N great grandmother's day, the Christmas dinner took days and days of work, but little planning. There was, perhaps, a family of fourteen, and twice as many guests. The food problem was solved by cooking every available vegetable, cake, pie, pudding and fowl. Quantity was the chief goal. But when families decreased from fourteen to four, there came new difficulties. Now we must plan well-balanced meals. We no longer have five kinds of cake and four kinds of pie for one meal. For that reason our pie or cake must be more carefully planned, so as to fit in with the rest of the menu.

To no one else, however, does the Christmas dinner prospect loom so large as to the young bride. She has only two or which to prepare, with perhaps a guest or two. The number is too small to warrant an immense turkey, regular Christmas plum pudding, or many other delicacies dear to the holiday. But, of course, she wants to prepare her first Christmas dinner in her very own home, with her new linen and silver and pretty china.

Fortunately four—and even two—can have a truly Christmas-eve dinner. The following menu, for example, is only a basic one, and may have infinite variation.

Fruit Cocktail

or

Tomato Bouillon with Croutons

Roast Goose or Chicken Cranberry Sauce

Mashed Potatoes Green Vegetables

Vegetable Salad with Cheese Straws or Paprika Crackers

Bread

Olives Pickles Celery

Bombons Nuts Raisins

Coffee

If a fruit cocktail is chosen for the first course, any combination of cubed fruit, either fresh or canned, may be used. The fruit should be served very cold in a cocktail glass. The first course may be omitted entirely, and the dinner begun with the piece de resistance and accompaniments. Then if there is no maid, everything except the dessert is placed on the table at once, and the host serves.

For the small dinner, roast chicken or goose, rather than turkey, will most likely be chosen, and even roast pork is delicious, as well as suited to pocketbooks inclined to become flat about Christmas time. If a pork roast is served, sweet potato croquettes may take the place of mashed white potatoes, and in place of cranberries, apples baked in the pan. For the latter choose firm red apples, wash, core, and fill the hollows with sugar or raisins. The addition of a few cinnamon drops will give a rory color and delicious flavor. Half an hour before the meat is done, place the apples around it and let them roast while the pork browns. The host serves an apple to each person with the slice of meat.

To make the croquettes, boil the sweet potatoes (about 21/2 lbs. should be enough) until tender. Put thru a ricer, then season with salt, pepper, and a large piece of butter. Beat well and add sufficient hot milk to make the mixture easily handled. Form in balls or cones. These may be prepared the day before and kept in a cool place until just before time to serve. Then dip the croquettes into an egg beaten with a tablespoon of milk, roll in fine dry bread crumbs, and fry at 350° F. until brown.

If fowl is served, prepare as directed in "Trussing the Christmas Fowl," in this issue. Mashed potatoes will accompany the fowl. Two medium-sized potatoes for each person will be sufficient. They should be poached the day before and kept in cold water until time to cook.

For the green vegetable there is a wide variety of choice. Creamed peas or green beans are always good. Onions au gratin are delicious and easily prepared. To make this, stew the onions in boiling salted water until tender, drain, and arrange in a baking dish a layer of onions, bread crumbs, salt, pepper, and butter; then another layer of the onions, finishing with buttered crumbs. Bake until the crumbs are brown.

Harvard beets are also good. Mix 5/4 c. sugar, 1/3 t. salt, and 2 1/2 T. cornstarch, add 1 1/3 c. mild vinegar, and boil five minutes. Pour over 1 1/3 c. beets, cooked the day before and cut in small balls or one-half-inch cubes; cover and set over low fire for one-half hour. Add 1 1/3 T. butter just before serving.

The vegetable salad may be of raw chopped cabbage and carrots, or any other combination of raw or cooked vegetables. Asparagus makes a nice salad when decorated with strips of red pimento, or cauliflower, peas, green beans, tomatoes, green peppers, or any other vegetable not otherwise used in the menu. May serve. The salad dressing, cheese straws or paprika crackers are made the preceding day so that on Christmas nothing need be done except combine the salad ingredients. Paprika crackers are made by spreading small crackers with a little butter and a dash of paprika and crisping in the oven.

Christmas Dinner for Two

By LOUISE DOOLE

Re-heated rolls or thinly sliced bread and the relishes complete the main part of the dinner. The hostess removes the plates, salad plates, vegetables, bread, meat and relishes, and serves the dessert.

Dessert gives another occasion for variety and wide choice. A fruit and nut gelatin dessert is an enjoyable finish to the dinner. If fruit cocktail was not served for the first course, Mince pie is somewhat heavy for a meal of this type, but if you feel that Christmas is not Christmas without pie, apple pie a la mode will be a delightful substitute. Of course you will not serve apple pie if you have had apples in any other form.

The tendency now-a-days is to end a holiday meal with a light dessert, and nothing could be better than some kind of ice or sherbert. Serve apricot or pineapple ice, and see how its cool deliciousness will be appreciated.

Fruit Sherbet (1 qt.)

Water (boiling) 1/4 c.

Sugar, 1/4 c.

Water (cold) 1/4 c.

Salt, f. e.

Gelatin, 1/2 c.

Juice of 1/2 p. orange, or grated pineapple, 1/2 pt.

Soften gelatin in 1/4 c. cold water for 5 minutes; add boiling water; stir until dissolved, then stir in the sugar. Add remaining 1/2 c. cold water, lemon, and fruit juice.

The gelatin may be omitted and stiffly beaten egg white stirred in when the mixture is half frozen.

