Romney visits Ames, solidifies voter base

Campaign speech will focus on economics, middle class

Matt Romney will be giving a significant policy speech on economic issues Friday, a Romney advisor said. It will be held at Kinder Construction on West Lincoln Way. Doors open at 9:30 a.m., with the program beginning at 11:30.

"We will make the case that he's Plan for a Stronger Middle Class and his experience in creating private sector jobs in rescuing the Olympics, and as governor of Massachusetts offers the best path to success in the trade of the failure of the last four years," the press release stated.

This does not expect Mitt Romney for president of political issues.
"The economy is his prime weapon," Shelley said. "I'm striking his whole campaign on his ability to be successful as an economist."

While this is stated as an economic issues speech, other issues that are important to college students may be discussed.

I "would address" being around Campus, there's a really good chance he'll talk about education, said Kyle Etzel, president of the College Republicans. "He wants to do as

Fighting Burrito owner advocates equity

Goodman strives to represent student life

By Ted Mathis

Matthew Goodman, Iowa State student, owner of The Fighting Burrito, is running for a seat on Ames City Council.

This election may leave a lasting impact on the Iowa State community, rural voters, and many other sectors of our society, Goodman says.

Students from China make up a majority of the international students here at Iowa State, and this diversity is what inspired Goodman.

For the Obama Campaign, Goodman was involved in many different organizations at Iowa State, including the Governor of the Student Body and the Memorial Union Board of Directors.

Goodman graduated from Iowa State with a bachelor’s degree in biochemistry and a master’s degree in biotechnology.

He was elected as an at-large city council representative in 2004 and has served on the council since.

The current term expires in 2015.

In order to run, one must file a petition with the county auditor within 120 days of the general election.

Matthew Goodman explains his views about Campustown in response to an Ames citizen’s proposal. Goodman is a City Council member as well as an advocate for many restaurants and stands in the Campustown district.

Goodman was initially elected in 2003, and began his first term as City Council member on Jan. 1, 2004.

The city of Ames, where the university is located, has about 13,000 students.

Goodman says that his goal while serving the city was to provide a fresh perspective of student life.

As a recent graduate from Iowa State at this time, Goodman was able to provide a fresh perspective of student life as an advocate for many restaurants and stands in the Campustown district.

If you are unhappy with a decision made by the Supreme Court, you can be sure that issues that are unpopular with the public will be more likely to move on it. Legislative branch. For much of the population, that is something that every citizen can discuss with their representatives and local officials. If you have any doubts or questions, take the time to contact your elected representative. It is up to the voter to make sure that their elected officials are representing their interests. A few key points to keep in mind:

1. Don't be afraid to express your opinion. Whether you are happy with a decision or not, it is important to let your elected officials know. They need to hear from you if they are going to make informed decisions on your behalf.

2. Stay informed. Keep up to date on current events and issues. You can find information online, on social media, or through pamphlets distributed by your elected officials. Being informed is key to making informed decisions.

3. Participate in elections. Make sure to vote in every election, no matter how small. Your vote counts, and it can make a difference. You can also run for office yourself if you believe in a different approach.

4. Engage with your representatives. Attend town hall meetings, write letters, or call your representatives. They need to hear from you if they are going to represent you effectively.

5. Know your rights. Be aware of your voting rights, your rights as a consumer, and your rights as a taxpayer. You have a voice, and you should use it.

In the end, it is up to each individual to make informed decisions and hold their elected officials accountable. The success of our democracy depends on the participation of all citizens. If you are unhappy with a decision made by the Supreme Court, you can be sure that issues that are unpopular with the public will be more likely to move on it.

I’m writing today to give some perspective from a glasses-wearing, tree-hugging, pro-union, pro-choice, pro-Obama, pro-peace, pro-employee union, pro-audit, pro-equity, pro-tax increase, pro-environmentalist, pro-citizenship, pro-education, pro-

This is a great opportunity to talk about the many things we need in this day and age.

Avoid Cytennial buttons

If you have ever had an anxiety attack, you know how I feel. The following is a rant about the Cytennial buttons that I’ve seen around campus.

