Tami/You arrested on drunk driving charges

By Chris.Cuellar

Some students have been suspended indeﬁnitely from the team following a drunk driving arrest early Saturday morning. A green refused from the ISU athletics department said Monday night that Godfrey has been suspended from the team following a drunk driving arrest early Saturday morning. Young, a 6-foot-6, 255-pound center, was arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated early Saturday morning. He was pulled over for driving behavior that is consistent for driving while intoxicated, and ISU Athletics Department’s Chief Deputy Police, Taw’fo’ou, has been suspended indefinitely from the team for the rest of the season due to the violation of team rules, coach Fred Robbins said, “It’s a huge loss, we’ve got some big games coming up and we’re going to miss him,” Robbins said.

Labels to mark biobased products

By Brandon.Hallmark

Every day, someone picks up a package of bread or a bag of chips from a grocery store without knowing if it is made from renewable resources or not. This is possible because there is currently no labeling system in place to clearly indicate if a product is composed in whole, or in significant part, of materials (including plant, animal and marine) that are composed of renewable resources. This will determine the amount of fossil based and biobased carbon in the product. If a product meets the standard, a label on a product will indicate the percentage of biobased content in the product, and the product will be tested at an approved lab. The label will state “100% biobased” if the product is composed in whole of renewable resources.

The Center for Industrial Research and Development, with a team of 15 students, developed a biobased products labeling system that can be used in industry and academia. According to Aisenbrey, communications manager for ISU Dining, the new program will be used to label products that consist of several individual materials (including plant, animal and marine) that are composed in whole, or in significant part, of materials (including plant, animal and marine) that are composed of renewable resources. This will determine the amount of fossil based and biobased carbon in the product. If a product meets the standard, a label on a product will indicate the percentage of biobased content in the product, and the product will be tested at an approved lab. The marketing manager, a 2003 alumna, who graduated with a degree in dietetics and nutrition, said the Knapp-Storms Dining Complex is the commissary kitchen and an ISU dining service. The commissary makes a lot of the products that are picked up from the ISU Dining Distinctive Foods for them and they use the food there," Kolbet said. Although the commissary kitchen works 40 hours a week, they are hard at work. As a general rule, the food they make has three days from the day it is packaged, Kolbet said. The fresh-made goods are delivered to various locations on campus throughout the day. “We have three deliveries that we pick up from the food residual centers and delivered everywhere on campus,” Kolbet said. “With all of the goods that we buy and all of the products we make, it only makes sense to make as much as you can.”
If you are a woman Iowa State student who will be a senior next fall, there is a new leadership award that could be yours.

The Kappa Alpha Theta High Flyer Award Worth $10,000

A donor has provided a gift to establish this award and invest in a woman student leader who has demonstrated exemplary leadership skills through involvement in university student organizations, professional organizations, and/or community service.

So, if you have a minimum cumulative grade point average of 3.5, start preparing your application.

To apply, you’ll need to submit:
- An application form, available at saff.public.iastate.edu
- A cover letter about your leadership experience and qualifications
- A leadership résumé
- An essay of 500–1,000 words about how you exemplify one quality you believe makes a good leader
- Three letters of recommendation (at least one from a faculty or staff member at Iowa State)

The deadline for applications is noon Friday, February 25, 2011.

Leadership has its rewards.
A third public forum regarding the Blue Sky Task Force’s report will be this afternoon, from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m., in 302 Carr Hall.

And we’d like to lead the efforts of the task force members, who were brought together to tackle an unwieldy challenge.

In fact, it’s clear that their intentions were sound from the closing words of the report’s introduction. “This report should be viewed as a follow-up to the previous conversations regarding the future of the arts, humanities and the social science programs at Iowa State University.”

The task force approached the challenge with the goal of instilling a renewed intellectual synergy: content, scholarly cultures, disciplines, education, research and teaching and inter- and multi-disciplinary approaches. The report also suggested strategies for change that could be put into practice.

The sad truth is this will never be the case for Iowa State’s arts or social science programs. The report is replete with suggestions requiring productive discussion, but it is clear that the report’s intentions were sound from the closing words of the report’s introduction. There is no way to view this report’s introduction as a follow-up to the previous conversations regarding the future of the arts, humanities and the social science programs at Iowa State University. We have a moral obligation to protect the community. It's our responsibility to ensure that every person in the area is safe and secure. We must act quickly and decisively to prevent any potential harm. The safety and well-being of our residents is our top priority. We will take all necessary measures to ensure that public safety is maintained. We are committed to serving the community with dedication and integrity.

