Schminterview
Cael Sanderson, Olympic gold medalist

---

I heard you used to draw cartoons. Do you still do any drawing?

Sanderson: I started working on about 30 cartoons—one-panel comic strips. I had to quit working on them when I started preparing for the Olympics.

What foods did you miss the most when cutting weight?

Sanderson: Junk food really. Anything. Pizza. I like pizza a lot. Pizza and Mountain Dew. When I was younger, in high school, I used to think about different drinks I’d like to invent. Like orange Mountain Dew, a lot of the stuff they have now.

Do you have a favorite song that gets you psyched up?

Sanderson: Well, I don’t listen to music much. I do when I’m running and wrestling—anything with a fast beat. Jump Around. It’s on Mrs. Doubtfire. I put it on repeat. The guys don’t like it too much, but I like it.

Where do you keep your gold medal?

Sanderson: At my house in a dresser drawer. I need to take care of it. Sometimes people will want to see it, and I’ll take it out.

What is the strangest thing you’ve found on campus?

Netcott: I’ve found bras and pairs of women’s underwear. There’re places where it looks like they’ve had a beer party on campus. But it was always the next day. Iowa State students don’t exactly shock me now. Once, there was a snow sculpture we had to knock down in front of Beardshear.

Really? Why?

Netcott: It was a sculpture of a guy sitting in a chair with, uh, what appeared to be a, uh, girl with her head in his lap. It was really a nicely done sculpture, but we had to knock it down anyway. It was in front of Beardshear.

What do you like about your job? Why would someone become a groundskeeper?

Netcott: I like being outside. I get quite a bit of variation in the things I do. I don’t like being cooped up, and it’s rewarding to see the things you’ve done.

Do you have a favorite part?

Netcott: I can take a drive through campus and see the work I’ve done building landscapes, planting shrubs, and establishing lawns.