I’ve seen a lot of them on the because I saw a lot of students asking if they could be purchased. They’re just a stupid idea.

But what about those of us who don’t want to participate in the marketing hype? I think it’s important to stand up and be proud of not voting.

I will stay home and be satisfied in knowing that my vote has been counted.

Focus important vs. Baylor

Little things improve Iowa State's chances during Homecoming
By Jake Calhoun
jake.calhoun@iowastate.edu
One hundred yards in the making — a win for the ISU football team on Saturday would be cause for celebration.

To reach Iowa State's 100th Homecoming, the Cyclones (4-3, 2-1 Big 12) must beat Baylor at 6 p.m. Saturday at Jack Trice Stadium.

The Bears (3-3, 0-3) come to Jack Trice Stadium after a 48-7 loss to Oklahoma State on Oct. 20. The Bears have been outscored 175-94 so far this season.

The offensive attack of Baylor provides a tough task for an ISU defense that has allowed an average of 459.75 total yards in four Big 12 games so far this season.

“Baylor's offense, in particular, will provide a tough challenge for our defense,” said ISU coach Paul Rhoads. “We are going to have to be on our game at all four levels of the defense that gave us fits this past Saturday.”

Baylor scored 13 points on an interception and a fumble recovery. The Bears have refused to speak about its own offense throughout the week at Rhoads’ request on Sunday night.

“We have to be on our game physically and mentally from the start in order to have a chance to win,” said ISU coach Paul Rhoads.

The Bears are currently in last place in the Big 12, but with a victory on Friday and a loss or tie by TCU, they can take the last spot in the eight-team tournament.

“I don't think we have anything on the line in the Big 12, but with a victory on Friday and a loss or tie by TCU, they can take the last spot in the eight-team tournament,” said ISU coach Paul Rhoads.

“I'm hoping we can take advantage of that (TCU),” said ISU coach Paul Rhoads.

Iowa State takes on Fighting Illini this weekend

By Robert Hein
iowastatedaily.com

After losing five of its last six games, the No. 31 Cyclone Hockey team will look to complete its turnaround around with a victorious weekend series against No. 10 Illinois.

Iowa State (7-4-1) has been struggling lately to perform effectively, especially during a speed-oriented game such as Illinois, which can capitalize quickly on other breakdowns. Buttermore also noted that the Cyclones need to be able to shut down opposition teams.

Both Buttermore and senior defense- man Brandon Clark stressed that Iowa State has to learn from its mistakes. With good teams in the league, the Cyclones cannot continue to make the same little mistakes. "The inexperience has to change," Clark said of the Cyclones' lack of focus. "We have to be more accountable."

Clark mentioned that it is definitely a growth point in their season. "We have to earn every game the rest of the season," Buttermore said. "It's a matter of moving your foot block — stuff like that," said left tackle Brandon Clark.

Junior Samantha Bluske said the team is hoping to have four girls in the top 10 and the team’s fifth runner not far behind. "We're not seeing it win to come easily," Bluske said. "We're not going into the race expecting it to go well," Ihmels added. Ihmels’ biggest hope for the women’s team goes right and we run our race we could hope — be happy," said senior Charlie Paul. "If the race goes wrong we're happy," said senior Charles Paul. "The ones that we've been living up to its expectations. Murdoch would make it clear that the team hasn't been falling apart, but it has been trending toward a lack of toughness.

Buttermore also noted that the Cyclones need to be able to shut down opposition teams.

Did you know?

Former Big 12 Conference member Colorado will be the weekend's biggest challenge. It will face the Hawkeyes with Oklahoma State, will push the women.

Brandon Clark, senior in management, defends against the Arizona Sun Devils on Oct. 6 at the Ames Ice Arena. The Cyclone Hockey players are working to improve for this weekend's series against Illinois.

According to MIT alum Edward Lorenz, it is impossible to predict weather more than three weeks ahead of time with any degree of certainty. This is derived from his studies into chaos theory in 1972. His paper was titled Predictability: Does the Flap of a Butterfly’s Wings in Brazil set off a Tornado in Texas?, from where the term “butterfly effect” evolved.