But do not think that you cannot have a Christmas pudding because your family is small. The suet pudding is an easily made substitute for real plum pudding, and economy fruit cake is not only a cake deliciousness will be appreciated.

Suet Pudding (2 leaves)

Suet (chopped fine) 1/4 c.

Sour milk, 1/2 c.

Egg, 1/2 c.

Water crumbs ( stale), 1/4 c.

Sorghum (chopped), 1/2 c.

Flour, 1 c.

Soda, 1/4 t.

Salt, 1/4 t.

Cloves, Mace, Allspice, each, 1/4 t.

Walnut meats, 1/4 c.

Scald spices with 1 T. boiling water, and add to sorghum, which has been combined with egg, sour milk and suet. Dissolve suet and nuts with 1/2 c. of the 1/2 c. flour. Mix and sift ingredients, then add bread crumbs. Combine wet and dry ingredients, stir in chopped fruit and nuts. Fill well-greased molds, two-thirds full. Steam 3 hours. Serve hot with hard sauce or lemon sauce. This pudding remains good for a month, and may be re-heated by steaming.

the pan, over the bird. If a thick crust is desired a paste of four tablespoons of butter and four tablespoons of flour may be rubbed over the bird before placing it in the oven. Basting with fat on the plain surface, however, makes a caramelized thin brown crust.

The fowl is sufficiently roasted when the joint separates easily and when the juice flows readily when the skin is pierced.

are exchanged—these only between the closest of relatives, as a mother to her child.

"After the Saturday night festivities, about one o'clock in the morning, everyone goes to church. The church is gorgeously decorated, and there is much beautiful singing. Holy oil made by the Pope and Monks at “Etchmiatzin,” the Pope’s home, is in large golden bird shaped vessels. The holy oil drops from the beaks of the birds and as the people pass, they moisten their hands and touch their faces with it. This holy oil is made from the blossoms of thousands of beautiful flowers, by pouring olive oil over them. This is let stand for many days in golden jars while the Pope and Monks pray over it.

"The priest blesses and gives bread to each house he visits. Then he receives a gift in return. As he leaves, everyone kisses the Bible and the priest blesses each one individually.

"Food and good red wine is served and everyone is very happy," and here Mr. Sarkisan smiled, for he said, "Where there is wine, there is much singing and happiness."

Mr. Malcas, of Peru, South America, also a student at Iowa State College, told me that in his country, Christmas is a very sacred affair.

"We do not try to have a good time," he said, "for it is a religious holiday. We go to services all day long, high mass, beginning as early as four o’clock in the morning. The women always attend the services dressed in black, with long shawls thrown over their head and shoulders.

"The churches are beautifully decorated and there is much singing. Nearly half of every church is devoted to a raised monument to represent the birth of Jesus Christ. This monument shows the Virgin and Christ, and is made as nearly as possible like the stable in which Christ was born. The three wise men, who came with gifts for the new born Christ are also shown. After the services are over at one church, the congregation goes to the other churches to see their monuments and decorations.

Economy Fruit Cake (2 loaves)

Boil together for 5 minutes:

- 2 c. sugar
- 2 c. water
- 2 heaping T. shortening
- 1 lb. seeded raisins

When cool, add 1 t. soda (heaping), sift together 3 c. flour, 1 t. salt, 1/4 t. cloves, 1 t. cinnamon, and 1 t. nutmeg. Add to first mixture. Bake in moderate oven for 45 minutes.

The final effect may be produced if you carry the holly-decked pudding to the table enveloped in flames, the result of pouring lemon extract around it and lighting it.

The following rules may aid in preparing the dinner as quickly and as well as possible.

1. Prepare as much as possible before Christmas day. Vegetables may be prepared for cooking, the fowl dressed, and the dessert made the day or week before, depending on its nature. If home-made candles and salted nuts are served, they may be prepared several days ahead of time and stored in tin boxes.

2. Do not repeat flavors. If you use pineapple in a fruit cocktail, do not serve pineapple ice.

3. Plan an interesting color scheme. Both red and carrots would not only be out of harmony, but would be less appetizing. It is better to have a special color scheme for a dinner of this type.

If the young housekeeper will plan so as to have as little as possible to do the day of the big dinner, she will not be too tired to enjoy the dinner or properly entertain her guests. And how glad she will be that she had dinner at home rather than at a restaurant or hotel!

Everyone has a good time over the week-end because we have Monday holidays. It's simply heavenly! Once a semester there is a holiday from Friday at 4 to Monday at 6. It comes the last day of the big dinner, she will not be too tired to enjoy the dinner or properly entertain her guests. And how glad she will be that she had dinner at home rather than at a restaurant or hotel!

There must have been fifty or sixty women.

As soon as I can I'll send you a few pictures, and today I have mailed you a copy of the College Quarterly, which I think you would enjoy exchanging for the Home Economics Club. I especially want them to see the Homemaker, because they are so interested in all of these practical phases of their education just recently added to the curriculum.

While I'm writing I think I'll send a message to the Home Economics Club. I've been wondering if your budget of benevolence couldn't include something towards meal serving equipment for the department here. We have nothing! Last year there was no necessity for it, but now I think it would add no end of pleasure for the girls to feel that they have a table, chairs, linen, silver, and china for the serving of meals.

Of course, I think we want to keep it as eastern as possible. I'm sure I can find lovely luncheon sets of Bulgarian cross stitch, tho I haven't been able to find much china that I'd ever buy. I hope to bring some lovely Persian prints and fascinating native things, table runners, to the art and clothing departments when I come back. The money that was originally raised is about gone,
