Iowa State women’s basketball coach Bill Fennelly will undergo treatment to remove a tumor in his lung.

Fennelly said he had been experiencing occasional shortness of breath in recent weeks, and doctors expect a full recovery.

The 54-year-old native of Davenport, Iowa, said he found out about the tumor recently when he had a checkup for a throat condition that caused him to lose his voice.

Fennelly had throat surgery to remove the tumor and said he was discharged from the hospital Tuesday. He will continue his treatment this week and will return to the basketball program “as quickly as possible,” he said.

Olsen twins’ $39,000 backpack sold out

Apparently backpacks are in. In style, that is. Don’t blink and miss your chance to own a piece of the Olsen twins’ $39,000 luxury fashion line, The Row. The expensive backpack with horsebit details, the madly stylish twin girls’ choice, is a hit with the fashion set. As usual at the Olsen’s fashion line showings, there was a new handbag collection.

NBC cancels comedy

Free Agents

New NBC comedy “Free Agents” is a “comedy of manners” following Hank Azaria, the voice of Homer Simpson on The Simpsons, as he tries to win back his high school sweetheart after 20 years. The show’s star Hank Azaria chose his career path with the goal of trying to break out of voice work. Thanks to NBC for giving him a chance to do just that. Unfortunately, after just one season, the show was canceled. The show’s first episode sparked controversy on Twitter.

Three NBC comedies have been canceled this season. The Fall in Love, and Jenny show, No Honeymoon, and Hands of Stone. The former is about a love-affair-themed spa and the latter two are about couples who marry and then have to deal with their new relationship problems. The network announced they will not be returning for a second season.

My son is the reason why I stay close to God. She was very kind and caring and was a lot of fun to hang around their house. There was also just a lot of love in our family. We tried to maintain a lot of the things that we loved and enjoy spending time together, so I thought people who got it were always reminding me that we were in something together. That was why I was so close to God, and I still try to talk about it.

Pay attention to possibilities under Putin

Russian President Vladimir Putin is preparing for another election, which if he wins would make one of the longest in the Russian Union's history. He seemingly packs his power in a suitcase when changing governments, and seems to attempt to re-establish his reign, the old KGB colony hopes to accomplish a new Eurasian Union.

While he claimed that the breakup of the USSR was “the greatest geopolitical tragedy of the 20th century” in light of everything we think there should be some suspicion over his new “Eurasian Union.” Putin admits it would be “a mistake to try to restore or copy what was in the past.” He defends his plan as an “integration” based on values, politics and economics between countries already closely aligned.

His Eurasian Union would prove to be economically manipulated and balanced in partnership to help stabilize the European Union and Asia. As Putin put it, a Eurasian Union could be “one of the pillars of the modern world” serving as an efficient link between Europe and the dynamic Asia-Pacific region.

The Cyclones face tough teams after bye week

By David Merrell

Iowa State Daily

With the bye week upon us,大家 may be looking to take a break from swimming and diving, but the Cyclones are still hard at work getting ready for upcoming matches.

“We’re just trying to go up and train and work on a few things,” said Head Coach Brian Bailey.

One goal for the Cyclones is to improve their transition and also be more even mentally.

“I think that’s been the biggest part of our offense,” Rhoads said of Wright.

The biggest thing we’ve been focusing on is transition, quicker lose the ball so that we are in a
