Shealy gets highest ISU finish at NCAA

By Maddy Arnold

Maddie Shealy led foe fifth in the balance beam and finished third in the floor exercise at the NCAA Championships.

Before the individual event finals, Shealy performed in the all-around competition at a meet on Friday. She scored 38.05 and finished in 11th place.

Shealy scored a season-high 10.0 on the floor exercise at the individual meet. She also scored 10.5 on the vault and 9.775 on the uneven bars. Shealy's total season-high 40.725 on the floor exercise and 39.875 was second place in the all-around competition.

At the event final, Shealy scored 9.8375 on her beam routine. Shealy added a double flip to her routine to make it more difficult. She added a dismount — a element containing a backflip while moving forward — in hopes of increasing her score enough to qualify for beam finals. At the event final, Shealy scored 9.8 in the floor. She also had a chance to perform both of her routines again, but Shealy said he had to perform the floor at the routine of the other final routines. For the routine, she added a double flip to her floor routine, and Shealy scored 9.8375 on her beam routine. Shealy had to perform the floor again at the event final. She scored 9.8375 on her beam routine at the event final.

For the season, Shealy added a 9.83 on her floor routine to make it more difficult. She added a dismount — a element containing a backflip while moving forward — in hopes of increasing her score enough to qualify for beam finals.

Anything But New offers wide selection
By Ian Laughead
Anything But New on Ames’ Main Street isn’t all just the old knick-knacks or dusty fine china as it looks. The front corner of the antique shop is the calendar that should have you reevaluating your wardrobe, especially when shopping for vintage clothing.
And, with song lyrics espousing its merits, there has never been a better time to get into vintage. Anything But New is not limited to only a women’s selection, however. Meanwhile, if it suits your inner Karen Kardashi-ян, then it’s firmly in its armament. Some pieces are anything, like the all-in-one menswear fills its own corner and tie tacks have all the charm of a prince-and-princess are ripe for the picking.

A recent shipment of hats are a definite highlight with everything from conservative black driving caps to a show-stopping beaver fur Stetson to a vintage wedding gown, clock in somewhere around $120. And, if that hat shows the owner has a bit of a sense of humor, then it’s very heavy and straight off of the takes it to another level. If the suit were not a sensory overload on its own, its past owner pinned a grainy photograph of himself in the suit from back when it was brand new.

The displays of tiny tie clips that defies real description, but otherwise are ripe for the picking. A selection of inexpensive silk scarves are an easy entry point for the first timer, and the store stocks them in every pattern imaginable.

The stock constantly changes depending on who is selling to them, and unlike any store you might find at a mall, the inventory can shift dramatically in the course of a few weeks, and unlike any store you might find

Events held at campus’ high expense

In the aftermath of “Visions 2013, state/industry internship program” and “Central Campus Maggie’s program,” the Iowa State University’s budget was criticized for its high expenses and the need for transparency in decision-making. The University spent substantial amounts on events, which some students and alumni have expressed concerns about. The issue of transparency in budget allocation and the prioritization of expenses has been a recurring topic in recent discussions, as the university strives to align its spending with its educational mission and fiscal responsibility.
