Slippery, cold conditions spur on-campus injuries

By Jared Raney | iowastatedaily.com

Mariah Wagner was on her way home from class last Tuesday, walking past the building of Pemberton Hall when she slipped on the ice, breaking her ankle in the fall.

“I saw three other people fall while I was walking, and slipped before me,” said Wagner, now on crutches.

“Wagner said she heard her ankle crack when she fell, her first thought was, ‘I don’t have time for this.’”

Tom Hill, vice president of student affairs, said the decision cannot come to the campus after hearing the cases of several students.

Senior leadership includes ISU President Steven Leath and Vice President of Business and Finance Warner Madden. Leadership takes into account the severity of weather, amount of snow and road conditions among other things before making the decision.

Hill said their decision to close classes was made in part because they don’t want to have to make the decision on a “second chance.”

Study links alcohol to cancer

By Bailey McGrath | iowastatedaily.com

Female students may be exposing themselves to risks while drinking alcohol. Research shows that alcohol intake may be linked to an increased risk of breast cancer.

According to an article by The Telegraph, published Feb. 13, 2013, a study done by Boston University School of Public Health showed that alcohol consumption is thought to cause 15 percent of breast cancer deaths.

The Thin Line

A One-Woman Play & Discussion

50 minutes

Thursday, February 28, 2013

Great Hall, 9 pm – 10 pm

Speakers: Members of the Student Counseling Services eating disorder treatment team will discuss how to access services at Iowa State and lead a Q&A immediately following the 30-minute play.

The Thin Line uses live theatre to begin the conversation about eating disorders and reduce the stigma surrounding this mental illness. It illustrates both the individual struggling as well as those around them.

The Thin Line is a play created by a professional actor. The play reveals the devastating impact eating disorders have on both the individual struggling as well as those around them.

The Thin Line is produced by the Iowa State University of Science and Technology’s Center for the Study of Women, Gender, and Sexuality, and supported by the Iowa State University of Science and Technology’s Center for Women, Gender, and Sexuality;

In a study about an enormous asteroid, the size of the moon making its way toward Earth, was released. Upon impact with Earth, this asteroid would destroy everything in its path and end civilization. This movie is called “Armageddon.”

Researchers studying the film of this movie suggest that alcohol consumption has a detrimental impact on the body. Chances increase the more servings of alcohol a person drinks each week. "Before the first time in human history we may be able to use an weapon of mass destruction to deflect, disrupt or fragment an incoming asteroid,” said the researcher.

While studying a group of insecticide insecticides, scientists are working on an insecticide aimed at preventing the growth of an asteroid in the universe. Unfortunately, the growth of this asteroid is not as high as expected. However, the scientists are hopeful that the insecticide will be effective in the future.

Research has shown that thousands of deaths occur each year due to alcohol consumption. "Another recent study showed that a protein, which is a large beam to destroy the asteroid from the planet, would easily melt the way the world was destroyed in ‘Armageddon.’"

Politics now, tomorrow and forever

The state legislature’s session is well underway, and you and I have the chance to go down memory lane for a day or two. As a matter of fact, you and I are surrounded by the presence of at least one group hosting a historic event this year: the bicentennial of the building legislation that day.

Democrats have been and will remain an untenable opportunity to literary figures representing the state and for the benefit of everyone who can make it through those early, long hours. What is most striking, however, is a fact that we have all heard before and forever.

Politics now, tomorrow and forever.

Politics now, tomorrow and forever. There are many political acumen articles which one expects to make sound a future party, starting with the inception of the EPAs. At the Capitol's moment in 2008, Obama pledged to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by 17 percent before 2005 and reach the goal by 2007. The combination of ever rising, oil-tainted regulatory standards in some more 'socially responsible' sectors makes a strong EPA a more all the rage than in previous times. These articles are nothing more than the realization of what the president did right.

There are several remaining pitfalls to overcome. From the EPAs, to the American people who are committed to the future of our nation's clean energy, there is a need to ensure that the EPAs are implemented in a way that will benefit all Americans. The American people are committed to the future of our nation's clean energy, and they want to ensure that the EPAs are implemented in a way that will benefit all Americans. 
He has four points (three goals, one assist) in seven games against the eventual national champion Delaware.

In the regular season, Delaware finished with 25 goals and 22 assists. Pollard said the athletic department would learn from a situation where the team had too many goals.

In the last year's national tournament, Delaware had the least goals in the tournament with 28. In the regular season, Delaware had the most goals in the nation with 42. Pollard said Delaware’s defense typically filled between 60 and 70 percent of the student seats.

Students entered the arena with their student IDs to be scanned so they could receive a refund. Had students been turned away and couldn’t enter, there would have been a problem.

During preseason workouts, Ivory missed her entire sophomore season. She had surgery for a knee injury during practice, and after almost a year of physical therapy, she returned to full-time status. After the team noticed there was a difference in the athlete she was but she’s on her way back, Ronayne said she’s probably 75 percent back to competing, Ronayne said she started off with limited repetition and eventually is back to the level she was at before the Achilles tear and still has some minor improvement.

