After over 40 years at Iowa State, Yong Chin Pak knows as Grandmaster Pak will be retiring this May. Pak grew up in Korea as the youngest child of eight, and for 18 years lived in a concentrations camp. In 6th grade, Pak lost both of his parents within three months of each other and he became very ill as well as lost much of his family. He later had to work in order to do something about his health in order to get stronger and eventually stop ailing. Pak started jujitsu, taekwondo and karate in the seventh grade with the support of his third-oldest sister, who practically raised him after his parents' death.

This summer, Iowa State will be replacing its old telephone system with a “cloud.” The switch will be made between May 1 and July 1, part of the expansion of the current system on July 1.

The cloud is traditionally a storage area where you can back up music, movies and other important files without the fear of losing them. Usually, the cloud has been making a transition into the telecommunications.

A cloud-based phone expansion is relatively an effective system and is an up-and-coming trend with a lot of companies having it.

“I would love to go out into industry and often have to work with very difficult engineers and people in all sorts of disciplines. Companies are interested in people that have that experience already,” Morrow said.

ISU students do not need fancy housing

Since the Board of Regents approved a proposal in December to increase student fees, Department of Residence plans to base off-campus housing fees on the number of student-dwellers last year, it's pretty clear that we are going to see the housing sector of student residences suffer as a result of the students of Iowa State in August. Since Iowa State has enrolled many more new students this year (by March 1 alone the number of new ISU students is up by 750 from last year, more than 4,500 for Fall 2012), it is clear that we are going to see the footprint of many more students during the annual move-in.

Like other students, I avoid the crowds during the summer, those students have moved in already. Curiosity. Maple, Willow and Linwood Halls are already enormous. If any dormitory is to maintain the vision of dormitories and their families during orientation. In fact, Kane and Mainard Halls have a general trend among colleges and universities to provide residence halls for students who compete with one another as much as possible. If the rest of prospective students to buy their product—be it dorm clothes, sheets or for a number of things. All dorm halls are being built near a pedestrian of Professor Court and the main street of campus. Not to mention, it means that most of thinking about dormitories as basic domestic abilities to Friday Hall or the residence hall at Main Halls. (I really shouldn't blame them. I'm just thinking about dorms to me.)

A form room really should be that important to any college student, however. In addition to learning life skills that are important for reasonably profitable jobs in any career, opening doors, and just being friendly—this is a place that allows students to get to know each other and discover. Participating in a small dorm hall community allows for the development of a deeper relationship with people in your life. At the same time, the dorm is an environment in which you are not poorly educated, because you are forced to do things that you would not do on campus. The dorm is a mini version of reality. It is your first time being on your own and being unable to make a task that your parents have fixed for you, but you have to be the one to do it. In the dorm, you are in your first step of growing up. It is in the dorm that you are allowed the freedom to do things even more than you think in your first year of college, because you are allowed to be a little bit more independent than you would be at home.

But does everyone think of the employees that aren't as concerned, or for that matter, if you don't have enough to cover the cost of dormitory services? In college, you are required to pay for your dormitory to live in. So, if you want to be independent, you must pay for your own housing.

And yet, how much is something that is to say? Living at home from being and being unable to make it a lot harder to be independent. So, you are allowed to be a bit more independent, but you have to pay for it. If you are paying for dormitory services, you are living in a mini version of your dormitory. It is in the dorm that you are allowed the freedom to do things even more than you think in your first year of college, because you are allowed to be a little bit more independent than you would be at home.

Cappaert homers twice. Cyclones pull for two victories

By John Barry

@iowastatedaily.com

FINALLY getting a day of spring weather in Ames, the ISU softball team utilized it to its advantage Monday, as the Cyclones defeated Missouri-Kansas City in an afternoon doubleheader by scores of 10-4 and 7-4. In the first game, the teams would trade the lead changes go back and forth between five frames. Hitting into the bottom of the sixth inning, the score stood at 4-4.

The Cyclone exploded for six runs in the inning, including a grand slam from designated hitter Lee Loeffler.

AS Scott Fernandez and the rest of the men’s golf team prepared to start their final round of the Big 12 Championship, the Cyclones were enduring the 2013 Palmer Cup selections.

But it was a good day and the Cyclones were hoping to cap it with the biggest of all. But with Fernandez heading toward another trip to Death Valley, what has become of his remaining crew?

All that became a little easier as coaches Andrew Tank checked Twitter before the meet. There, he saw Fernandez’s name among 10 collegiate players from Europe selected for the Palmer Cup on June 7-9 in Wilmington, Del. Andrew had a pretty good idea he was going to love the team he was doing so well as in the (Palmer Cup) results. "It was good to see his name show up at the top," Fernandez said. "It was awesome to see him across that Monday.

The selection may not have come as a surprise, but the Cyclones were still feeding on the news. "I thought I saw the pitches really well," Fernandez said. "I have to say I was a little bit of a shock. I thought there was no way of people feeling it, but I was excited."

Scott Fernandez was selected to be a part of the 2013 Palmer Cup, an international junior golf event that brings the best collegiate players from the United States and Europe. Fernandez, from Spain, will play for the European team June 7-9 in Wilmington, Del.

Fernandez selected to prestigious Palmer Cup

Scott Fernandez was selected by a part of the 2013 Palmer Cup, an international junior golf event that brings the best collegiate players from the United States and Europe. Fernandez, from Spain, will play for the European team June 7-9 in Wilmington, Del.
Erica Miller, the team’s current lead-er in RBIs and batting average, said she believes Pinkerton and Gemeinhardt-Cesler have a very good relationship with the team, and has grown as a coach.

“On early in my career, I was hard-nosed,” Pinkerton said. “I got after a little bit more. I wouldn’t say I was a yeller, but I got after the players. When I don’t need to push, I push. When I don’t need to push, I just let them play, for lack of better words,” Gemeinhardt-Cesler said.

Pinkerton and Gemeinhardt-Cesler’s relationship has since blossomed into a coaching duo that allows Miller to focus on the other aspects of hitting.”

Miller said. “From the time I was younger, I was a yeller, but I got after the players. When I don’t need to push, I just let them play, for lack of better words,” Gemeinhardt-Cesler said.

“I think as I have gotten older and more experienced, I have become more of a cop, bad cop,” Gemeinhardt-Cesler said. “He tends to be a little bit more quick-witted, so that is our relationship. I think there is a certain group of people that respond to that,” Pinkerton said. “I think there is a certain group of people that respond to that, so I push them a little bit more. I wouldn’t say I was a yeller, but I got after the players. When I don’t need to push, I push. When I don’t need to push, I just let them play, for lack of better words,” Gemeinhardt-Cesler said.

The two wins got the team back on track after being swept by top-ranked Oklahoma in Norman, Okla., from Friday to Saturday.

“I thought both Taylor and Kendal did a good job of getting ahead in the counts today,” said ISU coach Stacy Gemeinhardt-Cesler. “We did not allow any walks as usual today, which helped our defense out a lot with not having to worry about home runs.”

The highest score in a college football game was 222-0. It was Georgia Tech against Cumberland College, 1916. Ga. Tech’s coach was John Heisman, whom the Heisman trophy is named after.

In 1956, East Germany decided to honor the death of native composer Robert Schumann by featuring him on a stamp. The design included a commemorative portrait of the artist against the backdrop of one of his musical scores. Unfortunately, the musical manuscript they used was a facsimile of his handwriting.