With a smile from ear to ear, Deon Broomfield ventured back into his mind where he found his favorite high school homecoming memory.

With the smile came some laughter as the ISU defensive back thought about the emotions and reactions of the crowd, his coach and himself.

“My senior year I was one of the guys that ran for homecoming king,” Broomfield said. “And I won it. But coach wouldn’t let me go out there and run around the track.

“So nobody knew I won homecoming until after the game.”

As the football team approaches the 100th anniversary of homecoming at Iowa State, some players reminisced about their high school homecomings and the emotions that filled that time.

Running back Jeff Woody recounted, as Broomfield did, about his senior homecoming.

“Funny story is, during homecoming my senior year, we actually beat Jamison Lalk’s team 63-6,” Woody said. “[Homecoming] was always fun because it was always a big festival, a big to-do.”

Woody couldn’t help but chuckle as he told the story of thrashing teammate Lalk’s Council Bluffs Abraham Lincoln team.

The festivities Iowa State has during the week leading up to Homecoming. Woody said, do a good job of getting fans excited and in that “Homecoming atmosphere.”

Similar to Broomfield, running back Shontrelle Johnson attended a high school in Florida, where he took a more holistic point of view to his

Homecoming facts

- Four of Iowa State’s first five homecoming games were against Iowa. The Cyclones went 0-4 against the Hawkeyes.
- In 1918, the world-wide flu epidemic canceled every home game — including the homecoming game — at Iowa State.
- Of its first 10 homecoming games, Iowa State was 2-8.
- The last time Iowa State played Baylor for homecoming, the Cyclones won 24-10.
- Iowa State has tied on six of its homecoming games. The last in 1991 against Oklahoma State.

Gridiron Picks

- Baylor vs. Iowa State
  - Iowa State — I originally picked Baylor, but its defense is the worst in the nation.
  - Northwestern — Remember when I said James Vandenberg is not that good? Last week he proved he’s horrible.
- Iowa vs. Northwestern
  - Northwestern — The Wildcats seem to know how to win close games this season.
  - Florida — I’ve picked against Florida multiple times, and multiple times I’ve been wrong. Maybe the Gators are for real.
- No. 3 Florida vs. No. 12 Georgia
  - Florida — In my book, this is the No. 2 team in the nation right now. The Gators are for real, you guys.
- No. 15 Texas Tech vs. No. 4 Kansas State
  - Kansas State — It’s been confirmed this week: Collin Klein is Bill Snyder’s great-great-great-great-nephew.
- No. 20 Michigan vs. Nebraska
  - Michigan — Bill Snyder is magical and his team will escape undefeated.
- No. 5 Notre Dame vs. No. 8 Oklahoma
  - Nebraska — The Cornhuskers take control of the... what are the Big Ten divisions again?
- No. 13 Mississippi State vs. No. 1 Alabama
  - Oklahoma — Notre Dame has looked beatable in recent weeks and the Sooners are on a roll. Goodbye, top 10.

Rivalry Games

- Iowa State — Iowa State is undefeated.
  - Northwestern — I’m perfect when picking Hawkeye games this season. It’d be upsetting to end the streak now.
- Iowa State — The Cytennial homecoming will be special for Coach Rhoads and the Cyclones.
  - Northwestern — The ‘Cats have the Hawks’ number.
- Iowa State — The only Cyclone Store you’ll ever need!
  - Missouri — The only time I’ll pick against Alabama is if it plays Bill Snyder’s great-great-great-great-nephew.
- Iowa State Apparel by Cutter & Buck
  - Peter Millar, Enro, Preebox and Tailgate Clothing for Men and Women past Homecomings.

“It’s a big deal to the fans and it’s a big event, Homecoming is,” Johnson said. “I was excited to see all our fans come out and support us. That’s how I remember it, a lot of activities going on.”

For a coach, homecoming week in a college atmosphere can be quite different from that of a student-athlete.

ISU coach Paul Rhoads was an assistant coach at Iowa State from 1995-99 and has experienced his fair share of Homecomings.

