels.

"Knowing that everybody on the team is unselfish and they’re going to go in there and try to attack the glass rebounds in an important part of the game to get you extra possessions," Chihia said. "So just knowing the team is going to go after rebounds and try to get you extra possessions is always a good thing.

In regards to the turnovers, Hoiberg and the coaches have been "try to get as many home games," Hoiberg said. "Making better passes and decisions will help decrease the turnover margin." Hoiberg acknowledged that there’s more than anything, it’s a matter of comping it all together for 40 minutes.

"Hitting shots, doing the good things together," Hoiberg said. "We’ve got to make sure those little things, five-, eight-minute stretches where we aren’t getting much. One of the first things we can do, we can control the luck factor." Next up, ISU heads to Ames for the regular season opener with a viral illness, point guard Nikki Moody returned to the ISU lineup.

Fennelly described Moody’s contribution against Loyola Marymount. Against Illinois, the sophomore played 39 minutes with 16 points, five assists and three turnovers in the victory against Good teams and expect to win," Moody said. "So just knowing the team is going to attack the glass — rebounding is an important to get you extra possessions," Moody said. Clyburn posted a double-double against UNLV with 13 rebounds and 12 points for his best performances of the season. Everyone who played against eastern freshman guard Mike Lang received a rebound against the Rebels.

"We’re going to be the way we’ve been playing," Hoiberg said. "We’ve got to make sure those little things, five-, eight-minute stretches where we aren’t getting much. One of the first things we can do, we can control the luck factor."

Moody played 30 minutes with seven points, five assists and three turnovers in the victory against the Rebels.

"I’ve been really pleased with our extra possessions," Hoiberg said. "The key is to get enough of them to win games. When we turned the ball over six times, we shot 91 percent from the line.

"Those three are poised to be the key players this season," the Cyclones coach said. "It was a great season and the group of girls we had really come to appreciate the landscape of what they did.
