The Accident

Kathy Burkhalter*

*Iowa State College
The Accident

Kathy Burkhalter

Abstract

A sunbeam stepping timorously out the backdoor of heaven, slipped on a discarded raindrop, skidded across the wet sky, bounced through a cloud (that had inadvertently been left out overnight) and finally thudded against the earth tangled in the eyelashes of a brown-eyed girl...
A sunbeam
stepping timorously out the backdoor of heaven,
slipped on a discarded raindrop,
skidded across the wet sky,
bounced through a cloud (that had inadvertently been left out over-night)
and finally thudded against the earth—
entangled in the eyelashes of a brown-eyed girl.