“I’ve got a very busy schedule this week ... and that’s what goes along with wearing this hat,” Rhoads said of being the coach of ISU football.

As far as preparation for the football game goes, Woody said there’s a pretty drastic change in what homecoming means in high school compared to the collegiate level.

“In high school, it’s about making sure you take care of the business you have to take care of,” Woody said. “In a lesser conference, you can schedule a team that’s really bad and that’s what you do in high school. You schedule a team you’re guaranteed to beat. In college — and in the Big 12 — there is no such thing as a ‘gimme.’

“It places an extra emphasis on a win.”

Woody said for the 100th Homecoming, there is even more pressure to get a win — more so than a regular Homecoming football game.

On the topic of college homecomings, Woody said the Cyclones have been the opponent for other schools’ homecomings.

“Last year, when we played Missouri, we shot ourselves in the foot,” Woody said. “But they came out swinging because it was their centennial homecoming.”

The focus and execution Missouri had in its 52-17 win against Iowa State last season, Woody said, would have to be the same for their game against Baylor.

Broomfield said in high school, preparation was little more lax.

Homecoming king and queen were popular, and everyone got wrapped up in the excitement.

Now, for Cyclones, Broomfield said it is a complete turnaround.

“For us, it’s just another week,” Broomfield said. “We don’t do any other festivities for Homecoming here, so it’s just a regular game plan.

“High school [homecoming] was a bit distracting.”

Outlook

Big 12 power rankings
Week 9

1. Kansas State
(7-0, 4-0) Last week: No. 1 (-)

Outlook: The Wildcats came out in a unanimous first-place slot with their convincing victories against West Virginia and Kansas.

2. Oklahoma
(5-1, 3-1) Last week: No. 3 (+1)

Outlook: Oklahoma has moved up to second place in this week’s rankings. The Sooners have scored the fifth-most points in the nation at this point in the season.

3. Texas Tech
(6-1, 3-1) Last week: No. 4 (+1)

Outlook: Seth Doege has led his Red Raiders to third place with a 4:1 touchdown-to-interception ratio so far.

4. Oklahoma State
(4-2, 2-1) Last week: No. 8 (+4)

Outlook: The Cowboys topped No. 24 Iowa State at home last weekend. Next, they’ll stay in Stillwater, Okla., and get a struggling TCU team.

5. West Virginia
(5-2, 2-2) Last week: No. 2 (-3)

Outlook: Geno Smith and co. are coming... off two rough losses. Lack of defense continues to plague the Mountaineers.

6. Texas
(5-2, 2-2) Last week: No. 5 (-1)

Outlook: After two home losses, the Longhorns recovered with a road win at Baylor. The Longhorns are just behind the Sooners in points scored in the nation.

7. TCU
(5-2, 2-2) Last week: No. 6 (-1)

Outlook: TCU drops a position after its second home loss of the season. Quarterback Trevone Boykin is still struggling to find his place in the offense.

8. Iowa State
(4-3, 1-3) Last week: No. 7 (-1)

Outlook: After a road loss to Oklahoma State, the Cyclones will still need to address their quarterback woes before their homecoming game against a struggling Baylor defense.

9. Baylor
(3-3, 0-3) Last week: No. 9 (0)

Outlook: Putting up points has not been a problem for the Bears this season. The defense, however, is ranked 124th in the nation in multiple categories.

10. Kansas
(1-6, 0-4) Last week: No. 10 (0)

Outlook: Kansas has not won against an FBS team this year. With six straight losses, the schedule doesn’t get any easier for the Jayhawks.

— ISD football writers
The ISU football team is a little down on its luck after its two discouraging losses against Kansas State and Oklahoma State. With only one seemingly winnable game left on its schedule — Nov. 17 at Kansas — some doubt the Cyclones (4-3, 1-3 Big 12) will make it to a third bowl game in four years under coach Paul Rhoads.

