Mary V. Campbell
Mabel V. Campbell, '05, who is chairman of the Home Economics Department of the University of Missouri, at Columbia, writes an interesting letter concerning her activities.

"We have a fine staff, and a wonderful student body. We are small in number, but we make up in quality. Iowa State girls would not be able to imagine such a small department as we have, neither could they imagine one so poorly equipped. For more than two years one half of our building has stood almost finished, awaiting the necessary dollars which we hope the next legislature will give us. Unlike Iowans, Missourians are hardly conscious of the professional opportunities in home economics or of the necessity of securing training for homemaking. Thus we see, we have a long ways to go in developing home economics in Missouri.

"Can you imagine it? Three of the members of our staff have never visited Iowa State College. We realize our education is sadly incomplete, hence we are all coming up to call on you. The twelve members of our resident staff and several of the extension staff will head our little "Chevies" northward some bright Friday morning in early spring. We will spend Saturday inspecting and securing inspiration from the finest Home Economics department the world knows, on the beautiful campus of my beloved Alma Mater. This is just one of the details of departmental administration.

"We are using every possible means to develop the interest of students and staff and women's organizations in a big state wide program for the development of home economics. A challenge, yes! A job full of interest, but quite different from that of Federal Agent for Vocational Education!"

Miss Campbell is president of the Missouri Home Economics Association, Regional Counselor of the American Home Economics Association and a member of the Federal Board of Vocational Education.

Jennie M. Shaw, a graduate student in Institutional Administration, has accepted a position as director of the Lunch and Dining Rooms in the Taggney-McGinn Hotel at Waterloo.

Phi Upsilon Omicron Conclave

Omicron Chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron, professional home economics honorary, as hostess of the 1928 biennial conclave to be held June 21, 22, and 23, extends to each member of the fraternity a cordial invitation to the Iowa State College campus. Definite arrangements for the business and council meetings, banquets, and invitations are being completed by the National Council. To enable the delegates to reach Des Moines in time for the opening session of the National Home Economics Convention, no plans are being made for Sunday. Of special interest to Iowa State College will be Anna E. Richardson, formerly dean of home economics, now field worker on the Committee for Parental Education and Child Welfare, who will speak on, “Progress of Home Management Study and Plans for its Future.”

Future information concerning the conclave may be obtained by communicating with Harriet King, Chairman of General Arrangements, Ames, Iowa, or Dorothy Johnson, President of Omicron Chapter, Box W, Station A, Ames, Iowa.

German Periodical Features Pictures of Iowa State Laboratories

Studies in household equipment and household administration at Iowa State College are interesting European engineers. Pictures of the laboratories at Iowa State are reproduced on the front page of the March 14 issue of the official periodical of the Society of German Engineers, published in Berlin. Accompanying the pictures is an article on “Technique in the Household” by Miss Lotte Matschoss of Germany, now a student at Iowa State. Miss Matschoss is the first German to study household equipment here as a student.

Improved household equipment is popular in Germany, says Miss Matschoss, where servants are scarce since the war, due to the demands of industry.

Miss Josephine Arnegust, chairman of the Hospitality Committee of the National Home Economics Association meeting in Des Moines, is soliciting ushers for the convention. Schools which can furnish students please notify Miss Arnegust at the Extension Office, Ames.
