Sailor, Sleep

Joseph C. Desy

Abstract

great ocean winds blinded the sailor and his wife in the sea and his sunken ships in the sea were all told the pilot too and the starfish and the rosaries in the sea his ghost ship dogs surviving from hunger ribs poking through their sides of the great salt sea of the books we read bored of sea tales and sailors’ wives yet he runs home sometimes the blinded sailor to sleep in the wind of the great salt sea to sleep in his sunken ships and the great ocean winds...

great ocean winds
blinded the sailor
and his wife in the sea and his sunken ships
in the sea were all told the pilot too and the starfish
and the rosaries in the sea his ghost ship dogs
surviving from hunger
ribs poking through their sides
of the great salt sea
of the books we read
bored of sea tales
and sailors’ wives
yet he runs home sometimes the blinded sailor
to sleep in the wind
to sleep in his sunken ships and the
great ocean winds
