Degree Days - From a Brisk Week to a Balmy One

Richard O. Pope

Iowa State University, ropope@iastate.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://lib.dr.iastate.edu/cropnews

Part of the Agricultural Science Commons, Agriculture Commons, Agronomy and Crop Sciences Commons, Meteorology Commons, and the Plant Pathology Commons

Recommended Citation

http://lib.dr.iastate.edu/cropnews/651

The Iowa State University Digital Repository provides access to Integrated Crop Management News for historical purposes only. Users are hereby notified that the content may be inaccurate, out of date, incomplete and/or may not meet the needs and requirements of the user. Users should make their own assessment of the information and whether it is suitable for their intended purpose. For current information on integrated crop management from Iowa State University Extension and Outreach, please visit https://crops.extension.iastate.edu/.
Degree Days - From a Brisk Week to a Balmy One

Abstract
Although the week of May 10 was seasonally cold; we made up most of that week's lost heat during the week of May 17. Corn planting is nearing completion across Iowa, and soybean planting is wrapping up in some regions as well. Corn fields should be monitored for black cutworm now, based on pheromone trap capture data.

Keywords
Plant Pathology

Disciplines
Agricultural Science | Agriculture | Agronomy and Crop Sciences | Meteorology | Plant Pathology

This article is available at Iowa State University Digital Repository: http://lib.dr.iastate.edu/cropnews/651
Degree Days - From a Brisk Week to a Balmy One

by Rich Pope, Corn and Soybean Initiative

Although the week of May 10 was seasonally cold; we made up most of that week's lost heat during the week of May 17.

- Base 50°F degree days
  May 1 through May 25, 2009

Com planting is nearing completion across Iowa, and soybean planting is wrapping up in some regions as well.

Corn fields should be monitored for black cutworm now, based on pheromone trap capture data.

Rich Pope is a program specialist with responsibilities with Integrated Pest Management. Pope can be contacted by email at rpoppe@iastate.edu or by calling 515-294-5899.

This article was published originally on 5/26/2009. The information contained within the article may or may not be up to date depending on when you are accessing the information.

Links to this material are strongly encouraged. This article may be republished without further permission if it is published as written and includes credit to the author, Integrated Crop Management News and Iowa State University Extension. Prior permission from the author is required if this article is republished in any other manner.