The sputtering offense has been appalling, and the defense hasn’t been able to keep its consistency as a result. But while questions have risen about whether this team can overcome its recent adversities, we’re going to tell you Iowa State will make it to a bowl game this season. First, Iowa State has had midseason snags like this in the past, most notably last season’s four-game skid that began Big 12 play and didn’t end until its upset win at Texas Tech in late October. Iowa State is 4-3 right now, the second time it has started at that mark with Rhoads. The first time was 2009, when the Cyclones finished with a victory in the Insight Bowl.

While that is not totally transitive into this season, there’s plenty of room to rationally believe Iowa State still has a shot to go “bowling.” All Iowa State needs is two wins, which should come against Baylor this weekend and Kansas on Nov. 17.

Statistically, Baylor has the worst defense in the nation. The Bears (3-3, 0-3) have given up 44 points per game and 58.3 points per game in Big 12 play. Even the dejected ISU offense will gain confidence against this group en route to what we think will be Iowa State’s 38th Homecoming win.

Beating Oklahoma or Texas will be tricky, but this team still has another upset in it so one might take place, even though it’s a bit of a stretch. A win at Kansas should be feasible considering the Jayhawks have yet to beat an FBS team this season and probably won’t. Kansas played Iowa State close last year and even though the Cyclones’ run defense is much improved this season, there is cause for concern even against this seemingly lowly opponent.

West Virginia looks more pedestrian since its blowout losses to Texas Tech and Kansas State, so that might be a winnable game for the Cyclones on Black Friday. While West Virginia will still be favored, expect the atmosphere of that game to create a window of opportunity for the Cyclones to capture a statement win to end the regular season.

So don’t fret, Cyclone fans. There’s still a lot of football left to play.

Key players

By Jake Calhoun @iowastatedaily.com

Midway through the 2012 season, the ISU football team has seen its share of standout players that have made their name known one way or another.

Four of them — two on offense, two on defense — have particularly impacted the team's success.

Ernst Brun (RJr.) tight end — 6-foot-3, 247 pounds

Brun has brought an element that has been absent from the ISU offensive attack in the years past: a receiving tight end.

Brun became the first ISU tight end to tally four touchdown passes since Al Dixon did so in 1976 with his 30-yard strike over the pylon in the Cyclones' 27-21 loss to Kansas State on Oct. 13.

“It makes it a lot easier from a passing standpoint,” said quarterback Jared Barnett of having Brun. “He’s huge in the pass game because he can threaten safeties down field. He adds a different dynamic to the offense.”

So far this season, Brun has 12 catches for 124 yards and is averaging 17.7 receiving yards per game.

Brun has almost completely overshadowed fellow tight end Kurt Hammerschmidt’s final stat line of 13 catches for 126 yards from last season in six less games.

Chris Young (RSr.) receiver — 5-foot-11, 197 pounds

Young has been one of those names that has gone largely unnoticed until this season.

Young, a redshirt senior from Austin, Texas, has 20 catches for 232 yards and two touchdowns in all seven games started this season.

Since arriving to campus, ISU coach Paul Rhoads said Young has come a long way.

“Chris Young was a young man that in the last two years would hardly catch anything without using his entire body,” said coach Paul Rhoads. “He’s found confidence in catching the ball with his eyes and his fingers, and he’s making plays afterwards with the ball in his hands.”

Young tallied a career-high 86 yards off seven receptions in Iowa State’s win against Western Illinois on Sept. 15.

David Irving (So.) defensive end — 6-foot-7, 280 pounds

With a physically overwhelming presence, Irving has made his name known on the ISU defensive line. The defensive end has compiled 13 total tackles — nine solo — with two tackles for loss, one sack and a 20-yard interception returned for a touchdown.

