Alpha Zeta

Alpha Zeta is an honor society for upperclass men in the field of agriculture and veterinary medicine. The basis for membership is service to agriculture as well as scholarship.
Awards Night

Awards Night was held at the monthly meeting of the Student Chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association on May 20, 1959. The Women’s Auxiliary, faculty members, their wives and other guests were present.

President Ed Winter introduced Dr. Monlux, faculty advisor, who awarded the Jr. A.V.M.A. diplomas to the seniors. Dr. Fowler, faculty advisor to the Iowa State Veterinarian, was then introduced. He presented certificates of merit to 25 men who had worked one year on the publication. He also awarded seals to 25 students for at least one additional year service to the publication. Roy Schultz, William Kerber, Durwood Davis and Jack Stakes were awarded Keys for outstanding contributions to the publication.

President Winter then introduced Dr. Ramsey, chairman of the awards committee, who presented the following awards:

Paul F. Starch Phi Zeta to Gerald Crawley
Two G.G. Graham prizes to Don Casey and Richard Jones
Wayne H. Riser Small Animal award to Robert L. Maahs
Women’s Auxiliary to the American Veterinary Medical Association award to Bill Spear
George Judisch Scholarship prize to Buddy Vagts
Burton C. Thompson award to Victor Klopfenstein
Iowa State College Veterinary Alumni awards to Robert Conway and John Riddell, Jr.

Two George M. Capp awards, one to Donald Phillips and one to Duane Hauser
Lane Wells Scholarship award to William Hicks

Balloting for the election of officers for the coming year was conducted during the presentation of the awards with the following officers being elected:

Vice President — Donald Kerns
President-Elect — Bob Glock
Secretary — Victor Klopfenstein
Treasurer — Joe Blass
Critic — Gerald Kennedy
Faculty Advisor — Dr. D. L. Baker

Mrs. Merchant was then introduced, who, assisted by Mrs. Kingrey, presented 48 P.H.T. awards to the wives of the senior students.

Dr. Monlux was then presented a gift by Bill Spear in appreciation of the time and interest he had given as faculty advisor during the past year.

Fall Banquet

Approximately 260 faculty and students attended the annual Veterinary Medicine Fall Banquet. The event was held September 16 in the Sunroom of the Memorial Union.

Dr. Durwood Baker, faculty advisor to the Junior A.V.M.A., gave the invocation preceding the dinner. Forrest Trafton served as master of ceremonies and Frank Deiter, president of the student chapter, extended a welcome to the freshman and new faculty members.

Dean I. A. Merchant introduced the faculty and also presented the Borden Award. This year’s recipient was James Carpenter who has maintained an average of 3.75 thus far in veterinary school.

Guest speaker was Dr. S. F. Scheidy, President of the A.V.M.A., who spoke on, “Who Are We?”. In his speech Dr. Scheidy explained the organization and function of the A.V.M.A.

Prevention of Lamb Dysentery. In a flock of about 200 ewes, only about 30 lambs survived to 5 months of age in 1954. The majority of the deaths were reported by the owner to occur during the first few days of life, the sick showing yellow, pasty stools, and survivors remaining unthrifty. Several lambs moved from the muddy yard to clean ground never showed symptoms. Penicillin, streptomycin or sulfaguanidine were ineffective.

In January, 1955, all except 20 of the pregnant ewes were vaccinated with Clostridium perfringens type D bacterin. Their lambs were vaccinated with Clostridium perfringens type D antisera within 6 hours of birth. No yellow diarrhea developed except in a few lambs which through oversight received no antitoxin. In these, and in 10 lambs in which neither they or their mother received the biologic, yellow, pasty diarrhea developed. However, several doses of antitoxin gave response in all but two lambs in 6 days.
