Abstract

There is a path but it is difficult to find my way for the brush is thick. My coat is much too thin for this weather. I thought I saw a brook but I must have imagined it for I only feel the wind and hear the clock strike 2:30. Sleep is impossible if you have no name.
Poem

Denny Caraber

English, Fresh.

There is a path
but it is difficult to find my way
for the brush is thick.
My coat is much too thin
for this weather.
I thought I saw
a brook
but I must have imagined it for I only feel
the wind
and hear the clock
strike 2:30.
Sleep is impossible
if you have no name.
