Mark says there is a noticeable difference when you are being talked up her boots … or tell her she looks good today. “Usually they approach as an asshole … you can tell when they are out for it. Guys point out a girl and a minute later they are dancing with them all gone on the dance floor … he walks up, she knows what he is there for, and she is already in,” he says.

Then comes the aftermath. This is where your decision from the night before can be life-changing. If you choose the nice guy, Mark says you are more likely to stay friends. “A guy who can friend-zone a girl. That’s how you know that guy has game … Guys think with their dicks a lot. If a guy can friend-zone a girl and still be a good guy and is straightforward, he isn’t a player – he is a nice guy that respects someone’s feelings. He cares about what he is doing”

There are two types of lady hunters, the asshole and the nice guy, and he has seen it all.

Being a nice guy, Mark says he “goes out to have a good time no matter what.” But that isn’t always the case. Some of his friends go out with the sole intent to take a girl home every night. While being talked up by a guy leaves the chance of going home with them, it can be possible to sort the good guys from the ones who are solely trying to take advantage of you.

“I think a girl is cute, I go over and talk to her, and if it goes well I might take her home, but I play more of the nice-funny card. I will hook up with a guy if they are legitimately fun and we have chemistry,” he says. He always take her home, but I play more of the nice-funny card. The purpose of a blind date is to date a stranger without any preconceived notion of who they are. A blind date is to give a chance to someone you would never normally give a chance to. A blind date is to have dinner with someone you would probably never speak to. With Facebook, people vet out those potential blind date victims before they can actually happen. With Facebook, people memorize every fact they can grab about someone you would never regularly give a chance to. A blind date is impossible to go into a date completely blindly any more. Facebook ensures that we only interact with people we know we will like. It guarantees that we will have pleasant conversations on a first date. It alerts us to potential problems in future relationships. It tells us if we will or won’t like each other. Ultimately there is a reason for Facebook and Facebook stalking. I am nervous for my spinsterhood. I generally wrap myself in alone time. I love to hibernate. I constantly joke about the hundreds of cats that I will have someday. Naturally, my friends were alarmed by my pro-hormone attitude. In a desperate move to get me outside and interacting with actual humans my buddies collectively decided to set me up on a blind date.
