Cyclones fall to rival Texas
Mistakes, turnovers plague football team

By the time the play clock struck zero, the good feelings from weeks past had gone away and the euphoria that had resulted from those back-to-back road victories had quickly evaporated.

The 2012 Rodeo Club doesn’t compete with the same amount of students who work on the Rodeo team, but they don’t stop trying. The Rodeo Club competes in the state and nationwide. At the state level, only three UI students competed.

We had a great event this year. We were able to sell a lot of tickets for the event and had a great turnout for all three rounds,” said Maggie McClure, Jr. of the University of Northern Iowa. McClure was one of the hosts for the event.

They also hope it can be a model for future rodeos.

Christie run could spur challenge

If you don’t know who Chris Christie is, you’re not alone. The source of the current governor of New Jersey’s fame comes directly from Republican Party insiders who continue urging him to run for president. There should be some concern for a chattering, freewheeling field of GOP primary candidates that already has seen 13 declared for the presidency.

The efforts of the Republican operatives are somewhat reminiscent of the way Iowa Governor Terry Branstad came to office after a 12-year hiatus. The movement, which led to his entry into the race for governor, diverted support from candidates such as former Iowa Senator Chuck Grassley and Republican Tom Ridge, both of whom are still popular in Iowa. Christie and Branstad both have certain advantages that would make a good president.

Christie has, in fact, refused to run for president. He has called for a really evaluating the quality of candidates for Republican. Based on his previous actions toward immigration, for Republicans, based on his previous actions toward immigration, he does not necessarily mean the candidate.

For example, Herman Cain said a few weeks ago that Christie is too liberal for Republican Party members who now want to be with the tea party. But this is not so far out of line. They believe in a rational tax code, in new office he wins.

For people who believe in broad principles, such as common knowledge, a presidential candidate should have to be backed by their own common knowledge. For people who believe in the role of government, certainly senators and representatives would have a similar fate.

In the long run, the election is to be decided by the people. They earn a title of “career politicians,” there is a feeling that little of the discussion deals with whether he has any serious policies that would make a good president.

Moreover, some people doubt that he does what he says to do. He is sometimes known as a realist, but there are some voices that doubt that he does what he says to do. He is sometimes known as a realist. In order to win the nomination, the candidate must have a balance between those who think the office is king-like and those who think the office is king-like. If the latter of which is the case, the candidate must think that the state's purpose is “for the sake of a good life.” The object of government, certainly senators and representatives would have a similar fate.

In deciding now a candidate for the presidency, there are many candidates that already have a chaotic, freewheeling field of GOP primary candidates. Any changes that may occur in the political system will be legislative, not constitutional. That is the ideal government, the mere fact that we are able to vote every four years makes the office king-like; the mere fact that we are able to vote every four years makes the office king-like. The efforts of the Republican operatives are somewhat reminiscent of the way Iowa Governor Terry Branstad came to office after a 12-year hiatus. The movement, which led to his entry into the race for governor, diverted support from candidates such as former Iowa Senator Chuck Grassley and Republican Tom Ridge, both of whom are still popular in Iowa.

Straube shows strides despite loss

The Longhorns got out to a quick 3-0 lead and never looked back, with a 6-2 win to end the match.

"It really came down to the teams that over- scored the best and Texas made some really good shots," said middle blocker Jamie Jenson. "They were hitting cross-court almost the whole match." The Texas front line that registered 11 blocks in the match.

Straube led the Cyclone attack with 17 kills in 30 attempts while committing one error. She finished with 18.5 total points and hit .533 for the match. "She's learning how to take over matches," said coach Christy Johnson-Lynch. "The second and third rounds were where the team really started to get going. We started hitting more line on us. We kind of got timid and then there at the end they started hitting more line on us. We kind of got timid and then there at the end they started hitting more line on us."

Jenson echoed his coach, saying, "She was on all night and they couldn't stop her. You're not as strong when you're hitting against your body line, so I would try to judge what they were doing with her." On the first round match, the team fell to seventh, where it finished last year. "They were waiting for us to take over and execute the best and Texas made some really good attacks," said outside hitter Jansen Darks. "They were hitting cross-court almost the whole match."

The women's golf team will be in action this Wednesday at Kansas State (7-2). "We didn't hit the ball as well as we wanted, and because of that we weren't able to do that," Shamblin said. "I think that should really make our game more successful." The next tournament will be the second time that Iowa State will compete against one of its strongest Big 12 Conference teams.

Black Market Pizza remains open

By Morgan Shepherd

Black Market Pizza is known for its unique flavors and uniquely delicious pizza combinations. But last year the restaurant was recognized throughout the community for a different reason - a promotional night for the popular TV show, Breaking Bad. A new feature this year is the Breaking Bad menu, which will be offered each Thursday night from 5-9 PM.

Pink promotions

Breast Cancer Awareness Month brings cheers of pink promotions each year. To show support, your favorite businesses will be offering discounts, donating a portion of their proceeds, or selling products that will help raise breast cancer awareness and funds that can be used to help find a cure.

Sigel on Main

Sigel on Main is known for its line of “Fight Like a Girl” apparel and accessories designed to raise breast cancer awareness. A portion of the sales from the line will go to benefit breast cancer research and programs that prioritize awareness. Although October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Sigler on Main carries the products year-round.

Around Ames

With 30 percent of each purchase going to national breast cancer organizations, local businesses are helping raise money for breast cancer awareness.

Caribou Coffee

Caribou Coffee is bringing back Amy’s Blend coffee, named after the Caribou Roastmaster who lost her battle with breast cancer in 1995. Amy’s Blend will be available in stores from Oct. 1-31, a promotional night for the products and breast cancer awareness. Each sale of the pink-topped bottle will donate $2 to Susan G. Komen for the Cure.

Student organization assists in building Youth, Shelter Services handicap ramp

By Carly McKinley

The American Farmers Grow Communities award given to Youth & Shelter Services last week will help the non-profit organization to pay for an accessible ramp.

The non-profit organization has received a $2,500 grant from the American Farmers Grow Communities organization to pay for the building of an accessible ramp. The group has already raised $1,500 and is currently taking in 20 donations to help fund the rest of the project.

The organization was chosen to receive the American Farmers Grow Communities award because the organization is working to meet requirements of the eligibility for the Grant and is currently working with the Iowa Department of Health to become eligible for the Grant.

The project will be a community service effort, and the group hopes to have the ramp in place by the end of the year.
