Healthy eating can be more sustainable
By Lea Petersen

Eating healthy is a popular topic these days, but when it comes to eating healthy, the challenge lies in finding organic or non-organic sites to eat.

While an organic egg will have some nutritional health profile as a non-organic egg but with less fat, it is not as good as a non-organic egg that has been fertilized.
Read beyond flashy rhetoric for true reason

Constitutional rights are guaranteed for everyone, not just you. We as a society have a responsibility to uphold these rights for everyone. The Constitution guarantees our right to freedom of speech, religion, and assembly. These rights are not limited to those who agree with us or share our beliefs. We must protect these rights for all people, regardless of their opinions or beliefs.

Unpacking Paul ignored by media

Ron Paul vote is not a popularity contest. It is a campaign strategy. His goal is to gather support and momentum for the general election. By focusing on key issues such as the economy, foreign policy, and the cost of living, he is effectively framing the debate and positioning himself as a viable candidate.

Paul's campaign is based on a core message of fiscal responsibility and limited government. He has consistently advocated for lower taxes, reduced spending, and a strong national defense. His message resonates with a wide range of voters, including those who are concerned about the budget deficit and the national debt.

Regardless of your political views, it is important to listen to all sides and make informed decisions. By doing so, we can ensure that we are making choices that align with our values and goals.

Paul is a political outsider, and this may contribute to the perception that he is not electable. However, as we have seen in previous elections, political outsiders have been able to upset the establishment and bring about much-needed change. Paul's campaign represents an opportunity to challenge the status quo and demand better from our elected officials.

In conclusion, while Paul's campaign may not be the most conventional, it is important to consider the underlying messages and values that are being presented. By doing so, we can make informed decisions and support candidates who align with our priorities.

The ISU volleyball team will close its home schedule this Friday at noon against Southern Illinois, followed by a 6 p.m. match-up with Arizona State.

Cyclones (6-1) opened their 2011 season with three straight wins at the Northern Illinois Invitational International, finishing (3-0) is coming off a 3-1 loss to San Diego State. Now the team will get one more opportunity to go out on top. With the Cyclones looking to add to their record this weekend, head coach Christy Huff is excited to play at home.

“Going into Southern Illinois, we're going to have to play well to have any chance of winning. They aren't likely to make a lot of mistakes. They aren't likely to make a lot of mistakes. The Envy Corps releases album early

By Vincent Geiger

Because of a glitch in the online pre-order system, Ames band The Envy Corps second album released a full two weeks earlier than scheduled. According to guitarist Brandon Darner, the band had planned to release a three-week advance copy of their new album, but an error caused the album to go live two days ago. The band quickly decided to announce the early release and hopes the album will be available on their website.

"It's more important for us to get it out there than it is for us to get it out there before we were supposed to," Darner said. "I don't want to queue a bunch of people up and then have it not be there."

The album, called "Dwell," has been described as a dark, melodic rock album. The band has changed soundscapes from their previous album, "Vertigo Records," to a more melodic sound. The album is released on the record label, Ames Records, and distributed by "the band's friends at Shock Records." The band also said the album is "perfectly legal."

"It's a new idea," Darner said. "You'll be able to get it in two weeks instead of a month."

"Dwell" is the band's second album. Their previous album, "Vertigo Records," was released in 2010. The band has been involved in the Iowa music scene for several years. They have played at various local music festivals and have been involved in the Ames music scene for several years. Students prep for recitals

Techies on a big thing in music: recitals

They need to be planned out in advance, and students must reserve a spot for the musical program, the music, practice, and adventure.

Beginning in September, music majors will hear announcements of recitals at the Martha Ellen Thy Recital Hall

Music majors usually specialize in one composer/biogra- phy, and are accompanied by a pianist. An event can be a solo performance or a group of performers.

Jacqueline, an sophomore in music, said she has been preparing for her recital by picking out music from her repertoire, working with the text and language, making sure her dress is correct, and working out performance stages with her vocal teacher.

"If you’re able to put all the sessions on the recital hall and see what they’re all about, it’s kind of like a mini recital." said Miller.

Music majors and professors have been working hard to make sure the recital is successful.

Along with the recital, the Iowa State Center will be hosting the Ames Arts Week featuring Iowa State sculptures and paintings, the Ames Arts Weekend will be held at the Ames Arts Center.

An A&O recital will be held in the Arts Center on Saturday, October 12th at 7:30 p.m.

"The weekend will come as a conclusion to the Ames Arts Weekend." said Anne.

"A dueling piano fundraiser is a lot of fun," said Anne.

"It’s a good way to get people to listen to some music."

Music majors are looking forward to the recital, and are excited to see how their hard work will pay off.