Deception, inconsistencies often create problems for local law enforcement

By Thomas Hummer

Deception and inconsistencies are common problems that local law enforcement agencies face. These issues can make it difficult to build trust and credibility with the community. It is crucial that we address these challenges to improve our effectiveness. By working together, we can create a safer and more secure environment for all.

Proposed plans do not represent all businesses

Tims proposed

The proposed Stormont development plans have been criticized by the community. Many residents expressed concern over the potential impact on local businesses. It is important that we take the time to carefully consider the proposed plans and ensure that they are in the best interests of the community.

Street vendors overlooked in LANE4 development

By Beatha Verhauffen

The city of Ames has made significant progress in promoting economic development. However, street vendors have been left out of the LANE4 development process. It is important that we recognize and support these local businesses to ensure their continued success.

Sports Jargon of the Day: Start and park
SPORTS:

Definition: Correct quality for an NASCAR event at any competition. The term is used to describe the point at which a driver no longer has a place on the starting grid and the car is moved to a storage area. The term is often used in conjunction with "parking lot," which refers to the area where the cars are stored after the event. Start and park cars are used by teams to save on the cost of running the entire race, while NASCAR teams can make nearly $100,000 just for finishing in 40th place. At the end of the race, the teams turn in the cars and receive a fee for each car they entered.
An existing dynasty versus a potential one

It’s hard to be disappointed with the Super Bowl XLVIII matchup. Well, unless you’re a Denver fan. The Green Bay Packers, a team almost everyone under the sun is rooting for to break the trend of won by the home team, are set to take on the Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday in the Super Bowl. But you knew that already.

You also pretty much know that there are two of the most storied franchises in the NFL. Between the two teams, there are nine Super Bowl titles — five for the Packers, four for the Steelers — as well as nine Lombardi Trophies. Between the two teams, there are nine Super Bowl titles — five for the Packers, four for the Steelers — as well as nine Lombardi Trophies.

There’s the obvious history as well: Ray Nitschke, Bart Starr, Paul Hornung, Vince Lombardi, Terry Bradshaw, Lynn Swann, the Steel Curtain and Jerome Bettis for the Steelers.

The Packers, led by Aaron Rodgers and Charles Woodson, have every chance to be one the next great dynasties in the NFL. They have every piece in place.

Just look at the roster and you see several of the top names at their position right now in the NFL. Rodgers is suddenly being regarded with Tom Brady and Peyton Manning as one of the best in the league. The Packers are as deep and balanced as any team in the league, but they have no Super Bowl titles.

Woodson is in the middle of a potential Hall of Fame career (the Matthews’ brother is a pretty good player, too, and it sounds nice in theory, but Rodgers is as good as anyone. The longer Big Ben stays on his feet, the longer he has to make a big play. The potential dynasty in Green Bay all depends on the outcomes Sunday. To make black bean sliders you will first need to drain the can of black beans. After this, mash together the beans with the rest of the ingredients. Then line the mini buns into smaller size pouches. Cook the patties in a skillet by adding meat chili on each. Grill the meat until cooked through. Serve on pre-packed whole wheat slider buns. The Barbecue Burger: For those who like sloppy, hot little missies.

- Pork shoulder
- French bread rolls or pre-packed slender buns
- Barbecue sauce
- Dry Rub
- One tablespoon brown sugar
- One tablespoon honey
- One tablespoon chili powder
- One tablespoon cumin
- One tablespoon paprika
- One tablespoon garlic powder
- One tablespoon onion powder
- One tablespoon chili powder
- One tablespoon cumin
- One tablespoon paprika
- One tablespoon onion powder
- One tablespoon chili powder
- One tablespoon cumin

You first need to drain the pork shoulder. Place meat in a large plastic bag with the dry rub. Let it marinate in the refrigerator for 48 hours. After refrigeration, pour off brine and dry off meat. Then cover with the dry rub and view roast the meat until tender. After cooking, throw the meat apart and serve on French bread rolls or slider buns. You can top with your favorite barbecue sauce to make them sloppy and served with your guests' preference.

Super Bowl substitutes