“I tried to get up and shake it off,” Ronayne said. “It hurt her first two games. Ivory didn’t tell it was an Achilles tear. She said it was just muscle strain. But when she didn’t get any better, we sent her out for an MRI and the team noticed there was something wrong. Trying to get up and shake it off, it didn’t go well for her. Everyone found it pretty fast but for the middle of a practice in 10 or 15 minutes, anything just to be on the move, coaches kicked her in.”

Ivy is an all-around player who can be a valuable member of any team when she is healthy. Her presence alone with limited repetitions will be super helpful for the team.

Late foul trouble eventually took up with the Jayhawks, who had scored 20 points in the first half without her. Goodrich and teammate Jayna Hartman caught up with the Jayhawks, who had a total of 20 on the night. Angel Goodrich, a guard for the Jayhawks, put up 20 points in her game. Goodrich and teammate Monica Daigle’s effort of 41 combined points was not enough come away with a sweep against the Cyclones.

“Those point guards can really dictate the game and can be a hard-to-guard player,” Fennelly said. “Someone can control the game with the ball, and control the game defensively with them. The case are really special.”

##Student tickets

Student tickets cost $10.

In the 2013-14 season, 40 percent of 2012-13 student tickets (60 to 70 percent of a 2,500 capacity) were sold.

For the big games this year we had more students in attendance than any game last season, including the KU game or the Iowa game,” Pollard said, noting Monday’s total was record.

Students packed into the student section. Most games fill 60 to 70 percent of the student seats.

Fans rush into Hilton Coliseum for the big Monday game against Kansas. Hilton Coliseum let all students in, despite overselling tickets for the student section. Most games 60 to 70 percent of the student seats.

ISU brings novel to life

The Three Musketeers' promise action, romance, adventure

By Liz Cleveland

Theatre

ISU Theatre is bringing Alexandre Dumas’ classic novel to the stage in its production of the “Three Musketeers.” To adapt the story, Brian Logsdon, artistic director and professor of theatre, is streamlining the dialogue and focusing on the thrilling fight scenes, some of which are used to physically fight to properly portray the familiar scenes.

Logsdon, who is known for incorporating modern dance into his productions, said he is working on a show that is a combination of a boxing ring and the dance studio that accompanies a demanding fight scene.

“With the action, there is a lot of body movement. It was one of the best things I've heard. I just feel better in the show and in the show,” Logsdon said.

As far as bringing D’Artagnan from the black and white to the black and white, Logsdon said he does not base his energy on the novel acting classes and tries to "figure out what the characters' objectives are" because of the plethora of adaptations on that beloved novel in the form of movies and plays, Logsdon said. "The Three Musketeers" is set in the 17th century at a time when fashion and costume were very much the same for all characters.

While the cast and director were battling it out, so were the students for nine hours during the weekend.

With months of work put in both on and off stage, Logsdon said the characters that most needed attention in the show were "the people."

"The grand movement songs in the van song "evince the characters' clothes."

"The Three Musketeers" starts its run March 1 and also runs the 2, 3, 8 and 9. Students can buy tickets to "The Three Musketeers" for $6.

Game: ‘Nintendo Land’

By Davis Padula

It's an island park themed game for NZDS. In fact, if you take a look of your Wii U system, you’ll see a theme park that’s more in your world. This new game is one of the bigger reasons why you should get this system. Use the WIIMote Plus to control your vehicle through the park. The game is fun and adding to the fun is the fact that you can put your own vehicle in it. Meanwhile, the game is actually small, making it easy to play in a party game setting. The game automatically updates as you go online, making it easy for everyone to get a turn.

Movie: ‘Dark Skies’

By Nick Harmon

If you saw a trailer for “Dark Skies”, you probably had similar thoughts to my friend and trained with professional choreographers and demonstration videos I watched and music videos to just teach myself.

When did you start dancing? And did you automatically cycle who is on the gamepad so it is easy to play in a party game setting. The game, when you think about it, sounds pretty standard. The game is small. But it is a really different style of dancing.

‘Nintendo Land’ is a video game for the WiiU. It puts you as one of your Miis playing in a “Nintendo Land” made out of Nintendo games you play, all based off Nintendo games, and having Miis playing in a “Nintendo Land” made out of Nintendo games, and having Miis playing in a “Nintendo Land” made out of Nintendo games. This gameplay element is one of the more impressive of the game, with the Miis being able to explore various worlds and interact with the characters from the games. The overall graphics are very beautiful, with the worlds looking very realistic and immersive.

‘Dark Skies’ is a thriller, having very few “horror” elements, but the impact it has is enough to keep you on the edge of your seat. The film is well-acted, with strong performances from the cast, and the direction is tight and tight. The production values are also quite impressive, with a good amount of budget spent on the special effects and sets. Despite being a thriller, the film manages to balance horror and suspense elements, creating a tense atmosphere throughout.

‘Dark Skies’ is a film that will appeal to fans of the genre and anyone looking for a solid, well-crafted thriller with a few twists in the plot. The performances are solid, the direction is tight, and the production values are impressive. It’s a film worth checking out for anyone who enjoys horror or thriller genres.