Durrell Givens (7 games, 7 started) — 47 tackles (35 solo, 12 asst.), 1 INT (3 yards returned), 1 pass breakup, 2 pass defl., 3 fumble recv., 2 forced fumbles

Sidebar

- Ernst Brun (7 games, 5 started) — 12 rec., 124 yards, 10.3 yards per catch, 17.7 yards per game, 4 TD
- Chris Young (7 games, 7 started) — 20 rec., 232 yards, 11.6 yards per catch, 33.1 yards per game, 2 TD
- David Irving (7 games, 0 started) — 13 tackles (9 solo, 4 asst.), 2 TFL (4 yards lost), 1 sack (3 yards lost), 1 INT (20 yards returned, 1 Def. TD), 1 pass defl.
- Durrell Givens (7 games, 7 started) — 47 tackles (35 solo, 12 asst.), 1 INT (3 yards returned), 1 pass breakup, 2 pass defl., 3 fumble recv., 2 forced fumbles
However, Irving said he still has aspects of his game that he hopes to improve.

“Every aspect of the game — shedding blocks, deflecting passes, blocking field goal kicks — I just need to work on getting them out — to shoot my arms out and use them more,” Irving said.

Durrell Givens (RSr.) safety — 6-foot, 210 pounds

In his first season as a starter, Givens has recorded the third-most tackles — 35 solo, 12 assisted — on the team behind All-American candidate linebackers and team captains Jake Knott and A.J. Klein.

Givens also leads the team in takeaways — one interception and three fumble recoveries. Big plays have successfully been negated by Givens, who has tallied 15 stops on plays of 10 yards or more — including a solo tackle of running back Joseph Randle on a 62-yard scamper up the middle in the fourth quarter of Iowa State’s 31-10 loss to Oklahoma State.

Givens was instrumental in the Cyclones’ final defensive stand in their 9-6 win against Iowa, where he stopped receiver Keenan Davis on a 29-yard pass completion on fourth-and-3 that was about to break open for a potential game-changing score.

It was in those games against Iowa and Oklahoma State that Givens led the team in tackles with nine and 12.

In celebration of the Cytennial, we've got 10 foods made 10 different ways. For this weekend’s homecoming game here are our 10 delicious ways to cook up a burger. For 90 more recipe ideas check out AmesEatsFlavors.com.

1. Whip up Swedish meatball sauce and pour on your burger.
2. Mix diced green peppers and cooked brown rice in with the ground beef.
3. Top your burger with garlic mashed potatoes and low-fat gravy.
4. Add guacamole, fresh tomato and red onions on top.
5. Top burgers with macaroni and cheese and tomato.
6. Add on refried beans, taco seasoning, black olives, salsa and sour cream.
7. Who needs fries on the side? Top your burger with them.
8. Mix beef with sausage and top with scrambled eggs, serve on whole-wheat English muffins.
9. Ladle homemade chili complete with cheddar cheese onto the burger.
10. Blend ground beef with Sriracha sauce, garlic and top with a fried egg.
Serve up seasonal drinks

For a seasonal way to serve up your favorite cold beverages, hollow out a large pumpkin. Then simply fill with ice and add in your beers and sodas.

For apple cider use hollowed out apples. Core the apples of your choice (we prefer red over Granny Smith) and then use a small pairing knife to carve additional apple until about a 1/4 inch of apple is left around. Then fill with your favorite cider.

For a hard cider add whiskey, vodka or Everclear in moderation.

Spooky popcorn balls

This spin on a classic treat is great for the Halloween season. Don’t be afraid to mix up the colors and decorations. Use different dyes, candies and frostings to make it your own.

Ingredients:
- 14 cups plain popped popcorn
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup vinegar
- 1 tablespoon butter
- Orange food coloring
- Chocolate chips and sprinkles

In a small saucepan combine sugar, water and vinegar. Bring to boil and allow to boil until mixture reaches 150 to 155 F.

While you are waiting for the temperature to reach 150 F, stir in desired amount of orange food coloring. The more you use, the darker the color will be. When temperature is reached, remove syrup from heat and stir in butter.

Once the butter is melted, pour hot syrup mixture over popcorn and immediately stir with wooden spoon. When the syrup is just cool enough to handle, finish mixing with hands and quickly start forming into balls. You may want a bowl of water on hand; it helps the popcorn stick together if your hands are wet.

You should be able to make 6 to 10 medium-sized popcorn balls. When you have the balls formed, use chocolate chips and sprinkles to decorate balls to look like a jack-o’-lantern.
